INTRODUCTION

The 52nd edition of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated publishes the Act as consolidated under the R.S.C. 1985 5th Supplement, effective March 1, 1994. This edition is current to July 3, 2012.

New developments in this edition include:

- Bill C-38, Jobs, Growth and Long-term Prosperity Act (S.C. 2012, c. 19)
- Draft legislation and regulations:
  - June 8, 2012 (Caseload management of the Tax Court of Canada)
  - March 29, 2012 (Notice of Ways and Means Motion (Federal Budget))
- New amending regulation with Bill C-38 (medical expense tax credit)
- Various CRA/Finance and Agriculture news releases and Finance comfort letters
- New Selected Cases annotations to reflect important jurisprudence since the last edition

All proposed changes released to July 3, 2012 including draft legislation, new amending regulations and changes announced by means of press releases, are incorporated in context with the relevant provisions of the Act. A comprehensive list of pending amendments included in this edition is provided in the Table of Proposed Amendments following this Introduction.

To take fullest advantage of the information in this volume, the reader should refer both to the annotations following the provision under consideration and to the annotations at the end of sections. Occasionally annotations will also appear at the end of a group of related sections or at the beginning or end of a Part of the Act. The categories of annotations, and other features of this Act, are discussed below.

Readers will note that the Government has not yet completely revised the Regulations to reflect changed references to the Act made by the Fifth Supplement. We have, therefore, added the correct references in square brackets throughout the Regulations.

At the end of the book, readers will find a comprehensive Topical Index that includes many tax terms not explicitly used in the legislation, as well as acronyms. The index and the annotations reflect draft legislation and draft regulations where necessary.

Cases of Interest

Proven to be of assistance to practitioners as a ready source of pertinent information, Cases of Interest has been further expanded as part of the 52nd edition of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated. It provides summaries of cases of potential interest to tax practitioners, bearing on income tax and related matters, but which do not necessarily involve specific references to sections of the Income Tax Act. The subject areas include judicial review, examination for discovery, pleadings, tax treaties, principles of statutory construction, onus of proof, Charter cases, provincial statutes, words and phrases, rectification, professional negligence, administration and enforcement, sentencing considerations and cases related to the Indian Act. Summaries are provided in the same abbreviated format as case summaries in the Act and are grouped by subject matter in descending chronological order.

Related Provisions

Where other sections of the Act are relevant to the interpretation or application of a particular provision, these are noted in the Related Provisions annotations throughout. Note that there are occasional Related Provisions within the "shaded boxes", tying proposed legislation to other parts of the Act.

History/Origin

Due to the ever increasing volume of information in each subsequent edition of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated and in an effort to retain a single volume portable comprehensive Act and related statutory material, the pre-1985 R.S.C. History annotations were removed beginning with the 30th edition. The full History annotations for all changes to provisions of the Act prior to the enactment of the R.S.C. 1985, Fifth Supplement including any special transitional rules, however, can be found in a variety of sources including the following Carswell products:

- the CD-ROM version of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated,
- the Canada Tax Service,
- editions of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated prior to the 30th edition,
- TaxPartner CD-ROM,
- and Carswell's premier online tax service Taxnet Pro.

Care should be exercised by tax practitioners in interpreting the Act to consider whether prior amendments of a provision, in particular readings prior to the enactment of the 1985 R.S.C. and application rules, may still be relevant. For example, the attribution rules in ss. 74 and 75 and the stock option rules in s. 7 may still have relevance today and reference should be made to the full History annotations and application rules contained in the sources listed above.

Whereas the Origin notes in pre-RSC editions of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated referred to the pre-1972 Act, the Origin notes in this edition are attached to provisions in the Act that were added by the Fifth Supplement, effective March 1, 1994.

Selected Cases

Leading cases that are most central to the point at issue follow the provisions of the Act. Each style of cause is followed by a case citation and a succinct one- or two-sentence digest of the case. The cases are selected, and the digests written, by Stikeman Elliott LLP lawyer, Richard W. Pound, Q.C., F.C.A.

Department of Finance "Comfort Letters"

Numerous Department of Finance "comfort letters" obtained under the Access to Information Act are included in the Act and Regulations in context. The letters represent intended amendments that Finance has promised in private letters and that will likely be included in future technical bills or budget measures.

A list of comfort letters, issued for amendments that have not yet appeared as draft legislation, is provided in the Table of Department of Finance Comfort Letters following this Introduction.

Definitions

The Definitions annotations follow each section of the Act (except for certain Parts where the annotation falls at the end of the Part), and consist of an alphabetical list of the words and phrases in the section that are defined elsewhere in the Act, or in other applicable legislation. The Definitions annotations for the Regulations and the Income Tax Application Rules (ITARs) are also found at the end of each section.

Income Tax Regulations/ Income Tax Application Rules

Cross-references are provided where relevant. References to Draft Regulations are also provided where applicable.

References to Forms, Bulletins, Circulars, Technical News, Advance Tax Rulings, SR&ED Application Policies, Registered Plans Directorate Newsletters, Charities Policies, Charities Newsletters, CRA Transfer Pricing Memoranda, Income Tax Info Sheets, Registered Pension Plans Technical Manual, Registered Plans Compliance Bulletins, Registered Pension Plans Frequently Asked Questions, Provincial Income Allocation Newsletters, the CRA Audit Manual and RDSP Bulletins are listed following the provisions to which they relate. To save valuable research time, the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated provides the full title of these documents.

R.S.C. 1985, Fifth Supplement

The Act is properly cited as R.S.C. 1985, c. 1 (5th Supp.) and the Income Tax Act Application Rules are cited as R.S.C. 1985, c. 2 (5th Supp.). The Fifth Supplement, as amended by the Income Tax Amendments Revision Act (Bill C-15), is deemed to have come into force on March 1, 1994. Furthermore it is deemed to be of retroactive effect to December 1, 1991.

Although the sections of the Act were not renumbered in the consolidation, there was considerable renumbering within sections. As the explanatory note to the Fifth Supplement stated about the Income Tax Act and the Income Tax Application Rules:

> As a general rule, the existing provisions of both Acts have not been renumbered. As a result, provisions repealed after 1971 or omitted from the revision because they were spent may have left gaps in the numbering. The only structural changes made in the present revision concern certain definitions and some application and transitional provisions.
> Where one provision contained definitions that also applied to other Parts or provisions, especially if these were not in the immediate vicinity of the definition provision, the references to those other Parts or provisions were deleted in the existing definition provisions and new reference provisions inserted where they could be found easily. Where a definition applicable to the whole Act was found in a provision other than sections 248 to 260, it was made to apply only to its own provision or Part and a definition by reference was added to subsection 248(1).
> The Income Tax Act . . . was practically the only important Act that continued to contain some series of definitions arranged in lettered paragraphs rather than being listed alphabetically in each official language. This situation was corrected in the present revision, and in the definitions that had to be rearranged, algebraic formulae were inserted where advisable.

In addition to these more substantial changes there were hundreds of minor changes in wording to substitute "the taxpayer" for "he", and "total" for "aggregate", and the like.

The 52nd edition of the Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated continues the longstanding relationship that first originated between Stikeman Elliott LLP and Richard De Boo Limited, a company that later became part of Carswell. It was in the early 1940s that Richard De Boo first approached H. Heward Stikeman, then the Deputy Minister (Legal) of the Department of National Revenue, about fulfilling a need in the market for the publication of current and authoritative tax information for practitioners, resulting in a looseleaf publication eventually titled the Canada Tax Service. While Stikeman went on to open a tax boutique law firm in 1952, he continued his involvement and friendship with De Boo. This relationship developed over the years, eventually leading to the first edition of the Stikeman Tax Act, Annotated in 1949. The Stikeman Income Tax Act, Annotated has since developed into a leading tax publication and an invaluable resource for tax practitioners. Stikeman Elliott LLP and Carswell have continued the tradition of excellence previously established by De Boo and Stikeman, and we remain thankful to Editor-in-Chief, Richard Pound of Stikeman Elliott LLP for his dedication to maintaining and furthering this historical relationship.

As always, we welcome comments and suggestions for future editions.

Commencement of Acts

The Interpretation Act, RSC 1985, c. I-21, subsections 5(1) and (2) provide as follows:

5. (1) Royal assent — The Clerk of the Parliaments shall endorse on every Act, immediately after its title, the day, month and year when the Act was assented to in Her Majesty's name and the endorsement shall be a part of the Act.

(2) Date of commencement — If no date of commencement is provided for in an Act, the date of commencement of that Act is the date of assent to the Act.

Application of Amendments

In a "History" or "Application" note, the phrase "applicable to 19 — et seq.", used in connection with the application of an amendment, indicates that the amendment is applicable to the 19 — and subsequent taxation years.

Citation of Statutes

In 1983 and previous years, federal statutes were cited by the date of the parliamentary session. Commencing in 1984, statutes have been cited by the date of the calendar year in which Royal Assent was granted.

R.S.C. 1985 (5th Supp.)

The Income Tax Act and Income Tax Application Rules were consolidated in the 5th Supplement of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985 (as cc. 1 and 2 respectively). The cut-off date for the 5th Supplement was November 30, 1991; the coming-into-force date was March 1, 1994. The income tax amending bills that were passed between these two dates were re-drafted to conform to the R.S.C. version of the Act. These re-drafted bills were issued as Schedules I to IX of the Income Tax Amendments Revision Act, 1994, c. 7 (Bill C-15), which received Royal Assent on May 12, 1994. In the list of amending bills above, those Schedules are listed along with the original amending Bill. The relationship of those Bills and Schedules is as follows:

1991, c. 47	—	Sch. I
c. 49	—	Sch. II
1992, c. 1	—	Sch. III
c. 24	—	Sch. IV
c. 27	—	Sch. V
c. 29	—	Sch. VI
c. 48	—	Sch. VII
1993, c. 24	—	Sch. VIII
c. 27	—	Sch. IX

Sections 4 to 7 of the Income Tax Amendments Revision Act read as follows:

Interpretation of Schedules

4. Schedules assimilated to R.S.C. 1985 — A schedule shall be interpreted as if it were an amending Act contained in one of the supplements to the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985 and enacted under the authority of the Statute Revision Act and the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985 Act.

5. Application of R.S., S-20, c. 40 (3rd Supp.) and c. 2 (5th Supp.) — For greater certainty, the Statute Revision Act, the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985 Act and sections 69 and 74 to 78 of the Income Tax Application Rules apply to a schedule, with such modifications as the circumstances require.

Coming into Force

6. (1) Coming into force of Act — Subject to subsection (2), this Act comes into force, or is deemed to have come into force, on March 1, 1994.

(2) Coming into force of schedules — Subject to any provision to the contrary in the schedules, each schedule is deemed to have come into force on the day the Act referred to in the heading of the schedule was assented to.

TABLE OF PROPOSED AMENDMENTS

The following table will assist readers in finding, in the shaded boxes throughout the Act and Regulations, the proposed amendments announced at various times. If you know the subject-matter of announced changes but cannot find them in the legislation, scan the "Subject" column (or consult the Topical Index). If you know the date on which the changes were announced, use the first column, which lists the proposals in chronological order. A separate Table of Comfort Letters appears following this table.

Where proposals do not include (and have not been superseded by) draft legislation, the relevant portions of the announcement or press release are reproduced in shaded boxes under the provisions of the Act or Regulations that are expected to be amended.

Except where indicated, all press/news releases and draft legislation emanate from the federal Department of Finance, fin.gc.ca.

a The tax and surtax rates apply to both 2012 and 2013. No 2013 rate changes have been announced to date. The tax brackets and surtaxes thresholds indicated in the table are those that apply for 2012; the 2013 amounts will be indexed as outlined in the notes below.

The federal tax brackets are indexed each year by a calculated inflation factor, which is based on the change in the average federal inflation rate over the 12-month period ending December 31 of the previous year compared to the change in the rate for the same period of the year prior to that. The federal inflation factor is 2.8% for 2012.

b British Columbia indexes its tax brackets using the same formula as that used federally, but uses the provincial inflation rate rather than the federal rate in the calculation. The province's inflation factor is 2.4% for 2012. Residents of British Columbia are also required to make monthly payments under the province's Medical Services Plan.

c Saskatchewan and the territories (Northwest Territories, Nunavut and the Yukon) index their tax brackets using the same formula as that used federally. The inflation factor is 2.8% for 2012.

d Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island do not index their tax brackets or surtax thresholds. However, on the recommendation of the Minister of Finance, Nova Scotia's personal income tax brackets can be indexed starting in 2011. However, the province did not index its personal income tax brackets for 2011 or 2012.

e Ontario indexes its tax brackets and surtax thresholds using the same formula as that used federally, but uses the provincial inflation rate rather than the federal rate in the calculation. The province's inflation factor is 3.3% for 2012. The 2012 Ontario budget proposed to create a new fourth tax bracket, for individuals earning more than $500,000 in a taxation year. The proposed bracket would have a tax rate of 12.16% in 2012, and would increase to 13.16% in 2013. Ontario resident individuals with taxable income over $20,000 are also required to pay a Health Premium each year.

f Québec indexes its tax brackets using the same formula as that used federally, but uses the provincial inflation rate, excluding changes in liquor and tobacco taxes, rather than the federal rate in the calculation. The province's inflation factor is 2.66% for 2012. Residents of Québec are required to make payments to the province's Health Services Fund.

g The New Brunswick 2011 provincial budget announced that the government will delay the personal income tax rate reductions that were scheduled for 2012. As such, the tax rate on all tax brackets will remain at their 2011 levels in 2012.

New Brunswick indexes its tax brackets using the same formula as that used federally. However, for the 2010, 2011 and 2012 taxation years, if the federal inflation factor is less than 2%, then the provincial inflation factor will be 2% for that particular taxation year. Since the federal inflation factor is 2.8% for 2012, New Brunswick used 2.8% to index its tax brackets in 2012.

h Nova Scotia created a new personal income tax bracket for taxable income in excess of $150,000 effective January 1, 2010. The marginal rate for this bracket is 21%, which will remain in place until the budget is balanced. The province also suspended its high-income surtax until the budget is balanced. The surtax rate and threshold were 10% and $10,000 respectively.

On the recommendation of the Minister of Finance, Nova Scotia's personal income tax brackets can be indexed starting in 2011. We understand that legislation will be passed to make the 2011 and 2012 indexation rates 3.04% and 0%, respectively.

i Newfoundland and Labrador indexes its tax brackets using the same formula as that used federally, but uses the applicable provincial inflation rate rather than the federal rate in the calculation. Newfoundland's inflation factor is 3.1% for 2012.

The table shows the dollar amounts of federal and provincial/territorial non-refundable tax credits for 2012 (except for Québec's, which are outlined in a separate table). In order to determine the credit value, each dollar amount must be multiplied by the tax rate indicated, which is the lowest tax rate applicable in the particular jurisdiction. For example, the Ontario basic personal credit amount of $9,405 is multiplied by 5.05% to determine the credit value of $475.

Income earned by the taxpayer or dependant, as applicable, in excess of the net income thresholds shown in the table serves to reduce the availability of the credit on a dollar-for-dollar basis. The only exception to this is the age credit, which is reduced by 15% of the taxpayer's net income in excess of the threshold.

c In 2011, Manitoba enacted legislation to increase the basic, spousal and eligible dependant amounts by $1,000 over the next four years. The credits increased to $8,634 (from $8,384) in 2012, and will further increase to $8,884 in 2013 and $9,134 in 2014.

The table shows the dollar amounts of federal and provincial/territorial non-refundable tax credits for 2012 (except for Québec's, which are outlined in a separate table). In order to determine the credit value, each dollar amount must be multiplied by the tax rate indicated, which is the lowest tax rate applicable in the particular jurisdiction. For example, the Ontario basic personal credit amount of $9,405 is multiplied by 5.05% to determine the credit value of $475.

Income earned by the taxpayer or dependant, as applicable, in excess of the net income thresholds shown in the table serves to reduce the availability of the credit on a dollar-for-dollar basis. The only exception to this is the age credit, which is reduced by 15% of the taxpayer's net income in excess of the threshold.

d On the recommendation of the Minister of Finance, Nova Scotia's non-refundable tax credits could have been indexed starting in 2011. We understand that legislation will be passed to make the 2011 and 2012 indexation rates 3.04% and 0%, respectively.

e The amounts in the table referring to the "spousal/partner and wholly dependent person" only represent the spousal/partner credit. For purposes of the wholly dependent person, the amounts should read $6,294 and $629 respectively.

f The indexation factors indicated in the table are used to index the credits in each jurisdiction. The calculation of these factors is based on the change in the average federal or provincial inflation rate over the 12-month period ending September 30 of the previous year compared to the change in the rate for the same period of the year prior to that.

British Columbia, Alberta, Ontario and Newfoundland use the applicable provincial inflation rate in their calculations, while New Brunswick uses the federal inflation rate. For New Brunswick, however, for the 2010, 2011 and 2012 taxation years, if the federal inflation factor is less than 2%, then the provincial inflation factor will be 2% for that particular taxation year. Since the federal inflation factor is 2.8% for 2012, New Brunswick used 2.8% to index its tax brackets in 2012. Saskatchewan sets its own indexation factor each fall. Manitoba and Prince Edward Island do not index their credits. Nova Scotia could have begun indexing its non-refundable credits starting in 2011. We understand that legislation will be passed to make the 2011 and 2012 indexation rates 3.04% and 0%, respectively.

The federal pension and education and textbook credit amounts are not indexed. The same is true for all provinces, with the exception of Alberta and Ontario.

The Northwest Territories, Nunavut and Yukon use the federal inflation rate.

g The spousal/partner credit may be claimed for a common-law partner as well as for a spouse. Taxpayers who are single, divorced or separated, and who support a dependant in their home may claim the wholly dependent person credit. The credit can be claimed for dependants under the age of 18 who are related to the taxpayer, for the taxpayer's parents or grandparents, or for any other infirm person who is related to the taxpayer. If either the federal spousal/partner or wholly dependent tax credit is claimed for an infirm person, then the claim may be increased by $300 ($2,000 × 15%) (see note (o)).

The 2012 Nova Scotia budget proposed increasing its spousal/partner and wholly dependent amounts to $8,481 (from $7,201).

h The federal infirm dependant tax credit amount reflects a $2,000 enhancement introduced in the 2011 federal budget as the family caregiver tax credit, which is generally available for dependants with infirmities. See note (o) for additional details.

i The federal child tax credit may be claimed by parents for each child under age 18 at the end of the year. If the federal child tax credit is claimed for an infirm person, then the claim may be increased by $300 ($2,000 × 15%) (see note (o)). Unused credit amounts may be transferred between spouses. Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island provide a similar credit for children under the age of 6. If certain conditions are met, an individual can claim $100 per eligible month for a maximum of $1,200 per year.

In 2011, Newfoundland introduced a non-refundable child care credit that allows for a maximum of $7,000 of child care expenses to be claimed for children up to 7 years of age, for a maximum credit of $539, and $4,000 for children aged 7 to 16, for a maximum credit of $308.

j The adoption credit is available on eligible adoption expenses incurred in the year and not reimbursed to the taxpayer, up to a maximum amount of what is indicated in the table.

k The disability, pension and age credits are transferable to a spouse or partner. The amounts available for transfer are reduced by the excess of the spouse's or partner's net income over the basic personal credit amount. The disability credit is also transferable to a supporting person other than a spouse or partner; however, the amount of the credit is reduced by the excess of the disabled person's net income over the basic personal credit amount.

The Nova Scotia budget proposed increasing the disability amount to $7,341 (from $5,035).

l The disability supplement may be claimed by an individual who is under the age of 18 at the end of the year. The amount in the table represents the maximum amount that may be claimed, and is reduced by certain child and attendant care expenses claimed in respect of this individual.

m Saskatchewan also provides an additional non-refundable tax credit for individuals aged 65 or older in the year, regardless of their net income amount. The amount for 2012 is $1,202.

n The medical expense credit is calculated based on qualified medical expenses exceeding 3% of net income or the threshold shown in the table, whichever is less. Medical expenses incurred by both spouses/partners and by their children under age 18 may be totalled and claimed by either spouse/partner. Before 2011, a taxpayer could also claim up to $10,000 of medical expenses in respect of a dependant who is 18 or older, but the expenses were reduced by the lesser of 3% of the dependant's net income or the medical threshold. This $10,000 limit (or similar amount) on medical expenses claimed for a dependent relative has been eliminated for all provinces except Ontario. (While Alberta and Nova Scotia's legislation allows for a limit on medical expenses similar to the federal $10,000 limit, both provinces have stopped applying it for taxation years ending after 2010.) For Québec rules, see tables I-3 and I-4.

o The caregiver credit is available to taxpayers who care for a related dependant in their home. The dependant must be over the age of 18 and infirm, or, in the case of a parent or grandparent, over the age of 65.

A new family caregiver tax credit of up to $300 ($2,000 × 15%) will be available for caregivers of dependants with a mental or physical infirmity including spouses and minor children. If eligible, you can claim this credit as an enhancement to one of the existing dependency-related credits: the spousal credit, child tax credit, wholly dependent credit, caregiver credit or infirm dependant credit.

p The federal employment credit may be claimed by individuals based on the lesser of the amount indicated in the table and the amount of employment income earned in the year.

q Self-employed taxpayers can deduct 50% of their Canada or Québec Pension Plan premiums in calculating net income. The balance is claimed as a non-refundable tax credit. Proposed amendments will allow self-employed taxpayers to claim Employment Insurance premiums paid, beginning in 2010.

r Individuals can claim a federal credit in respect of the cost of monthly transit passes (or passes of a longer duration) incurred for travel by the individual, their spouse or partner, or dependent children under age 19. The costs of certain electronic payment cards and certain weekly public transit passes may also be claimed.

Nova Scotia and Ontario propose a credit similar to the federal non-refundable tax credit.

Yukon also offers a transit pass credit for individuals who meet the federal eligibility requirements.

s The federal children's fitness credit is available for fees paid for the enrolment of a child, under the age of 16 at the beginning of the year in which the expenses are paid, in an eligible program of physical activity, to a maximum of $500 per child. If the child is eligible for the disability tax credit, the age limit increases to under the age of 18 and the claimable amount may increase to $1,000 when a minimum of $100 is paid on eligible expenses.

Manitoba also has a similar credit claimable for children under the age of 18. This credit includes claims for fitness activities by young adults up to the age of 24. The claimable amounts may increase to $1,000 if the child or individual is eligible for the disability tax credit.

The 2012 British Columbia budget proposed a children's fitness credit effective for 2012 and later years. This non-refundable tax credit of up to $500 (or $1,000 for an individual eligible for the disability tax credit) will mirror the federal qualifications.

Ontario offers a refundable credit (up to a maximum of $53 per child under 16) for eligible activities as defined by the province. Ontario's refundable credit increases to a maximum of $105 if the child is under 18 and is eligible for the disability tax credit.

Nova Scotia offers a credit for sport and recreational expenses incurred for an eligible child under the age of 18 to a maximum of $500 per child.

Saskatchewan offers a refundable credit (up to a maximum of $150) for eligible children aged 6 to 14 as defined by the province. Saskatchewan's 2012 budget extended this credit to children under the age of 18 in 2012.

In 2008, Alberta proposed the organized physical activity non-refundable credit of no more than $500, but this credit has not yet entered into force.

Yukon also offers a children's fitness credit, to a maximum of $500 per child, for Yukon residents who meet the federal eligibility requirements.

t The federal government provides an arts tax credit for eligible amounts up to $500 per year per child. The credit is available for fees paid for the enrolment of a child under the age of 16 at the beginning of the year in an eligible program of artistic, cultural, recreational or developmental activities. The credit applies to eligible amounts paid in 2011 and later years. If the child is eligible for the disability tax credit, the age limit increases to under the age of 18 and the credit may be claimed on an additional $500 when a minimum of $100 is paid on eligible expenses.

Manitoba provides a children's arts and cultural activity tax credit for eligible amounts up to $500 per year per child. The credit is available for fees paid for the enrolment of a child under 16 years old at the beginning of the year in an eligible program of organized and supervised arts and cultural activities. Eligible activities include supervised lessons in music, dramatic arts, dance and visual arts; language instruction; and natural environment and wilderness activities. If the child is eligible for the disability tax credit and is under 18 years old at the beginning of the year, the credit may be claimed on an additional $500 disability supplement amount when a minimum of $100 is paid on eligible expenses.

The 2012 British Columbia budget proposed a children's arts credit effective for 2012 and later years. This non-refundable tax credit of up to $500 (or $1,000 for an individual eligible for the disability tax credit) will mirror the federal qualifications.

u First-time home buyers who acquire a qualifying home during the year may be entitled to claim a federal non-refundable tax credit up to $5,000 and worth up to $750 ($5,000 × 15%).

To qualify, neither the individual nor his or her spouse or common-law partner can have owned and lived in another home in the calendar year of the new home purchase or in any of the four preceding calendar years. The credit can be claimed by either the purchaser or by his or her spouse or common-law partner.

The credit will also be available for certain home purchases by or for the benefit of an individual eligible for the disability tax credit.

Saskatchewan's 2012 budget proposed a First-Time Home Buyers Tax Credit that will provide a non-refundable income tax credit of up to $1,100 (11% × $10,000) to eligible taxpayers. There will also be provisions to allow persons with a disability to qualify for the purchase of more accessible homes, with eligibility rules similar to those for the existing federal incentive for first-time home buyers. The credit will generally apply to qualifying homes acquired after December 31, 2011.

British Columbia's 2012 budget also proposed a First-Time New Home Buyers Bonus effective from February 21, 2012 to March 31, 2013. The bonus will be a refundable credit equal to 5% of the purchase price of a newly constructed home, up to a maximum of $10,000. The credit will be phased out at a rate of 20% of net income in excess of $150,000 for single individuals and at a rate of 10% of family income in excess of $150,000 for couples. Only one credit can be claimed per home.

v Amounts paid for tuition and mandatory ancillary fees in respect of the calendar year are eligible for federal and provincial tax credits. In 2011, the federal Tuition Tax Credit was amended to recognize fees paid to an educational institution, professional association, provincial ministry or similar institution to take an examination that is required to obtain professional status recognized by federal or provincial statute, or to be licensed or certified to practice a profession or trade in Canada. This measure applies to eligible amounts paid for examinations taken in 2011 and later years.

Students may also claim for federal purposes a monthly amount in respect of the cost of textbooks, which is added to the monthly education amount. The monthly textbook credit amount is $65 for full-time students and $20 for part-time students.

The federal pension and education and textbook credit amounts are not indexed. The same is true for all provinces, with the exception of Alberta and Ontario.

The tuition, education and textbook credits are transferable to a spouse or common-law partner, parent or grandparent. The maximum amount transferable is $5,000 (indexed in some provinces) less the excess of the student's net income over the basic personal credit amount. Any amounts not transferred may be carried forward indefinitely by the student.

Interest paid on student loans is also eligible for both a federal and provincial tax credit. The tax credit must be claimed by the student, and can be carried forward for five years.

w Charitable donations made by both spouses/partners may be totalled and claimed by either person. The maximum amount of donations that may be claimed in a year is 75% of net income. However, all donations may be carried forward for five years if they are not claimed in the year made. While New Brunswick's legislation indicates that donations over $200 should earn a tax credit at a rate of 14.3%, the province is currently applying a rate of 17.95%.

Notes:

a Québec's credit rate is applied to the dollar amounts shown in the table to determine the credit value. For example, the basic personal credit amount of $10,925 is multiplied by 20% to determine the credit value of $2,185.

The unused portion of all non-refundable credits may be transferred from one spouse/partner to another, but only after all credits have been taken into account in the calculation of the individual's income tax otherwise payable.

b Québec indexes its tax credits each year by using an inflation factor that is calculated based on the provincial rate of inflation, excluding changes in liquor and tobacco taxes. The Québec inflation factor is 2.66% for 2012.

c This credit is available for a dependent child who is under the age of 18 and is engaged in full-time professional training or post-secondary studies for each completed term, to a maximum of two semesters per year per dependant. It is also available for infirm dependants who are engaged in such activities part-time. The amount claimed is reduced by 80% of the dependant's income for the year, calculated without including any scholarships, fellowships or awards received during the year.

d An eligible student is able to transfer to either parent an amount relating to an unused portion of their basic personal credit amount for the year (transfer mechanism for the recognized parental contribution). Each taxation year, the amount that can be transferred must not exceed the limit applicable for that particular year ($7,200 for 2012).

e This credit is available if the dependant, other than the spouse, is related to the taxpayer by blood, marriage or adoption and ordinarily lives with the taxpayer. In order to be eligible for the tax credit, the taxpayer must also not have benefited from a transfer of the recognized parental contribution from this dependant. The amount claimed must be reduced by 80% of the dependant's income, calculated without including any scholarships, fellowships or awards received during the year.

f The amounts for a person living alone or with a dependant for being 65 years of age or over and for pension income are added together and reduced by 15% of net family income. Net family income is the total income of both spouses/partners minus $31,695.

g This credit is available if the individual lives in a self-contained domestic establishment that he maintains and in which no other person, other than himself, a minor person, or an eligible student lives. If the individual is living with an eligible student, for the purposes of the transfer mechanism for the recognized parental contribution (see note (d)), the individual may be able to add an amount for a single-parent family of $1,585 to the basic amount for a person living alone.

h This new tax credit is available beginning in 2012 for workers who are 65 years of age or older. It will apply to a portion of eligible work income that exceeds the first $5,000. This portion is equal to $3,000 in 2012 and will gradually increase to $10,000 in 2016. The unused portion of the tax credit may not be carried forward or transferred to the individual's spouse.

Eligible work income includes salary and business income but excludes taxable benefits received regarding a previous employment as well as amounts deducted in computing taxable income, such as the stock option deduction.

i The credit for union and professional dues is calculated based on the annual fees paid in the year. The portion of professional dues relating to liability insurance is allowed as a deduction from income and therefore not included in calculating the credit amount.

j The tuition credit is calculated based on tuition, professional examination and mandatory ancillary fees paid for the calendar year. The student may transfer the unused portion of the tuition credit to either one of his parents or grandparents. The portion of this credit that is not transferred will be available for future use by the student. Interest paid on student loans but unclaimed in a particular year may be carried forward indefinitely.

k The medical expense credit is calculated based on qualified medical expenses in excess of 3% of family income. Family income is the total income of both spouses/partners.

l Charitable donations made by both spouses/partners may be totalled and claimed by either person. The maximum amount of donations that may be claimed in a year is 75% of net income. However, all donations may be carried forward for five years if they are not claimed in the year made.

Notes:

a Québec's credit rate, maximum expense eligible and method of calculation of the credit vary from one type of refundable credit to another. Québec's credit rate is applied to the dollar amounts in the table to determine the maximum credit value. For example, the adoption expense credit amount of $20,000 is multiplied by 50% to determine the maximum credit value of $10,000. Some refundable credits are reduced when thresholds are exceeded.

b Québec provides a refundable tax credit equal to the total of 25% of medical expenses eligible for the non-refundable credit (see table I-3) and 25% of the amount deducted for impairment support products and services. The maximum amount is $1,103 for 2012, reduced by 5% of family income in excess of $21,340.

c Québec indexes various tax credits each year by using an inflation factor that is calculated based on the provincial rate of inflation, excluding changes in liquor and tobacco taxes. The Québec inflation factor is 2.66% for 2012.

d Unlike the federal treatment of qualifying child care expenses, which are eligible for a deduction in computing net income, Québec provides a refundable tax credit for such expenses. Child care expenses paid in the year are eligible for a credit at a rate that varies from 26% to 75%. The rate of credit falls as net family income rises.

In general, the maximum amount of expenses eligible for credit is the lesser of:

- $10,000 for a child of any age who has a severe or prolonged mental or physical impairment, plus $9,000 for a child under the age of 7, plus $4,000 for a child under the age of 17, or
- the actual child care expenses incurred in the year.

The definition of eligible expenses includes costs incurred during the period an individual receives benefits under the Québec Parental Insurance Plan or the Employment Insurance Plan (see table I-7). The child care expenses are not limited by the earned income of the parent.

e Québec provides a refundable tax credit equal to 50% of specified adoption expenses, to a maximum of $20,000 of qualifying expenses. This represents a maximum annual credit of $10,000. Qualifying expenses include court and legal fees paid to obtain the final adoption order, travel and accommodation expenses for foreign adoptions, translation expenses, and fees charged by foreign and domestic social agencies.

f The infertility treatment tax credit is refundable and is equal to 50% of all eligible expenses paid by an individual or his or her spouse/partner in a year to a maximum of $20,000. This represents a maximum annual credit of $10,000 per couple.

g There are three components to this credit. The first component applies to caregivers who house an eligible relative in their home where the relative is 70 years of age or older or is an adult with a severe and prolonged mental or physical impairment. The second component applies to informal caregivers who live in an eligible relative's home and a physician has attested that the relative is unable to live alone due to a severe and prolonged mental or physical impairment. Finally, the third component applies to caregivers whose spouse is aged 70 years of age or older, or has a severe and prolonged mental or physical impairment, and the couple lives in their own home other than in a seniors' residence.

This refundable tax credit of up to $1,104 per eligible relative consists of a basic amount of $607, plus a supplement of $497. The credit amount is reduced by 16% of the eligible relative's income over $22,075. Note that caregivers caring for an elderly spouse are not entitled to the supplement amount, although the 2012 Québec budget proposed to increase the amount of the credit to $700 in such cases.

For the purposes of this credit, an eligible relative is a child, grandchild, nephew, niece, brother, sister, uncle, aunt, great-uncle, great-aunt or any other direct ascendant of the individual or the individual's spouse.

h Caregivers can also claim a refundable tax credit for respite services. For 2012, this refundable tax credit is equal to 30% of the total qualifying expenses paid in the year, to a maximum of $5,200. Qualifying expenses include specialized respite services respecting the care and supervision of an eligible person. The maximum annual credit of $1,560 must be reduced by 3% of the caregiver's family income in excess of the annual threshold of $53,465. If the expense has been used in calculating another refundable or non-refundable credit, it cannot be claimed for this credit as well.

i The refundable tax credit for home support can be claimed by persons age 70 and over living in their home. For individuals not recognized as dependent seniors, the tax credit is equal to 30% of a maximum amount of eligible expenses of $15,600, for a maximum refundable tax credit of $4,680. For individuals recognized as dependent seniors, the tax credit is equal to 30% of a maximum amount of eligible expenses of $21,600, for a maximum refundable tax credit of $6,480. The tax credit is reduced by 3% of the individual's family income in excess of the annual threshold of $53,465. If the expense also qualifies for the medical expense credit, it cannot be claimed for this credit as well.

j Québec's 2012 budget proposed a new refundable tax credit for individuals aged 70 years or older equal to 20% of the costs incurred for their stay in a private or public rehabilitation centre for functional rehabilitation purposes, up to a maximum period of 60 days, where the individual has a geriatric profile and presents a potential for recovery with a view to returning home following hospitalization.

k The 2012 Québec budget proposed a new refundable tax credit beginning in 2012, for seniors of 70 years of age or older equal to 20% of the portion, in excess of $500, of the total amounts paid in the year for the purchase or rental (including installation costs) of equipment to be used in the senior's principal residence to improve their safety and security. Examples of qualifying equipment include remote monitoring systems, GPS tracking devices for persons, and walk-in bathtubs or showers.

Notes:

a The federal and provincial/territorial tax rates shown in the tables apply to income earned by corporations other than Canadian-controlled private corporations (CCPCs). A general corporation typically includes public companies and their subsidiaries that are resident in Canada, and Canadian-resident private companies that are controlled by non-residents.

For tax rates applicable to CCPCs, see tables C-5 to C-8 and their related Notes.

b The federal and provincial/territorial tax rates shown in the tables apply to investment income earned by general corporations other than capital gains and dividends received from Canadian corporations. The rates that apply to capital gains are one-half of the rates shown in the tables. Dividends received from Canadian corporations are deductible in computing regular Part I tax, but may be subject to Part IV tax, calculated at a rate of 33⅓%.

c Corporations that derive at least 10% of their gross revenue for the year from manufacturing or processing goods in Canada for sale or lease can claim the manufacturing and processing (M&P) deduction against their M&P income.

d A general tax rate reduction is available on qualifying income. Income that is eligible for other reductions or credits, such as small business income, M&P income, and investment income subject to the refundable provisions, is not eligible for this rate reduction.

The corporate income tax rate began decreasing in 2008 and continued to decrease until it reached a target rate of 15% on January 1, 2012. The rate reduction increased to 13% (from 11.5%) on January 1, 2012.

e British Columbia's 2012 budget announced that the general corporate income tax rate will be increased to 11% (from 10%) on a temporary basis, effective April 1, 2014, if the province's fiscal situation worsens.

f Saskatchewan's 2012 budget announced a tax rebate that will generally reduce the general corporation income tax rate on income earned from the rental of newly constructed qualifying multi-unit residential projects by 10%. The rebate generally will be available for a period of 10 consecutive years for rental housing that is registered under a building permit dated on or after March 21, 2012 and before January 1, 2014, and available for rent before the end of 2016.

g Ontario's general corporate income tax rate started decreasing on July 1, 2010 and was scheduled to decrease each July 1 thereafter until it reached a target rate of 10% on July 1, 2013.

However, the province's 2012 budget announced a freeze in the corporate rate at 11.5%.

h The Yukon Territory provides a manufacturing and processing tax credit that effectively reduces the corporate tax rate on the corporation's Canadian manufacturing and processing profits earned in the year in the Yukon to 2.5%.

Notes:

a The federal and provincial/territorial tax rates shown in the tables apply to income earned by a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC). In general, a corporation is a CCPC if the corporation is a private corporation and a Canadian corporation, provided it is not controlled by one or more non-resident persons, by a public corporation, by a corporation with a class of shares listed on a designated stock exchange, or by any combination of these, and provided it does not have a class of shares listed on a designated stock exchange.

For tax rates applicable to general corporations, see tables C-1 to C-4 and their related Notes.

b See table C-9 and its related Notes for changes in the federal and provincial/territorial small business income thresholds for 2012 to 2014.

For 2010 and subsequent years, Manitoba and Nova Scotia's provincial small business income thresholds are the only thresholds below the federal amount. For these provinces, a median tax rate applies to active business income between the provincial and federal threshold. The median tax rate is based on the federal small business rate and the applicable provincial general active business rate. For example, in 2012, Nova Scotia's combined rate on active business income between $400,000 and $500,000 is 27% (i.e., 11% federally and 16% provincially).

c The general corporate tax rate applies to active business income earned in excess of $500,000. See table C-9 and its Notes for changes in the federal and provincial/territorial small business income thresholds for 2012 to 2014.

CCPCs that earn income from manufacturing and processing (M&P) activities are subject to the same rates as those that apply to general corporations. See tables C-1 to C-4 and their related Notes.

d The federal and provincial/territorial tax rates shown in the tables apply to investment income earned by a CCPC, other than capital gains and dividends received from Canadian corporations. The rates that apply to capital gains are one-half of the rates shown in the table. Dividends received from Canadian corporations are deductible in computing regular Part I tax, but may be subject to Part IV tax, calculated at a rate of $33^{1/3}$%.

e Corporations that are CCPCs throughout the year may claim the small business deduction (SBD). In general, the SBD is equal to 17% of the least of three amounts — active business income earned in Canada, taxable income and the small business income threshold.

f A general tax rate reduction is available on qualifying income. Income that is eligible for other reductions or credits, such as small business income, M&P income and investment income subject to the refundable provisions, is not eligible for this rate reduction. A "personal services business" will also not be eligible to claim the general tax rate reduction effective for taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011 under the draft technical amendments released by the Department of Finance on October 31, 2011.

The corporate income tax rate began decreasing in 2008 and continued to decrease until it reached a target rate of 15% on January 1, 2012. The rate reduction therefore increased to 13% (from 11.5%) on January 1, 2012.

g The refundable tax of $6^{2/3}$% of a CCPC's investment income and capital gains, as well as 20% of such income that is subject to regular Part I tax, is included in the corporation's Refundable Dividend Tax on Hand (RDTOH) account. When taxable dividends (eligible and non-eligible) are paid out to shareholders, a dividend refund equal to the lesser of $33^{1/3}$% of the dividends paid or the balance in the RDTOH account is refunded to the corporation.

h British Columbia's 2012 budget confirmed that the general corporate income tax rate will remain at 10% and the small business rate will remain at 2.5% for 2012.

In its 2012 budget, the province proposed to increase its general corporate income tax rate to 11% (from 10%), effective January 1, 2014 should the province's fiscal situation worsen.

i Saskatchewan's 2012 budget proposed a tax rebate that will generally reduce the general corporate income tax rate on income earned from the rental of newly constructed qualifying multi-unit residential projects by 10%. The rebate generally will be available for a period of 10 consecutive years for rental housing that is registered under a building permit dated on or after March 21, 2012 and before January 31, 2014, and available for rent before the end of 2016.

j Ontario's general corporate income tax rate started decreasing on July 1, 2010, and was scheduled to decrease each July 1 thereafter until it reaches a target rate of 10% on July 1, 2013.

However, the province's 2012 budget announced a freeze in the corporate rate at 11.5%.

k New Brunswick's small business rate reduced to 4.5% (from 5%) effective January 1, 2012.

l Nova Scotia's small business rate decreased to 4% (from 4.5%) on January 1, 2012. A further reduction to 3.5% (from 4.0%) on January 1, 2013 was introduced in the province's 2012 budget.

m The Yukon Territory provides a manufacturing and processing tax credit that effectively reduces the corporate tax rate on the corporation's Canadian manufacturing and processing profits earned in the year in the Yukon to 2.5% (from 4.0%).

Notes:

a The small business income thresholds shown in the table apply to active business income earned by a Canadian-controlled private corporation (CCPC) that is eligible for the small business rate of tax (see tables C-5 to C-8). All thresholds must be prorated for taxation years that straddle the effective date of the changes indicated, and must be shared by associated corporations.

b The federal small business threshold is reduced on a straight-line basis when the associated group's taxable capital (as computed by what was in the past referred to as Large Corporations Tax) employed in Canada in the preceding year is between $10 million and $15 million. This clawback applies to all provinces, with the exception of Ontario, which has its own clawback mechanism (see note (c) below).

c Ontario levies a surtax at a rate of 4.25% on CCPCs claiming the Ontario small business deduction in order to gradually reduce the benefit of the deduction where taxable income exceeds the small business income threshold. Based on the small business limit of $500,000, the phase-out range for the application of the surtax is between $500,000 and $1.5 million. The province eliminated this small business deduction surtax effective July 1, 2010 and as a result, all CCPCs will benefit from the small business deduction on the first $500,000 of active business income (shared between associated corporations) irrespective of the corporation's taxable income.

d Québec's small business deduction is available to CCPCs with paid-up capital (on an associated basis) of less than $10 million, and is phased out for CCPCs with paid-up capital between $10 and $15 million.

e Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland & Labrador, Northwest Territories and Nunavut all follow the federal increases in the threshold, as the small business provisions in their corporate tax legislation are tied to the federal provisions.

DIVISION B — COMPUTATION OF INCOME

Basic Rules

3. Income for taxation year — The income of a taxpayer for a taxation year for the purposes of this Part is the taxpayer's income for the year determined by the following rules:

(a) determine the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's income for the year (other than a taxable capital gain from the disposition of a property) from a source inside or outside Canada, including, without restricting the generality of the foregoing, the taxpayer's income for the year from each office, employment, business and property,

(b) determine the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of

(A) all of the taxpayer's taxable capital gains for the year from dispositions of property other than listed personal property, and

(B) the taxpayer's taxable net gain for the year from dispositions of listed personal property,

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the taxpayer's allowable capital losses for the year from dispositions of property other than listed personal property exceed the taxpayer's allowable business investment losses for the year,

(c) determine the amount, if any, by which the total determined under paragraph (a) plus the amount determined under paragraph (b) exceeds the total of the deductions permitted by subdivision e in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (except to the extent that those deductions, if any, have been taken into account in determining the total referred to in paragraph (a)), and

(d) determine the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (c) exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's loss for the year from an office, employment, business or property or the taxpayer's allowable business investment loss for the year,

Proposed Amendment — on hold — 3(d)

(d) determine the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under paragraph (c) exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the taxpayer's loss for the year from a source that is an office, employment, business or property or the taxpayer's allowable business investment loss for the year,

Application: The October 31, 2003 draft legislation (REOP). s. 1, would have amended para. 3(d) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004 (but see Application note to 3.1).

Technical Notes: Both of these changes [see also 111(8)"non-capital loss"E — ed.] are consequential amendments to proposed new subsection 3.1(1), and clarify that it is only losses that are from a source that may be deducted in computing a taxpayer's income or considered to be non-capital losses under subsection 111(8).

and for the purposes of this Part,

(e) where an amount is determined under paragraph (d) for the year in respect of the taxpayer, the taxpayer's income for the year is the amount so determined, and

(f) in any other case, the taxpayer shall be deemed to have income for the year in an amount equal to zero.

Related Provisions: 3.1 [proposed] — Reasonable expectation of profit required for taxpayer to have loss from business or property; 66(14) — Amount deductible under ITAR 29 deemed deductible under subdivision e; 94(3)(a)(ii) [proposed] — Application to trust deemed resident in Canada; 115(1)(b), (b.1), (c) — Application of s. 3 to a non-resident; 146.2(7) — No tax on income received in TFSA.

Proposed Addition — 3.1 — Reasonable Expectation of Profit required [to be changed]

3.1 (1) Limit on loss [REOP required] — A taxpayer has a loss for a taxation year from a source that is a business or property only if, in the year, it is reasonable to expect that the taxpayer will realize a cumulative profit from that business or property for the period in which the taxpayer has carried on, and can reasonably be expected to carry on, that business or has held, and can reasonably be expected to hold, that property.

(2) Determination of profit — For the purpose of subsection (1), profit is determined without reference to capital gains or capital losses.

Related Provisions: 9(3) — Same rule in determining business profit or loss.

Application: The October 31, 2003 draft legislation (REOP), s. 2, would have added s. 3.1, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004. [See however the comments in the March 23, 2004 Budget Supplementary Information, reproduced below.]

Technical Notes: The following notes have been prepared to help taxpayers and tax professionals understand the attached legislative proposals. The notes are not an official interpretation of either the existing law or the proposals they describe.

Since the attached proposals are intended to be the subject of extensive consultation, these notes have been drafted in a relatively informal style and include several examples.

The Department of Finance invites readers to provide written comments on the attached proposals. Submissions may be made to: Tax Legislation Division, Department of Finance, 140 O'Connor St. Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0G5

Proposed new subsection 3.1(1) provides that a taxpayer will be considered to have a loss from a source that is a business or property for a taxation year only if, in that year, it is reasonable to assume that taxpayer will realize a cumulative profit from the business or property,

- in the case of a business, during the time that the taxpayer has carried on, or can reasonably be expected to carry on, the business, or
- in the case of a property, during the time that the taxpayer has held, or can reasonably be expected to hold, the property.

Proposed new subsection 3.1(2) makes clear that profit, in the context of subsection 3.1(1), does not include capital gains or capital losses.

The commentary that follows elaborates on key features of these provisions and illustrates their application through the use of examples.

Timing

There are two key timing elements in this provision: the time at which an assessment is required regarding the reasonable expectation of profit from the business or property, and the time period (referred to below as the "profitability time period") over which the profitability expectations of the business or property will be measured.

Annual Evaluation

Regard must be had to subsection 3.1(1) in each year that a taxpayer seeks to report a loss from a business or property. For example, assume that a taxpayer starts a business ("Business X") in 2005 and — before applying new subsection 3.1(1) — is considered to realize losses from the business in the taxpayer's 2005, 2006, 2007 and 2008 taxation years. For each of those years, an application of subsection 3.1(1) will be required. For the 2005 taxation year, the test under the subsection is whether it is reasonable in that same 2005 taxation year to expect that the taxpayer will realize a cumulative profit from Business X over the whole of the profitability time period. For 2006 the test is whether it is reasonable in the 2006 taxation year to expect a cumulative profit, again over the whole of the profitability time period. And for each successive year, the same test will be applied: is it reasonable in that year to expect the taxpayer to profit from the business over the entire profitability time period?

Assume further that in each of the taxpayer's 2005 to 2007 taxation years it is determined that it is indeed reasonable to expect that the taxpayer will profit from Business X over the profitability time period. The taxpayer will therefore have a loss, for each of those years, from the source that is Business X. However, if by 2008 it is no longer reasonable to expect that the taxpayer will realize a profit over the period that the taxpayer has, or can reasonably be expected to, carry on Business X, the test in new subsection 3.1(1) will not be met for the 2008 taxation year. The loss in 2008 will not be considered to be from a source and will not be deductible by the taxpayer. However, this determination in 2008 will not affect the previous conclusions reached in years 2005 through 2007: the losses for each of those years remain deductible.

Profitability Time Period

In determining whether it is reasonable to expect a taxpayer to realize a profit from a business or property, new subsection 3.1(1) has regard to the entire period over which the taxpayer holds the property or carries on the business. The beginning of that "profitability time period" will usually be uncontroversial: it is the time at which the taxpayer acquired the property or commenced carrying on the business. There may occasionally be cases where that starting point is not obvious, but it is expected that the existing law and practice will be able to resolve those.

Determining the end of the profitability time period, on the other hand, will often be more an exercise of reasonable expectation. The period runs, in principle, until the taxpayer disposes of the property or ceases to carry on the business. In most instances, however, this will not have happened before the end of the taxation year to which subsection 3.1(1) is being applied. Rather, the taxpayer will be seeking to deduct a loss from a property or business that the taxpayer still plans to hold or to carry on for some time to come. Subsection 3.1(1) therefore includes in its scope the entire period in which the taxpayer "can reasonably be expected" to carry on the business or to hold the property.

Cumulative Profit

Proposed subsection 3.1(1) requires an evaluation of expectations for cumulative profit and losses, by which is meant the aggregate profit or loss over the entire profitability time period. It is thus not necessary that the taxpayer demonstrate an expectation of profit — let alone an actual profit — in respect of any particular taxation year in order to be considered to have a reasonable expectation of profit. For instance, taxpayers will often realize a start-up loss from a business or property for one or more years before the business or property begins to generate a profit. The opposite can also happen: a taxpayer may realize a profit in one year and a loss in a subsequent year. In each instance, the relevant test is the expectation of cumulative profit over the whole of the profitability time period, and a taxpayer would be able to claim a loss provided their expectations for a cumulative profit over the entire relevant time period were reasonable.

Fact-Specific

Proposed subsection 3.1(1) requires that it must be reasonable in the circumstances of the particular taxpayer to expect to profit from the property or business. A specific taxpayer would not necessarily have a reasonable expectation of profit from a particular property solely because it might be reasonable, in other circumstances, for that property to yield a profit. For example, a rental property that produces rental revenue in excess of directly related rental expenses might on those facts alone be viewed as a property that should provide a taxpayer with a reasonable expectation of profit. However, if a particular taxpayer incurs a large amount of debt in order to purchase the property, such that the amount of interest expense associated with the property means that the particular taxpayer cannot realize a profit from the rental activity, then that taxpayer would not have a reasonable expectation of profit in respect of that rental activity. Note that in such circumstances, the taxpayer may intend to profit by reselling the property itself at a gain. If that were the taxpayer's intention, the gain would presumably be considered on income account and could be included in the determination of profit for the purposes of subsection 3.1(1). See the commentary to proposed subsection 3.1(2).

Objective Determination

By requiring that the profit expectation be reasonable, it is intended that the determination be made on an objective, and not a subjective, basis. This will very often make no difference to the result of the determination as most taxpayers are expected to act on a commercially rational basis. However, where a taxpayer has — or purports to have — expectations of profit that are objectively unreasonable, subjective beliefs will not suffice. For example, consider a taxpayer who borrows funds at an annual fixed rate of 8%, and uses those funds (and no others) to make an investment that has a fixed annual return of 5%. Further assume that the investment itself cannot increase in value. In this case, there is no reasonable expectation of profit, regardless of whether, on a subjective basis, the misinformed investor intended to profit. With no reasonable expectation of profit, the taxpayer will not be considered to have realized a loss from a source that is the investment. On the other hand, given that the taxpayer has expenses that exceed the revenue generated by the investment, it would be inappropriate to tax any amount of that revenue.

The above example also highlights that the test in proposed subsection 3.1(1) will not necessarily be met solely because there is no personal element to the carrying on of a business or the holding of a property.

Not Every Business Is a Source

The distinction between a business and a source of income or loss is important to understanding proposed section 3.1. The Act recognizes, and taxes, income only if it is income from a source. Similarly, a loss is deductible only if it is a loss from a source. Section 3.1 is intended to clarify that, in respect of businesses, it is only those losses from businesses that taxpayers carry on with a reasonable expectation of profit that are to be considered as losses from a source. This implies that a taxpayer may be conducting a business without the taxpayer having a reasonable expectation of profit from that business. This implication is deliberate, and is consistent with the description of "business" in subsection 248(1) and the general understanding that a business may exist whenever a taxpayer has the subjective intention to make a profit, whether or not there is objectively a reasonable expectation of profit.

That is to say that the fact that a taxpayer is carrying on a business, and incurs expenses that exceed revenues, does not by itself mean that the business is a source, such that the taxpayer may deduct the excess. Rather, as proposed section 3.1 makes clear, the taxpayer has a loss from a source that is that business only if the taxpayer has a reasonable expectation of profit from that business.

Asymmetrical: No Rule on Income

Proposed subsection 3.1(1) is not symmetrical, in that it does not address the circumstances under which income will be considered to be from a source. This is intentional, and the provision should not be construed as suggesting that a taxpayer has a source of income only where the taxpayer has a reasonable expectation of profit from that source. A system that allowed taxpayers to prove the unreasonableness of their profit expectations in an effort to have, on that basis, untaxed income, would be inappropriate.

Profit and Subsection 3.1(2)

The reference to "profit" in proposed subsection 3.1(1) is intended to mean profit determined in accordance with generally accepted commercial principles. This is consistent with case law and the meaning of "profit" for the purposes of subsection 9(1).

Personal expenses are generally not incurred for the purpose of earning profit from a business or property. Therefore, in assessing the profitability expectations of a property or business personal expenses would first need to be eliminated.

Proposed subsection 3.1(2) makes clear that profit, in the context of subsection 3.1(1), does not include capital gains or capital losses. For example, consider a taxpayer who purchases a rental property for the purpose of leasing it to non-arm's-length persons. The taxpayer estimates that the expenses of financing and maintaining the property will exceed the revenue from the rental activity. Nonetheless, despite what appears to be a money-losing venture, the taxpayer chooses to purchase the property with the expectation that a gain on the sale of the property will make up for the losses from the rental activity. In a sense, the rental activity could be viewed as a cost-defraying activity for what is really a property purchased with the intention to profit from its resale. In determining whether the taxpayer has a reasonable expectation of profit from this property, the expected gain on the sale of the rental property would be included in the determination of "profit" only if it would be taxed not as a capital gain, but rather as ordinary income.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 18, 2003: Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses

[See under 20(1)(c) — ed.]

Dept. of Finance news release 2003-055, Oct. 31, 2003: Proposed Amendments to the Income Tax Act Related to the Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses Related to a Source

The Department of Finance today released for public comment draft proposals regarding the deductibility of interest and other expenses for income tax purposes. These proposals, along with income tax interpretation bulletin IT-533, Interest Deductibility and Related Issues, released today by the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency, form a coordinated Government response on the deductibility of interest and other expenses.

This announcement follows up on a statement in the February 18, 2003, budget that the Department of Finance would propose measures to provide continuity in this important area of the law.

The proposed legislative amendments and draft interpretation bulletin are aimed at clarifying how the income tax system links the deductibility of certain expenses and losses to a taxpayer's prospects for profit, objectively determined. The proposals include specific Income Tax Act rules that require that there be a "reasonable expectation of profit" from a business or property for a taxpayer to realize a loss from the business or property, and that make clear that profit in this sense does not include capital gains. These measures will reaffirm many current practices that support the deductibility of interest, including those relating to the deductibility of interest on money borrowed to purchase common shares.

The package released today includes legislative proposals and explanatory notes with examples. These proposals are intended to have effect for taxation years beginning after 2004. The Department invites the public and tax professionals to comment on the proposals by December 31, 2003.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, March 23, 2004: Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses

Interest and other expenses are generally deductible in computing income from a business or property only if the expense is incurred "for the purpose of earning income." As the 2003 Budget noted, the meaning of this phrase has become unclear, and in some respects it has been interpreted in a manner that could lead to inappropriate results. In particular, whether "income" is a gross or net concept, and whether "purpose" is subjective or objective, are questions that need to be addressed.

On October 31, 2003, the Department of Finance released for public consultation a package of legislative proposals respecting the deductibility of interest and other expenses. The proposal focused not on the deductibility of a particular expense, but rather on the ability of a taxpayer to claim a loss from a business or a property. In doing so, the proposals adopted the concept of the reasonable expectation of profit — one that is already used several times in the Act and that has been extensively considered in court decisions.

In its release, the Department emphasized that the sole intent of the proposals is to restore the law and related administrative practices to what they were generally understood to be in the past. Some commentators have nonetheless expressed concern that the proposals could have more far-reaching effects. While this is not the intention behind these proposals, a number of significant issues have been raised that deserve further consideration.

It is important to ensure that there is an adequate opportunity for taxpayers to comment on the proposals, and for the Department to consider those comments. Accordingly, the Department intends to extend the period for making written submissions on these proposals until the end of August of this year.

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 23, 2005: Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses

In October 2003, the Department of Finance released for public consultation a package of legislative proposals regarding the deductibility, for income tax purposes, of interest and other expenses. The proposals responded to certain court decisions that departed significantly from what had been the accepted understanding of the law in this area [notably Ludco Enterprises Ltd., [2002] 1 C.T.C. 95 (SCC) — ed.]

In computing income from a business or property, a taxpayer can deduct many kinds of expenses, provided they were incurred in order to earn the income. A familiar example is interest on borrowed money, which is deductible only if the borrowed money is used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property.

In this context, "income" had been understood to be a net amount comparable to profit, and to exclude capital gains. The court decisions, however, took a different view: income was read as the equivalent of gross revenue, and the distinction between income and capital gains was blurred.

The 2003 proposals were intended to restore the law on these points to its more familiar and more appropriate state.

An extended period of public consultation on the proposals ended in August 2004. Many commentators expressed concerns with the proposals' structure: in particular, that the proposals' codification of an objective "reasonable expectation of profit" test might inadvertently limit the deductibility of a wide variety of ordinary commercial expenses. The Department of Finance has sought to respond by developing a more modest legislative initiative that would respond to those concerns while still achieving the Government's objectives. The Department will, at an early opportunity, release that alternative proposal for comment. This will be combined with a Canada Revenue Agency publication that addresses, in the context of the alternative proposal, certain administrative questions relating to deductibility.

Letter from Minister of National Revenue (VIEWS doc 2006-0177371M4), April 26, 2006: It is my understanding that the Department of Finance Canada continues to receive submissions on the draft legislation and intends to address the concerns raised prior to enacting it. Inclusions

6. (1) Amounts to be included as income from office or employment — There shall be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year as income from an office or employment such of the following amounts as are applicable:

(a) value of benefits — the value of board, lodging and other benefits of any kind whatever received or enjoyed by the taxpayer in the year in respect of, in the course of, or by virtue of an office or employment, except any benefit

(i) derived from the contributions of the taxpayer's employer to or under a deferred profit sharing plan, an employee life and health trust, a group sickness or accident insurance plan, a group term life insurance policy, a private health services plan, a registered pension plan or a supplementary unemployment benefit plan,

Proposed Amendment — 6(1)(a)(i)

(i) derived from the contributions of the taxpayer's employer to or under a deferred profit sharing plan, an employee life and health trust, a group sickness or accident insurance plan, a group term life insurance policy, a pooled registered pension plan, a private health services plan, a registered pension plan or a supplementary unemployment benefit plan,

Application: The December 14, 2011 draft legislation, s. 1, will amend subpara. 6(1)(a)(i) to read as above, in force or deemed in force on the day of the coming into force of S.C. 2012, c. 16 (Bill C-25, Royal Assent June 18, 2012), Pooled Registered Pension Plans Act.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 6(1)(a) provides for the inclusion in computing the income of a taxpayer from an office or employment of the value of employment benefits received or enjoyed by the taxpayer in respect of or in the course of employment, subject to a number of specified exceptions in subparagraphs 6(1)(a)(i) to (v). The first of these exceptions, subparagraph 6(1)(a)(i), describes benefits that are derived from an employer's contributions to various types of plans for employees.

As a consequence of the introduction of pooled registered pension plans (PRPPs) and income tax rules to accommodate them, subparagraph 6(1)(a)(i) is amended to add a reference to an employer's contributions to a PRPP. Generally, therefore, benefits derived from such contributions are not included in an employee's income from employment.

For further information regarding PRPPs, please see the commentary on new section 147.5.

New subparagraph 6(1)(a)(vi) is added to exclude any benefit received or enjoyed by a person who is not the employee, under a program provided by the employer that is designed to assist individuals to further their education. Proposed Addition — 6(1)(e.1)

(e.1) [group sickness or accident premiums] — the total of all amounts contributed in the year in respect of the taxpayer by the taxpayer's employer to a group sickness or accident insurance plan, except to the extent that the contributions are attributable to benefits under the plan that, if received by the taxpayer, would be included in the taxpayer's income under paragraph (f) in the year the benefits are received if that paragraph were read without regard to its subparagraph (v).

Application: The March 29, 2012 Notice of Ways and Means Motion (Federal Budget), cl. (5), will add para. 6(1)(e.1), applicable to 2014 et seq.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 29, 2012: Group Sickness or Accident Insurance Plans

Employment benefits, whether provided in cash or in-kind, are generally included in an employee's income for tax purposes. Subject to a number of exceptions, if an employer contributes to a group insurance plan in respect of an employee, an amount is included in the employee's income either when the employer contributions are made to the plan or when benefits are received under the plan.

Currently, wage-loss replacement benefits payable on a periodic basis under a group sickness or accident insurance plan to which an employer has contributed are included in an employee's income for tax purposes when those benefits are received [6(1)(f), and not when earned: 6(1)(a)(i) — ed.]. However, no amount is included in an employee's income, either when the employer contributions are made or the benefits are received, to the extent that:

- benefits are not payable on a periodic basis; or
- benefits are payable in respect of a sickness or accident when there is no loss of employment income.

To provide for more neutral and fair tax treatment of beneficiaries under a group sickness or accident insurance plan, Budget 2012 proposes to include the amount of an employer's contributions to a group sickness or accident insurance plan in an employee's income for the year in which the contributions are made to the extent that the contributions are not in respect of a wage-loss replacement benefit payable on a periodic basis.

This measure will not affect the tax treatment of private health services plans or other plans described in paragraph 6(1)(a) of the Income Tax Act.

This measure will apply in respect of employer contributions made on or after March 29, 2012 to the extent that the contributions relate to coverage after 2012, except that such contributions made on or after March 29, 2012 and before 2013 will be included in the employee's income for 2013.

Canada Revenue Agency Q&A, April 3, 2012: Individuals: Group sickness or accident insurance plans — Employer contributions

When an employer contributes an amount to a group sickness or accident insurance plan in respect of an employee, a taxable benefit is not currently realized by the employee. To provide fair tax treatment for beneficiaries under group sickness or accident insurance plans, the budget proposes that the amount of the employer's contributions be a taxable benefit for the employee.

Q1. As an employee, what is changing for the contributions my employer makes in respect of my coverage under a group sickness or accident insurance plan?

A1. The budget proposes that the amount of an employer's contributions to a group sickness or accident insurance plan is a taxable benefit and must be included in your income for the year in which the contributions are made.

Q2. When do these changes apply?

A2. These changes apply to contributions made by your employer starting in 2013. However, if contributions made by your employer after March 28, 2012, and before 2013, relate to your coverage under a group sickness or accident insurance plan after 2012, the contributions will be a taxable benefit and included in your income for 2013.

Q3. Are any contributions excluded from these new rules?

A3. An employer contribution that is in respect of a wage-loss replacement benefit payable on a periodic basis under the plan will continue to be non-taxable.

Q4. Do these changes affect private health services plans (such as medical or dental plans)?

A4. These changes will not affect the tax treatment of private health services plans. If your employer makes contributions to a private health services plan for employees, there is no taxable benefit for the employees.

Q5. Where can I get more information about these changes?

A5. The CRA is committed to providing taxpayers with up-to-date information. The CRA encourages taxpayers to check its Web pages often. All new forms, policies, and guidelines will be posted as they become available.

Proposed Addition — 6(1.2)

(1.2) Deeming rule — amount received — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(g), an amount received by an individual out of or under an employee benefit plan is deemed to have been received by a taxpayer and not by the individual if

(a) the individual does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer;

(b) the amount is received in respect of an office or employment of the taxpayer; and

(c) the taxpayer is living at the time the amount is received by the individual.

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 1(3), will add subsec. 6(1.2), applicable in respect of benefits received or enjoyed on or after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 6(1)(g) requires the inclusion in the computation of a taxpayer's income from an office or employment of amounts received from an employee benefit plan (or from the disposition of an interest in an employee benefit plan), subject to the exceptions listed in subparagraphs 6(1)(g)(i) to (iv).

New subsection 6(1.2) is added to provide that for the purposes of paragraph 6(1)(g), an amount is deemed to have been received by a taxpayer and not by the individual who received the amount if the individual does not deal at arm's length with the taxpayer, the amount is received in respect of an office or employment of the taxpayer, and the taxpayer is living at the time the amount is received by the individual.

(2) Reasonable [automobile] standby charge — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(e), a reasonable standby charge for an automobile for the total number of days (in this subsection referred to as the "total available days") in a taxation year during which the automobile is made available to a taxpayer or to a person related to the taxpayer by the employer of the taxpayer or by a person related to the employer (both of whom are in this subsection referred to as the "employer") shall be deemed to be the amount determined by the formula

where

A is

(a) the lesser of the total kilometres that the automobile is driven (otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the taxpayer's office or employment) during the total available days and the value determined for the description of B for the year in respect of the standby charge for the automobile during the total available days, if

(i) the taxpayer is required by the employer to use the automobile in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(ii) the distance travelled by the automobile in the total available days is primarily in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(b) the value determined for the description of B for the year in respect of the standby charge for the automobile during the total available days, in any other case;

B is the product obtained when 1,667 is multiplied by the quotient obtained by dividing the total available days by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;

C is the cost of the automobile to the employer where the employer owns the vehicle at any time in the year;

D is the number obtained by dividing such of the total available days as are days when the employer owns the automobile by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;

E is the total of all amounts that may reasonably be regarded as having been payable by the employer to a lessor for the purpose of leasing the automobile during such of the total available days as are days when the automobile is leased to the employer; and

F is the part of the amount determined for E that may reasonably be regarded as having been payable to the lessor in respect of all or part of the cost to the lessor of insuring against

(a) loss of, or damage to, the automobile, or

(b) liability resulting from the use or operation of the automobile.

History: The descriptions of A and B in subsec. 6(2) amended by 2003, c. 15, s. 69, applicable to 2003 et seq. They formerly read:

A is the lesser of

(a) the total number of kilometres that the automobile is driven (otherwise than in connection with or in the course of the taxpayer's office or employment) during the total available days, and

(b) the value determined for B for the year under this subsection in respect of the standby charge for the automobile during the total available days, except that the amount determined under paragraph (a) shall be deemed to be equal to the amount determined under paragraph (b) unless

(c) the taxpayer is required by the employer to use the automobile in connection with or in the course of the office or employment, and

(d) all or substantially all of the distance travelled by the automobile in the total available days is in connection with or in the course of the office or employment;

B is the product obtained when 1,000 is multiplied by the quotient obtained by dividing the total available days by 30 and, if the quotient so obtained is not a whole number and exceeds one, by rounding it to the nearest whole number or, where that quotient is equidistant from two consecutive whole numbers, by rounding it to the lower of those two numbers;

(2.2) [Repealed]

History: Subsec. 6(2.2) repealed by 1994, c. 21, subsec. 2(5), applicable to 1993 et seq. That subsec. formerly read:

(b) the automobile is used primarily in the performance of the duties of the taxpayer's office or employment, and the amount of the benefit relating to the operation of the automobile shall, for the purposes of paragraph (1)(a), be deemed to be the amount, if any, by which

(d) one-half of the amount determined for the automobile under subparagraph (1)(e)(i) in respect of the taxpayer for the year

(e) the total of all amounts related to the operation of the automobile paid in the year, by the taxpayer or by a person related to the taxpayer, to the employer or to the person who made the automobile available.

(b) on account, in lieu of payment or in satisfaction of an obligation arising out of an agreement made by the payer with the payee immediately prior to, during or immediately after a period that the payee was an officer of, or in the employment of, the payer, shall be deemed, for the purposes of section 5, to be remuneration for the payee's services rendered as an officer or during the period of employment, unless it is established that, irrespective of when the agreement, if any, under which the amount was received was made or the form or legal effect thereof, it cannot reasonably be regarded as having been received

(c) as consideration or partial consideration for accepting the office or entering into the contract of employment,

(d) as remuneration or partial remuneration for services as an officer or under the contract of employment, or

Proposed Addition — 6(3.1)

(3.1) Amount receivable for covenant — If an amount (other than an amount to which paragraph (1)(a) applies because of subsection (11)) is receivable at the end of a taxation year by a taxpayer in respect of a covenant, agreed to by the taxpayer more than 36 months before the end of that taxation year, with reference to what the taxpayer is, or is not, to do, and the amount would be included in the taxpayer's income for the year under this subdivision if it were received by the taxpayer in the year, the amount

(a) is deemed to be received by the taxpayer at the end of the taxation year for services rendered as an officer or during the period of employment; and

(b) is deemed not to be received at any other time.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 3(1), will add subsec. 6(3.1), applicable to amounts receivable in respect of a covenant agreed to after October 7, 2003.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 6(3.1) provides that an employee is — if certain circumstances exist — required to include in the employee's income from employment for a taxation year an amount that is receivable at the end of a taxation year in respect of a covenant as to what the employee is, or is not, to do. Subsection 6(3.1) is added consequential to new section 56.4 which concerns the tax treatment of amounts received or receivable in respect of a restrictive covenant (additional commentary is provided in the explanatory notes accompanying new section 56.4). In contrast, amounts related to covenants made in the context of an office or employment are generally included in income on a "received" basis.

New subsection 6(3.1) applies to a receivable of an employee in respect of a covenant if

- the amount is not receivable under a salary deferral arrangement to which paragraph 6(1)(a) applies because of subsection 6(11) (in such cases, the amount is currently taxable as employment income even though it is receivable),

- the employee agreed to the covenant more than 36 months before the end of the taxation year, and
- the amount would be included in the taxpayer's income, as income from an office or employment, if it were received by the taxpayer in the year.

If applicable, subsection 6(3.1) provides that the amount receivable is deemed to be received by the taxpayer at the end of the taxation year for services rendered as an officer or during the period of employment, and that the amount is deemed not to be received at any other time (thereby precluding an inclusion because of the receipt).

In cases where subsection 6(3.1) deems an amount that is receivable to be received, new paragraph 60(f) provides a deduction in a subsequent taxation year if the amount becomes a bad debt.

Related Provisions: 6(3), 56.4(2) — Income inclusion from non-compete agreement; 60(f) — Deduction for bad debt.

(4) Group term life insurance — Where at any time in a taxation year a taxpayer's life is insured under a group term life insurance policy, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from an office or employment the amount, if any, prescribed for the year in respect of the insurance.

Related Provisions: 18(9)(a)(iii), 18(9.01) — Limitation on deduction for premiums paid; 139.1(15) — Effect of demutualization of insurance corporation; 139.1(16), (17) — Flow-through of demutualization benefits by employer to employee; 144.1(10) — Employee contributions to employee life and health trust deemed to be payment of group life insurance premiums if so identified; 153(1)(a) — Withholding of tax by employer.

History: Subsec. 6(4) amended by 1995, c. 3, subsec. 1(2), applicable to insurance provided in respect of periods that are after June 1994. For insurance provided in respect of periods that are in 1994 and before July 1994, subsec. 6(4) should be read as follows:

> (4) Notwithstanding any exception provided for in paragraph (1)(a), there shall be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year as income from an office or employment the premium in respect of any period in the year before July 1994 for any excess over $25,000 of the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under a group term life insurance policy under which any life insurance was effected on the taxpayer's life in respect of, in the course of or because of, the taxpayer's office or employment or former office or employment, determined as the remainder obtained by
> (a) dividing that proportion of the total premium (other than a prescribed premium) payable on account of life insurance under the policy in respect of the policy year that ends in the year, minus the amount of any dividend or experience rating refund payable on account of life insurance under the policy in respect of the policy year, that the number of days in that period is of the number of days in the policy year, by the mean of the total amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect under the policy at the beginning of the policy year and the total amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) so in effect at the end of the policy year,
> (b) multiplying the quotient obtained under paragraph (a) by the excess over $25,000 of the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under the policy, and
> (c) subtracting from the product obtained under paragraph (b) any amount that the taxpayer has reimbursed to the taxpayer's employer, or has paid, in respect of the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in excess of $25,000 in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under the policy, > and in the case of a taxpayer on whose life any life insurance was in effect during any period in the year before July 1994 under more than one such group insurance policy,
>
> (d) this subsection shall be read as requiring a separate determination of the amount or amounts, if any, to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of each particular policy, and
> (e) the expression "$25,000" in this subsection shall be read as referring, in respect of a particular policy, to that proportion of $25,000 that the amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under the policy is of the total amount of life insurance (other than prescribed insurance) in effect on the taxpayer's life during that period under all of the policies.

(1.11) Non-arm's length relationship with trusts — For the purposes of this section, a mutual fund trust is deemed not to deal at arm's length with a corporation only if the trust controls the corporation.

Proposed Amendment — 7(1.11)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 4, 2006:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letters and e-mails concerning subsection 7(1.11) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). I also acknowledge phone conversations that you and your colleague, [xxx] have had with officials of this Branch.

Section 7 of the Act contains provisions dealing with agreements under which an employee of a corporation or mutual fund trust may acquire securities of the employer or of an entity that deals at non-arm's length with the employer. Subsection 7(1.11) deems a mutual fund trust to deal at non-arm's length with a corporation, for the purpose of section 7, only if the trust controls the corporation. Thus, in any other situation in which a corporation and a mutual fund trust deal at non-arm's length, the provisions of section 7 will not apply.

You have suggested that subsection 7(1.11) excludes certain other non-arm's length relationships between a mutual fund trust and a corporation that may not be offensive from a policy perspective, and have asked that the scope of subsection 7(1.11) be expanded accordingly.

We have considered this issue carefully and are prepared to recommend that the scope of subsection 7(1.11) be expanded to include a corporation and a mutual fund trust where the corporation owns securities that would give it more than 50% of the votes that could be cast under all circumstances at a meeting of unitholders of the trust. As discussed, the securities to which such voting rights are attached would not be limited to units of the trust and could thus include, for example, securities that are exchangeable into units of the trust.

We will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the proposed amendment apply to rights exercised or disposed of after 2004 under agreements to sell or issue securities made after 2002.

While I cannot offer any assurance that the Minister or Parliament will agree with our recommendation in this regard, I hope that this statement of our position is helpful to you.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Emewein, General Director — Legislation, Tax Policy Branch

(a) if a taxpayer acquires a particular security (other than under circumstances to which subsection (1.1) or 147(10.1) applies) at a time when the taxpayer also acquires or holds one or more other securities that are identical to the particular security and are, or were, acquired under circumstances to which subsection (1.1) or 147(10.1) applied, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the particular security at the time immediately preceding the earliest of the times at which the taxpayer acquired those other securities; and

(b) if a taxpayer acquires, at the same time, two or more identical securities under circumstances to which subsection (1.1) applied, the taxpayer is deemed to have acquired the securities in the order in which the agreements under which the taxpayer acquired the rights to acquire the securities were made.

[This amendment needs to be deleted since it would otherwise override the 2010, c. 25 amendment by deleting the references to 110(1.1) and (1.2). This has been pointed out to Finance — ed.]

Technical Notes (July 2010): Section 7 deals with agreements (generally referred to as stock options) under which employees of a corporation or mutual fund trust acquire rights to acquire securities of the employer (or a person with whom the employer does not deal at arm's length).

Subsection 7(7) defines the expressions "qualifying person" and "security" for the purposes of section 7 and certain other provisions of the Act relating to those agreements. "Qualifying person" is defined as a corporation or a mutual fund trust. "Security" is defined as a share issued by a corporation or a unit of a mutual fund trust.

Subsection 7(7) is amended to have these definitions also apply for the purposes of new subsections 110(1.7) and (1.8). New subsection 110(1.7) ensures that a reduction in the exercise price under an employee security option will not disqualify the employee from claiming the security option deduction under paragraph 110(1)(d), provided certain conditions are met. New subsection 110(1.8) sets out the conditions that must be met in order for new subsection 110(1.7) to apply.

This amendment, which applies after 1998, is consequential to the enactment of new subsections 110(1.7) and (1.8). For additional information, see the commentary to those subsections.

"qualifying person" means a corporation or a mutual fund trust.

"security" of a qualifying person means

(a) if the person is a corporation, a share of the capital stock of the corporation; and

(b) if the person is a mutual fund trust, a unit of the trust.

(b) before 2000, the opening words of the subsec., as amended, shall be read as:

"(7) The definitions in this subsection apply in this section and in paragraph 110(1)(d) and subsections 110(1.5) and (1.6)."

(8)–(15) [Repealed]

History: Subsecs. 7(8) to (15) repealed by 2010, c. 25, subsecs. 3(8) and (10), applicable in respect of rights exercised after 4:00 p.m. EST, March 4, 2010. They formerly read:

(8) Deferral in respect of non-CCPC employee options — Where a particular qualifying person (other than a Canadian-controlled private corporation) has agreed to sell or issue securities of the particular qualifying person (or of a qualifying person with which it does not deal at arm's length) to a taxpayer who is an employee of the particular qualifying person (or of a qualifying person with which the particular qualifying person does not deal at arm's length), in applying paragraph (1)(a) in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of a security under the agreement, the reference in that paragraph to "the taxation year in which the employee acquired the securities" shall be read as a reference to "the taxation year in which the employee disposed of or exchanged the securities" if

(a) the acquisition is a qualifying acquisition; and

(b) the taxpayer elects, in accordance with subsection (10), to have this subsection apply in respect of the acquisition.

(9) Meaning of "qualifying acquisition" — For the purpose of subsection (8), a taxpayer's acquisition of a security under an agreement made by a particular qualifying person is a qualifying acquisition if

(a) the acquisition occurs after February 27, 2000;

(b) the taxpayer would, if this Act were read without reference to subsection (8), be entitled to deduct an amount under paragraph 110(1)(d) in respect of the acquisition in computing income for the taxation year in which the security is acquired;

(c) where the particular qualifying person is a corporation, the taxpayer was not, at the time immediately after the agreement was made, a person who would, if the references in the portion of the definition "specified shareholder" in subsection 248(1) before paragraph (a) to "in a taxation year" and "at any time in the year" were read as references to "at any time" and "at that time", respectively, be a specified shareholder of any of

(i) the particular qualifying person,

(ii) any qualifying person that, at that time, was an employer of the taxpayer and was not dealing at arm's length with the particular qualifying person, and

(iii) the qualifying person of which the taxpayer had, under the agreement, a right to acquire a security; and

(d) where the security is a share,

(i) it is of a class of shares that, at the time the acquisition occurs, is listed on a designated stock exchange, and

(ii) where rights under the agreement were acquired by the taxpayer as a result of one or more dispositions to which subsection (1.4) applied, none of the rights that were the subject of any of the dispositions included a right to acquire a share of a class of shares that, at the time the rights were disposed of, was not listed on any designated stock exchange.

(9.1) Reorganization — If, in the course of a reorganization that gives rise to a dividend that would, in the absence of paragraph 55(3)(b), be subject to subsection 55(2), rights to acquire securities listed on a designated stock exchange (referred to in this subsection as "public options") under an agreement to sell or issue securities referred to in subsection (1) are exchanged for rights to acquire securities that are not listed on a designated stock exchange (referred to in this subsection as "private options"), and the private options are subsequently exchanged for public options, the private options are deemed to be rights to acquire shares that are listed on a designated stock exchange for the purposes of subparagraph 7(9)(d)(ii).

(10) Election for the purpose of subsec. (8) — For the purpose of subsection (8), a taxpayer's election to have that subsection apply in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of a particular security under an agreement referred to in subsection (1) is in accordance with this subsection if

(a) the election is filed, in prescribed form and manner at a particular time that is before January 16 of the year following the year in which the acquisition occurs, with a person who would be required to file an information return in respect of the acquisition if subsection (8) were read without reference to paragraph (8)(b);

(b) the taxpayer is resident in Canada at the time the acquisition occurs; and

(c) the specified value of the particular security does not exceed the amount by which

(i) $100,000

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is the specified value of another security acquired by the taxpayer at or before the particular time under an agreement referred to in subsection (1), where

(A) the taxpayer's right to acquire that other security first became exercisable in the year that the taxpayer's right to acquire the particular security first became exercisable, and

(B) at or before the particular time, the taxpayer has elected in accordance with this subsection to have subsection (8) apply in respect of the acquisition of that other security.

(11) Meaning of "specified value" — For the purpose of paragraph (10)(c), the specified value of a particular security acquired by a taxpayer under an agreement referred to in subsection (1) is the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the fair market value, determined at the time the agreement was made, of a security that was the subject of the agreement at the time the agreement was made; and

(a) except where paragraph (b) applies, 1, and

(b) where the number or type of securities that are the subject of the agreement has been modified in any way after the time the agreement was made, the number of securities (including any fraction of a security) that it is reasonable to consider the taxpayer would, at the time the particular security was acquired, have a right to acquire under the agreement in lieu of one of the securities that was the subject of the agreement at the time the agreement was made.

(12) Identical options — order of exercise — Unless the context otherwise requires, a taxpayer is deemed to exercise identical rights to acquire securities under agreements referred to in subsection (1)

(a) where the taxpayer has designated an order, in the order so designated; and

(b) in any other case, in the order in which those rights first became exercisable and, in the case of identical rights that first became exercisable at the same time, in the order in which the agreements under which those rights were acquired were made.

(13) Revoked election — For the purposes of this section (other than this subsection), an election filed by a taxpayer to have subsection (8) apply to the taxpayer's acquisition of a security is deemed never to have been filed if, before January 16 of the year following the year in which the acquisition occurs, the taxpayer files with the person with whom the election was filed a written revocation of the election.

(14) Deferral deemed valid — For the purposes of this section and paragraph 110(1)(d), where a taxpayer files an election to have subsection (8) apply in respect of the taxpayer's acquisition of a particular security and subsection (8) would not apply to the acquisition if this section were read without reference to this subsection, the following rules apply if the Minister so notifies the taxpayer in writing:

(a) the acquisition is deemed, for the purpose of subsection (8), to be a qualifying acquisition;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have elected, in accordance with subsection (10), at the time of the acquisition, to have subsection (8) apply in respect of the acquisition; and

(c) if, at the time the Minister sends the notice, the taxpayer has not disposed of the security, the taxpayer is deemed (other than for the purpose of subsection (1.5)) to have disposed of the security at that time and to have acquired the security immediately after that time other than under an agreement referred to in subsection (1).

(15) Withholding — Where, because of subsection (8), a taxpayer is deemed by paragraph (1)(a) to have received a benefit from employment in a taxation year, the benefit is deemed to be nil for the purpose of subsection 153(1).

Subsec. 7(9.1) added by the said c. 25, subsec. 3(9), applicable after 1999 and before 4:00 p.m. EST, March 4, 2010, except that, for the period before December 14, 2007, the reference in subsec. 7(9.1) to "designated stock exchange" shall be read as a reference to "prescribed stock exchange".

Subparas. 7(9)(d)(i) and (ii) amended to substitute "designated stock exchange" for "prescribed stock exchange" by 2007, c. 35, para. 68(2)(a), applicable after December 13, 2007.

Subsecs. 7(8), (9), (11), (12), (14) and (15) added by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 2(9), applicable to 2000 et seq.

Subsec. 7(10) added by the said 2001, subsec. 2(9), applicable to 2000 et seq. An election under subsec. 7(10) to have subsec. 7(8) apply in respect of a security acquired in 2000 is deemed to have been filed in a timely manner if it is filed before August 14, 2001.

Subsec. 7(13) added by the said 2001, subsec. 2(9), applicable to 2000 et seq. A written request under subsec. 7(13) to revoke an election in respect of a security acquired in 2000 is deemed to have been filed in a timely manner if it is filed before August 14, 2001.

(16) Prescribed form for deferral — Where, at any time in a taxation year, a taxpayer holds a security that was acquired under circumstances to which subsection (8) applied, the taxpayer shall file with the Minister, with the taxpayer's return of income for the year, a prescribed form containing prescribed information relating to the taxpayer's acquisition and disposition of securities under agreements referred to in subsection (1).

Deductions

8. (1) Deductions allowed — In computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from an office or employment, there may be deducted such of the following amounts as are wholly applicable to that source or such part of the following amounts as may reasonably be regarded as applicable thereto:

(a) [Repealed]

History: Para. 8(1)(a) repealed by 2001, c. 17, subsec. 3(1), applicable to 1998 et seq. The para. formerly read:

(a) volunteers' [emergency workers'] deduction — in respect of each employer of the taxpayer that is a government, municipality or public authority, the lesser of $1,000 and the total of all amounts received in the year by the taxpayer from the employer that are

(i) included in the taxpayer's income for the year from an office or employment, and

(ii) from the performance, as a volunteer, of the taxpayer's duties as

(A) an ambulance technician,

(B) a firefighter, or

(C) a person who assists in the search or rescue of individuals or in other emergency situations, except that no amount may be so deducted in respect of an employer if the taxpayer is employed in the year, otherwise than as a volunteer, by the employer in connection with the performance of any of the duties referred to in subparagraph (ii) or of similar duties;

Para. 8(1)(a) added by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 4(1), applicable to 1998 et seq.

(b) legal expenses of employee — amounts paid by the taxpayer in the year as or on account of legal expenses incurred by the taxpayer to collect or establish a right to salary or wages owed to the taxpayer by the employer or former employer of the taxpayer;

Proposed Amendment — 8(1)(b)

(b) legal expenses of employee — amounts paid by the taxpayer in the year as or on account of legal expenses incurred by the taxpayer to collect, or to establish a right to, an amount owed to the taxpayer that, if received by the taxpayer, would be required by this subdivision to be included in computing the taxpayer's income;

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 5(1), will amend para. 8(1)(b) to read as above, applicable to amounts paid in 2001 et seq.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Paragraph 8(1)(b) allows the deduction of amounts paid by the taxpayer to collect or establish a right to salary or wages owed to the taxpayer by the taxpayer's employer or former employer.

Concern has been expressed that where an amount is not owed to the employee directly by the employer, any legal expenses incurred by the taxpayer would not be deductible under paragraph 8(1)(b), even though the amount, when received, would be taxable as employment income. This would be the case, for example, with respect to legal fees incurred by a taxpayer to collect insurance benefits under a sickness or accident insurance policy provided through an employer.

Paragraph 8(1)(b) is amended, effective for amounts paid after 2000, to allow a deduction for legal expenses incurred by a taxpayer to collect, or establish a right to collect, an amount that, if received, would be included in computing the taxpayer's employment income.

Related Provisions: 6(1)(j) — Reimbursement or award may be taxable; 6(8) — GST rebate included in income; 60(o.1)(i)(B) — Legal expenses re retiring allowance.

(i) is a member of the clergy or of a religious order or a regular minister of a religious denomination, and

(ii) is

(A) in charge of a diocese, parish or congregation,

(B) ministering to a diocese, parish or congregation, or

(iv) rent and utilities paid by the taxpayer for the taxpayer's principal place of residence (or other principal living accommodation), ordinarily occupied during the year by the taxpayer, or the fair rental value of such a residence (or other living accommodation), including utilities, owned by the taxpayer or the taxpayer's spouse or common-law partner, not exceeding the lesser of

(A) the greater of

(I) $1,000 multiplied by the number of months (to a maximum of ten) in the year, during which the taxpayer is a person described in subparagraphs (i) and (ii), and

(II) one-third of the taxpayer's remuneration for the year from the office or employment, and

(B) the amount, if any, by which

(I) the rent paid or the fair rental value of the residence or living accommodation, including utilities

exceeds

(II) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deducted, in connection with the same accommodation or residence, in computing an individual's income for the year from an office or employment or from a business (other than an amount deducted under this paragraph by the taxpayer), to the extent that the amount can reasonably be considered to relate to the period, or a portion of the period, in respect of which an amount is claimed by the taxpayer under this paragraph;

(i) the value of the residence or other living accommodation occupied by the taxpayer in the course of or by virtue of the taxpayer's office or employment as such a member or minister so in charge of or ministering to a diocese, parish or congregation, or so engaged in such administrative service, to the extent that that value is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year by virtue of section 6, or

(ii) rent paid by the taxpayer for a residence or other living accommodation rented and occupied by the taxpayer, or the fair rental value of a residence or other living accommodation owned and occupied by the taxpayer, during the year but not, in either case, exceeding the taxpayer's remuneration from the taxpayer's office or employment as described in subparagraph (i);

(3) Gains and losses not included — In this Act, "income from a property" does not include any capital gain from the disposition of that property and "loss from a property" does not include any capital loss from the disposition of that property.

Proposed Amendment — 9(3)

(3) Gains and losses not included — In this Act, income or loss from a business or property does not include any capital gain or capital loss.

Application: The October 31, 2003 draft legislation (REOP), s. 3, will amend subsec. 9(3) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after 2004.

Technical Notes: Subsection 9(3) provides that "income from a property" and "loss from a property" do not include, respectively, any capital gain from the disposition of that property or any capital loss from the disposition of that property.

Subsection 9(3) is amended to clarify that income or loss from a business does not include any capital gains or losses. Income and capital gain (and loss and capital loss) have always been viewed as two different items for tax purposes; therefore, this amendment simply makes clear what was always the case under the law.

Related Provisions: 3.1(2) — Same rule in determining whether REOP exists; 40(1)(a) — Expenses deducted in determining capital gain.

Selected Cases [subsec. 9(3)]: Arnold v. R., [1983] C.T.C. 405 (FCTD) (Proceeds from sale of rights to cut timber were income).

R.*, [2002] 3 C.T.C. 439 (SCC) (Activity becomes a "source" of income where no personal element and activity is clearly commercial); Walls v. R., [2002] 3 C.T.C. 421 (SCC) (Where no personal element and activities are commercial, principle of reasonable expectation of profit not applicable); Friesen (J.) v. Canada, [1992] 2 C.T.C. 11 (FCA) (Business interruption insurance proceeds were income from business of operating a mine).

10. (1) Valuation of inventory — For the purpose of computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year from a business that is not an adventure or concern in the nature of trade, property described in an inventory shall be valued at the end of the year at the cost at which the taxpayer acquired the property or its fair market value at the end of the year, whichever is lower, or in a prescribed manner.

(j) dividends from resident corporations — any amount of a dividend in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada that is required by subdivision h to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

Application: The November 5, 2010 draft legislation (misc. technical), s. 1, will amend para. 12(1)(j) to read as above, applicable after November 5, 2010.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 12(1)(j) provides for the inclusion in computing a taxpayer's income in a taxation year of dividends required by Subdivision h of Division B of Part I to be included in the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of a dividend paid by a corporation resident in Canada on a share of its capital stock.

Paragraph 12(1)(j) is reworded to refer to any amount of a dividend in respect of a share of the capital stock of a corporation resident in Canada that is required by subdivision h to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year. This change makes the wording of paragraph 12(1)(j) consistent with the proposed wording of paragraph 12(1)(k), which applies to dividends required by subdivision i to be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year. The proposed change to paragraph 12(1)(k) was included in Bill C-10, which ceased to exist when Parliament was dissolved on September 7, 2008.

Related Provisions: 82(1) — Taxable dividends received; 84, 84.1(1)(b) — Deemed dividends; 139.1(4)(f), (g) — Deemed dividend on demutualization of insurance corporation; 139.2 — Deemed dividend on distribution by mutual holding corporation.

(k) dividends from other corporations — any amount required by subdivision i to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of a dividend paid by a corporation not resident in Canada on a share of its capital stock or in respect of a share owned by the taxpayer of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer;

Proposed Amendment — 12(1)(k)

(k) foreign corporations, trusts and investment entities — any amount required by subdivision i to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year;

Application: The August 27, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — NRTs), s. 1, will amend para. 12(1)(k) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after 2006.

Technical Notes (Sept. 10, 2010): Paragraph 12(1)(k) is amended so that it refers more generally to amounts required to be included in computing income under that subdivision. This would include amounts required to be included by subsection 94(16) or (17), as well as amounts required to be included by section 91 where it applies because of new section 94.2. For more information, see the commentary on subsections 94(16) and (17) and section 94.2.

(s) reinsurance commission — the total of all amounts each of which is the maximum amount that an insurer may claim in the year in respect of a reserve for a reinsurance commission for a policy as allowed by regulations made under paragraph 20(7)(c) in respect of a risk the reinsurance of which is assumed by the taxpayer;

Proposed Repeal — 12(1)(s)

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 2, will repeal para. 12(1)(s), applicable to reinsurance commissions paid after 1999.

Technical Notes: Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) apply in the context of reinsurance. Paragraph 12(1)(s) requires that a reinsurer include in income the maximum amount that a primary insurer was entitled to claim as a reserve under paragraph 20(7)(c) in respect of unearned reinsurance commissions. Paragraph 20(1)(jj) then permits the reinsurer to deduct in the following year the amount included in its income under paragraph 12(1)(s). This has the effect of matching acquisition costs of a reinsurer with premium income under a policy.

Subsection 18(9.02) was introduced to apply to taxation years that begin after 1999. It requires both an insurer and a reinsurer to treat acquisition costs incurred by the insurer in respect of an insurance policy, or reinsurance commissions paid by a reinsurer in respect of a reinsurance policy, as if they were incurred as consideration for services that are to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. The introduction of subsection 18(9.02) renders it unnecessary to apply paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) to a reinsurer.

Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) are repealed, effective for reinsurance commissions paid after 1999.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 21, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your correspondence of October 19, 2005, requesting that paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act") be repealed because of the introduction of subsection 18(9.02) of the Act.

Subsection 18(9.02) of the Act, introduced in 2001, generally applies to taxation years that begin after 1999. This provision was introduced to ensure that the acquisition costs (i.e. commissions paid to a broker) that are incurred by an insurer or a reinsurer in respect of a policy are deducted as if they were incurred as consideration for services to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. The deduction of acquisition costs over the term of the policy results in a matching of acquisition costs with the premium income over the period of coverage under the policy.

Prior to the introduction of subsection 18(9.02) of the Act, a different mechanism existed for matching acquisition costs with premium income. In the case of reinsurance, where the insurer cedes to a reinsurer all or part of the risk under a policy issued by the insurer, it receives a reinsurance commission from the reinsurer and is entitled to claim a reserve for unearned premiums. Paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Act apply to the reinsurer in the taxation year in which it pays the reinsurance commission and in subsequent taxation years. Essentially, paragraph 12(1)(s) requires the reinsurer to include in computing its income for a particular taxation year the amount the insurer was entitled to claim as a reserve for unearned premiums in respect of the re-insurance premium paid to the insurer by the reinsurer. Paragraph 20(1)(jj) then permits the reinsurer to deduct in computing its income for the following year the amount included in computing its income for the particular taxation year under paragraph 12(1)(s). The effect of this mechanism is to ensure that the acquisition costs of the re-insurer are matched with premium income under the policy. This mechanism also requires the re-insurer to deduct the reinsurance commission, as it is included in the income of the insurer.

With the introduction of subsection 18(9.02), both the insurer and the re-insurer must treat the acquisition costs incurred by the insurer in respect of the policy or reinsurance commission paid by the reinsurer in respect of the reinsurance policy as if they were incurred as consideration for services that are to be rendered consistently throughout the period of coverage under the policy. Consequently, there is no need to have paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) apply to the reinsurer. The premium income of the reinsurer from the reinsurance policy will be matched with the reinsurance commission expense of the reinsurer over the period of coverage of the reinsurance policy. In fact, the existence of paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) can cause tax anomalies in the above situation by requiring an inclusion in income to offset a deduction that can no longer be claimed because of subsection 18(9.02).

Given this unintended result, it would seem appropriate to repeal paragraphs 12(1)(s) and 20(1)(jj) of the Act. We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance such a change for taxation years that begin after 1999. If this recommendation is acted upon, it will be included in a future technical bill.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(v.1) is not an amount received by the taxpayer in respect of a restrictive covenant, as defined by subsection 56.4(1), that was included, under subsection 56.4(2), in computing the income of a person related to the taxpayer,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 6(1), will add subpara. 12(1)(x)(v.1), applicable after October 7, 2003.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Paragraph 12(1)(x) provides that certain inducements, reimbursements, contributions, allowances and assistance received by a taxpayer in the course of earning income from a business or property must be included in income "to the extent that" the particular amounts have not otherwise been included in income or reduced the cost of a property or the amount of an outlay or expense. Paragraph 12(1)(x) is amended consequential to the restrictive covenant rules in new section 56.4 (additional commentary is provided in the explanatory notes accompanying new section 56.4).

New subparagraph 12(1)(x)(v.1) provides that the income inclusion referred to in paragraph (x) does not apply to the extent the amount in respect of a restrictive covenant (as defined by new subsection 56.4(1)) was included under subsection 56.4(2) in computing the income of a person related to the taxpayer. In other words, to the extent that a taxpayer receives an amount for a restrictive covenant that a person related to the taxpayer is required under subsection 56.4(2) to include in computing income, paragraph 12(1)(x) will not apply to require the taxpayer to include the amount in computing the taxpayer's income.

(vi) except as provided by subsection 127(11.1), (11.5) or (11.6), does not reduce, for the purpose of an assessment made or that may be made under this Act, the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be,

(vii) does not reduce, under subsection (2.2) or 13(7.4) or paragraph 53(2)(s), the cost or capital cost of the property or the amount of the outlay or expense, as the case may be, and

(viii) may not reasonably be considered to be a payment made in respect of the acquisition by the payer or the public authority of an interest in the taxpayer or the taxpayer's business or property;

Proposed Amendment — 12(1)(x)(viii)

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 177(1), will amend subpara. 12(1)(x)(viii) by substituting "taxpayer, an interest in, or for civil law a right in, the taxpayer's business or an interest in, or for civil law a real right in, the taxpayer's property" for "taxpayer or the taxpayer's business or property", to come into force on Royal Assent.

History: Para. 12(1)(z.6) added by 1999, c. 22, subsec. 5(2), applicable to amounts received after February 23, 1998.

(2) Interpretation — Paragraphs (1)(a) and (b) are enacted for greater certainty and shall not be construed as implying that any amount not referred to in those paragraphs is not to be included in computing income from a business for a taxation year whether it is received or receivable in the year or not.

Selected Cases [subsec. 12(2)]: Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. v. Canada, [1991] 1 C.T.C. 28 (FCTD); aff'd [1992] 1 C.T.C. 264 (FCA) (The principle that amounts not referred to in para. 12(1)(b) may still be included in computing income precludes taxpayer from changing method of reporting income for tax purposes).

Proposed Addition — 12(2.01)

(2.01) No deferral of s. 9 income under para. (1)(g) — Paragraph (1)(g) does not defer the inclusion in income of any amount that would, if this section were read without reference to that paragraph, be included in computing the taxpayer's income in accordance with section 9.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 6(3), will add subsec. 12(2.01), in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 12(2.01), which comes into force on Royal Assent, provides that paragraph 12(1)(g) does not defer the inclusion in a taxpayer's income of an amount that would otherwise be so included at an earlier time in accordance with section 9. Accordingly, where an amount based on production or use would be included in computing a taxpayer's income from a business or property (if section 12 were read without reference to paragraph 12(1)(g)) at a time when the amount is accrued but not yet received, subsection 12(2.01) clarifies that paragraph 12(1)(g) does not apply to defer the inclusion of the amount in income until the time of receipt.

(2.1) Receipt of inducement, reimbursement, etc. — For the purposes of paragraph (1)(x), where at a particular time a taxpayer who is a beneficiary of a trust or a member of a partnership has received an amount as an inducement, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of inducement, in respect of the activities of the trust or partnership, or as a reimbursement, contribution, allowance or as assistance, whether as a grant, subsidy, forgivable loan, deduction from tax, allowance or any other form of assistance, in respect of the cost of property or in respect of an expense of the trust or partnership, the amount shall be deemed to have been received at that time by the trust or partnership, as the case may be, as such an inducement, reimbursement, contribution, allowance or assistance.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-273R2: Government assistance — general comments.

(2.2) Deemed outlay or expense — Where

(a) in a taxation year a taxpayer receives an amount that would, but for this subsection, be included under paragraph (1)(x) in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of an outlay or expense (other than an outlay or expense in respect of the cost of property of the taxpayer) made or incurred by the taxpayer before the end of the following taxation year, and

(b) the taxpayer elects under this subsection on or before the day on or before which the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year is required to be filed, or would be required to be filed if tax under this Part were payable by the taxpayer for the year or, where the outlay or expense is made or incurred in the following taxation year, for that following year, the amount of the outlay or expense shall be deemed for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's income, other than for the purposes of this subsection and paragraphs (1)(x) and 20(1)(hh), to have always been the amount, if any, by which

(c) the amount of the outlay or expense

exceeds

(d) the lesser of the amount elected by the taxpayer under this subsection and the amount so received by the taxpayer, and, notwithstanding subsections 152(4) to (5), such assessment or reassessment of the taxpayer's tax, interest and penalties under this Act for any taxation year shall be made as is necessary to give effect to the election.

Related Provisions: 20(1)(hh) — Repayments of inducements, etc.; 80.2 — Royalty reimbursements; 87(2)(j.6) — Amalgamations — Continuing corporation; 220(3.2), Reg. 600 — Late filing or revocation of election.

History: Subsec. 12(2.2) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 3(3), applicable with respect to amounts received after January 1990. Subsec. 12(2.2) formerly read:

(2.2) Where a taxpayer has in a taxation year received an amount that would, but for this subsection, be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year by reason of paragraph (1)(x) in respect of an outlay or expense made or incurred by the taxpayer in the year, in any of the 3 taxation years immediately preceding the year or in the taxation year immediately following the year (other than an outlay or expense in respect of the cost of property of the taxpayer) and the taxpayer elects under this subsection on or before the day on or before which the

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 2 — bijuralism), subsec. 177(2), will amend subsec. 12(4) by substituting "(4.1), if" for "(4.1), where" and "an interest in, or for civil law a right in," for "an interest in", to come into force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): As part of the harmonization of federal legislation, the Government has undertaken to review all its legislation where provincial private law concepts are found in order to reflect appropriately the common law and the civil law, in both official languages.

As part of this harmonization initiative, federal tax legislation is being reviewed. Several changes to the legislation have already been implemented, namely by way of the Income Tax Amendments Act, 2000, S.C. 2001, c. 17. The proposed amendments continue this harmonization initiative.

This Part proposes amendments to the Income Tax Act concerning the concepts of "joint and several liability" / "solidary liability", "tangible property" / "corporeal property", "intangible property" / "incorporeal property", "personal property" / "movable property", "real property" / "immovable property", "interest" / "right" which are further described below. The proposed amendments are not intended to change the current application of the amended provisions; they purport to reflect the concepts and terminology of the common law and the civil law in both official languages. They will come into force on Royal Assent to this Bill.

Joint and Several Liability and Solidary Liability

The French version of the current tax legislation uses the term "solidairement", which is appropriate for both civil law and common law. Therefore, the French version does not need to be amended.

In the English version of the current tax legislation, only the term "jointly and severally" is used. This term is maintained for common law purposes. The term "jointly and severally" is no longer adequate in civil law in English and has been replaced with the term "solidarily". Therefore, it is appropriate to add the term "solidarily" in the English version in order to reflect the civil law.

Tangible and Corporeal Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien corporel" is used. In the English version, only the common law term "tangible property" is used.

In the French version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "bien tangible" in order to reflect the common law.

In the English version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "corporeal property" in order to reflect the civil law.

Intangible and Incorporeal Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien incorporel" is used. In the English version, only the common law term "intangible property" is used.

In the French version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "bien intangible" in order to reflect the common law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "bien incorporel ou intangible", which refers to both systems of law.

In the English version of the legislation, it is appropriate to add the term "incorporeal property" in order to reflect the civil law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "intangible or incorporeal property", which refers to both systems of law.

Personal Property and Movable Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien meuble" is used. In the English version, the terms "personal property" and "chattels" are used to reflect the common law.

It is therefore appropriate to add in the French version a reference to the term "bien personnel" in order to reflect the common law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "bien meuble ou personnel", which refers to both systems of law.

In the English version of the legislation, the term "movable" is added in order to reflect the civil law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements are combined in the phrase "personal or movable property", which refers to both systems of law.

Real Property and Immovable Property

In the French version of the current tax legislation, only the civil law terminology "bien immeuble" is used. In the English version, only the common law concept of "real property" is used.

It is therefore appropriate to add a reference, in the French version, to the term "bien réel" in order to reflect the common law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "bien immeuble ou réel", which refers to both systems of law.

In the English version of the legislation, the term "immovable" is added in order to reflect the civil law. Where it is appropriate to do so, the shared elements of the relevant terms are combined in the phrase "real or immovable property", which refers to both systems of law.

[See also 248(4.1) on the term "real right" (in an immovable) — ed.]

Interest and Right

Generally, in the current tax legislation, the common law term "interest" and the civil law term "droit" are used to refer to the relationship that exists between a person and property. At common law, it is possible to have a right or an interest in property; an interest in property necessarily involves rights in property while the reverse is not always true.

For purposes of the civil law, it is appropriate to limit the application of the term "droit" in the French version to the civil law, unless otherwise provided. In the English version, it is appropriate to add a reference to the concept of "right" in order to address the civil law audience and to similarly limit the application of this term to the civil law, unless otherwise provided.

The term "interest" is a common law concept that is translated into French by the term "intérêt". It is therefore appropriate to add a reference to the concept of "intérêt" in the French version in order to address the common law audience.

Proposed Repeal — 12.3

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 3, will repeal s. 12.3, applicable to taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Section 12.3 provides a transitional rule relating to the introduction of the requirement that insurers fully discount their unpaid claims reserves for tax purposes.

Section 12.3 applies where an insurer has deducted, for its taxation year that includes February 23, 1994, an amount in respect of its unpaid claims reserve adjustment under subsection 20(26). This section requires the insurer to include in income for that taxation year, and in each of its subsequent taxation years beginning before 2004, a prescribed portion (as determined under Part LXXXI of the Income Tax Regulations) of the amount so deducted.

This section is obsolete and is repealed for taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011. For further information, see the commentary on subsection 20(26) and Part LXXXI of the Income Tax Regulations.

(a) the generally accepted accounting principles that applied to the insurer in valuing its assets and liabilities for its transition year had applied to it for its base year, and

(b) section 1400 of the Regulations were read in respect of the insurer's base year as it reads in respect of its transition year; and

13. (1) Recaptured depreciation — Where, at the end of a taxation year, the total of the amounts determined for E to J in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) in respect of a taxpayer's depreciable property of a particular prescribed class exceeds the total of the amounts determined for A to D in that definition in respect thereof, the excess shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

Proposed Amendment — 13(1)

13. (1) Recaptured depreciation — If, at the end of a taxation year, the total of the amounts determined for E to K in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) in respect of a taxpayer's depreciable property of a particular prescribed class exceeds the total of the amounts determined for A to D.1 in that definition in respect of that property, the excess shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income of the year.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 7(1), will amend subsec. 13(1) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after February 23, 1998.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Section 13 provides a number of special rules related to the treatment of depreciable property. Generally, these rules apply for the purposes of sections 13 and 20 and the capital cost allowance regulations.

Subsection 13(1) provides for the inclusion in a taxpayer's income of recaptured capital cost allowance when the taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of depreciable property of a prescribed class exceeds the undepreciated capital cost (UCC) of the property.

Subsection 13(1) is amended to add a reference to the new descriptions of D.1 and K of the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21). Those descriptions provide for an addition to the UCC of a class of certain countervailing duties paid in respect of property of the class ("D.1") and a corresponding reduction for any refunds of those amounts ("K").

This amendment applies to taxation years that end after February 23, 1998, and corrects a technical deficiency.

(a) property the proceeds of disposition of which were proceeds referred to in paragraph (b), (c) or (d) of the definition "proceeds of disposition" in subsection (21), or

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 7(2), will amend subpara. 13(4)(c)(ii) to read as above, applicable in respect of dispositions that occur in taxation years that end after December 19, 2000, except that for those dispositions that occur in taxation years that end before December 20, 2001, cl. 13(4)(c)(ii)(B) is to be read as follows:

(B) in any other case, before the end of the first taxation year following the initial year,

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 13(4) allows a taxpayer, who is required under subsection 13(1) to include in income recaptured depreciation resulting from the disposition of certain depreciable property, to elect to defer tax on the recapture to the extent that the taxpayer reinvests the proceeds of disposition in a replacement property within a certain period of time, namely

- in the case of certain involuntary dispositions, e.g., theft or expropriation, before the end of the taxpayer's second taxation year that begins after the property was disposed of, or
- in other situations, before the end of the taxpayer's first taxation year that begins after the property was disposed of.

Subparagraph 13(4)(c)(ii) is amended to accommodate taxation years that are shorter than 12 months, by providing that the periods for acquiring replacement property end at the later of the times mentioned above and

- in the case of involuntary dispositions, within 24 months after the end of the taxation year in which the property was disposed of, or
- in other situations, within 12 months after the end of the taxation year in which the property was disposed of.

(d) the amount of the reduction determined under paragraph (c) shall be deemed to be proceeds of disposition of a depreciable property of the taxpayer that had a capital cost equal to that amount and that was property of the same class as the replacement property, from a disposition made on the later of

(i) the time the replacement property was acquired by the taxpayer, and

(ii) the time the former property was disposed of by the taxpayer.

(4.1) Replacement for a former property — For the purposes of subsection (4), a particular depreciable property of a prescribed class of a taxpayer is a replacement for a former property of the taxpayer if

(a) it is reasonable to conclude that the property was acquired by the taxpayer to replace the former property;

(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer and used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer put the former property;

(b) where the former property was used by the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a business, the particular depreciable property was acquired for the purpose of gaining or producing income from that or a similar business or for use by a person related to the taxpayer for such a purpose;

(c) where the former property was taxable Canadian property (or would have been taxable Canadian property if the taxpayer were non-resident throughout the year in which the former property was disposed of and the former property were used in a business carried on by the taxpayer), the particular depreciable property was taxable Canadian property (or would have been taxable Canadian property if the taxpayer were non-resident throughout the year in which the particular property was acquired and the particular property were used in a business carried on by the taxpayer).

(a.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 73(2), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year except that, where a taxpayer so elects in respect of a former property that was disposed of before June 18, 1998 by notifying the Minister of National Revenue in writing on or before the filing-due date for the taxpayer's first taxation year that ends after June 18, 1998, para. 13(4.1)(a.1) shall, for the purpose of determining whether a property is a replacement property of the former property, be read as follows:

(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer or a person related to the taxpayer put the former property;

Proposed Addition — 13(4.2), (4.3)

(4.2) Election — limited period franchise, concession or license — Subsection (4.3) applies in circumstances where

(a) a taxpayer (in this subsection and subsection (4.3) referred to as the "transferor") has, pursuant to a written agreement with a person or partnership (in this subsection and subsection (4.3) referred to as the "transferee"), at any time disposed of or terminated a former property that is a franchise, concession or licence for a limited period that is wholly attributable to the carrying on of a business at a fixed place;

(b) the transferee acquired the former property from the transferor or, on the termination, acquired a similar property in respect of the same fixed place from another person or partnership; and

(c) the transferor and the transferee jointly elect in their returns of income for their taxation years that include that time to have subsection (4.3) apply in respect of the acquisition and the disposition or termination.

Related Provisions: 96(3) — Election by members of partnership; 248(1)"former business property" — Property that is the subject of election under 13(4.2).

(4.3) Effect of election — If this subsection applies in respect of an acquisition and a disposition or termination,

(a) if the transferee acquired a similar property referred to in paragraph (4.2)(b), the transferee is deemed to have also acquired the former property at the time that the former property was terminated and to own the former property until the transferee no longer owns the similar property;

(b) if the transferee acquired the former property referred to in paragraph (4.2)(b), the transferee is deemed to own the former property until such time as the transferee owns neither the former property nor a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related;

(c) for the purpose of calculating the amount deductible under paragraph 20(1)(a) in respect of the former property in computing the transferee's income, the life of the former property remaining on its acquisition by the transferee is deemed to be equal to the period that was the life of the former property remaining on its acquisition by the transferor; and

(d) any amount that would, if this Act were read without reference to this subsection, be an eligible capital amount to the transferor or an eligible capital expenditure to the transferee in respect of the disposition or termination of the former property by the transferor is deemed to be

(i) neither an eligible capital amount nor an eligible capital expenditure,

(ii) an amount required to be included in computing the capital cost to the transferee of the former property, and

(iii) an amount required to be included in computing the proceeds of disposition to the transferor in respect of a disposition of the former property.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 7(3), will add subsecs. 13(4.2) and (4.3), applicable in respect of dispositions and terminations that occur after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 14(6) permits a taxpayer to defer tax otherwise arising on the disposition of an eligible capital property, to the extent that the taxpayer reinvests the proceeds of disposition in a replacement property within a certain period of time. A franchise, concession or license with an indefinite term may be such an eligible capital property. However, such a property with a defined term will generally be a depreciable property included in Class 14 of Schedule II of the Income Tax Regulations ("the Regulations") and will not be eligible for similar replacement treatment under subsection 13(4) because such a property is not a "former business property" as defined in subsection 248(1). Further, the replacement property provisions for depreciable property generally apply only to immoveable property.

New subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) are added, concurrent with the amendment of the definition "former business property", to allow a taxpayer (the "transferor") to use the replacement property rules under subsection 13(4) in respect of the disposition or termination of a property that is the subject of a joint election with the purchaser (the "transferee") of the property.

New subsection 13(4.2) describes the circumstances under which the transferor and the transferee may make a joint election. Property eligible for the election is a "former property" described in subsection 13(4) that is a franchise, concession or license for a limited period that is wholly attributable to the carrying on of a business at a fixed place. The election may be made where the property is disposed of directly by the transferor to the transferee or where the property of the transferor is terminated and the transferee acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place from another person. Both parties must elect in their returns of income for their respective taxation years that include the year of the disposition or termination.

New subsection 13(4.3) provides rules that apply when an election has been made under subsection 13(4.2). If the transferee acquires the property disposed of by the transferor (the "former property"), the transferee is deemed to own that property until such time as the transferee owns neither the former property nor a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property related. If the transferee instead acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place (i.e., the life of the former property was terminated), the transferee is deemed to have also acquired the former property and to continue to own it until the transferee no longer owns the similar property.

In either case, for the purpose of claiming a deduction by the transferee under paragraph 20(1)(a), the life of the former property in the hands of the transferee is deemed to be the term remaining at the time the transferor originally acquired the property. For instance, a license with a 20-year life when it was originally acquired by the transferor, but with 5 years remaining at the time of the transfer, would be considered to have a 20-year life in the hands of the transferee for the purposes of claiming a deduction under paragraph 20(1)(a).

There may be circumstances where, but for an election under subsection 13(4.2), a portion of the consideration given by a transferee upon the sale of a limited period franchise, license or concession might reasonably be considered to be an eligible capital amount to the transferor and an eligible capital expenditure to the transferee. For instance, a portion of the consideration may reasonably relate to the preferred status that the transferee may receive in obtaining a new property at the end of the term. Where an election under subsection 13(4.2) is made, subsection 13(4.3) provides that such an amount will be neither an eligible capital amount to the transferor, nor an eligible capital expenditure to the transferee, but will instead be included in the cost to the transferee and proceeds of disposition of the transferor of the former property.

In this regard, section 1101 of the Income Tax Regulations is amended, applicable after December 20, 2002, to provide that if more than one property of a taxpayer is described in the same class in Schedule II, and one or more of the properties is a property in respect of which the taxpayer is a transferee that has elected under subsection 13(4.2), a separate class is prescribed for each such property of the taxpayer that would otherwise be included in the same class.

If, subsequent to the acquisition of the former property by the transferee, the life of the former property expires and a similar property in respect of the same fixed place is not acquired by the transferee, the transferee may, under subsection 20(16), be entitled to a terminal loss in respect of the former property. Refer to the commentary to new paragraph 20(16.1)(b) regarding limitations in respect of the deduction of such a terminal loss.

New subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) apply in respect of dispositions and terminations that occur after December 20, 2002.

Ms. Mubarak is a franchisee with 5 years remaining of a 20-year agreement. The original cost was $60,000, and the undepreciated capital cost ("UCC") is $15,000. The agreement is transferable, so she agrees to sell the franchise to Mr. Grando at its fair market value of $85,000. Ms. Mubarak will, in the same taxation year, purchase from Ms. Vincent a replacement franchise that has 15 years remaining of a 20-year term, for $100,000.

But for the making of an election under subsection 13(4.2), Ms. Mubarak would have a capital gain of $25,000 (i.e., $85,000 - $60,000) and a UCC balance of $55,000 (i.e., $15,000 + $100,000 - $60,000) before deducting any capital cost allowance for the year. The adjusted cost base ("ACB") of her replacement franchise would be $100,000. Mr. Grando would have acquired a Class 14 property with an ACB and capital cost of $85,000, depreciable over 5 years.

If Ms. Mubarak and Mr. Grando jointly elect under subsection 13(4.2), Ms. Mubarak may elect under subsections 13(4) and 44(1) to defer the capital gain, such that the ACB and capital cost of the replacement franchise will be deemed to be $75,000 (i.e., $100,000 less the $25,000 deferred capital gain). Furthermore, Ms. Mubarak's UCC balance for Class 14 will be $30,000 (i.e., an increase equivalent to the $100,000 cost of the replacement franchise less the $85,000 proceeds from the former property), to be amortized over the remaining 15-year term. In this regard, note that the term for amortizing Ms. Mubarak's replacement franchise is unaffected by her and Mr. Grando's joint election in respect of the former property. Mr. Grando, on the other hand, will be required to amortize his $85,000 cost of the former property over 20 years, which was the term of the former property when it was first acquired by Ms. Mubarak.

If Mr. Grando does not enter into a new agreement with the franchisor after the 5-year period, he will be eligible for a terminal loss (even if there are other Class 14 assets, because the $85,000 property will be in a "separate class"). However, a terminal loss will not be available if a person dealing non-arm's length with Mr. Grando, at any time before the time that is 24 months after the expiry of the old agreement, enters into a new franchise agreement in respect of the same fixed place.

Consider the same example, except that the original franchise agreement of Ms. Mubarak (the former property) is not transferable, but instead must be terminated and renewed with the franchisor. Suppose that it is renewed by Mr. Grando for a period of 12 years, with an additional amount of $120,000 paid by Mr. Grando to the franchisor for the new agreement.

In this case it is arguable that, for Mr. Grando, the $85,000 payment to Ms. Mubarak is, absent an election under subsection 13(4.2), an eligible capital expenditure by Mr. Grando. That is, Mr. Grando will pay a separate amount of $120,000 to the franchisor for a Class 14 asset, but the $85,000 payment to Ms. Mubarak is, in effect, incurred to acquire the right to renew the franchise, not to acquire a Class 14 property. Ms. Mubarak has likewise received proceeds of disposition of an eligible capital property (i.e., an "eligible capital amount", 3/4 of which would reduce her Cumulative Eligible Capital balance), not proceeds of disposition of a Class 14 property. Absent an election under subsection 13(4.2), Ms. Mubarak would not be entitled to acquire a replacement eligible capital property, but could be entitled to claim a terminal loss on the termination of the original franchise agreement (if she had no other Class 14 assets on hand at the end of the taxation year of disposition). Subsection 14(1) would apply to the eligible capital amount received by Ms. Mubarak.

The $120,000 cost of the new agreement to Mr. Grando, paid to the franchisor, could be written off by Mr. Grando over its 12-year term.

If Ms. Mubarak and Mr. Grando jointly elect under subsection 13(4.2), no part of the proceeds of disposition for the former property will be an eligible capital amount or an eligible capital expenditure. The results are the same as in Example 1, except that Mr. Grando will now have two Class 14 properties:

- the new franchise agreement, the $120,000 cost of which may be written off by him over its 12-year term; and
- the former property, deemed to have been acquired by him and included in a separate class, the $85,000 cost of which may be written off by him over its deemed 20-year term.

Example 3

Consider again Example 1, but suppose that the replacement franchise, purchased by Ms. Mubarak from Ms. Vincent, is itself the subject of a joint election by them under subsection 13(4.2). where

A is the total of all amounts each of which is the capital cost to the taxpayer of a depreciable property of the class acquired before that time,

B is the total of all amounts included in the taxpayer's income under this section for a taxation year ending before that time, to the extent that those amounts relate to depreciable property of the class,

D.1 is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount paid by the taxpayer before that time as or on account of an existing or proposed countervailing or anti-dumping duty in respect of depreciable property of the class,

Proposed Amendment — 13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"E

E is the total depreciation allowed to the taxpayer for property of the class before that time, including, if the taxpayer is an insurer, depreciation deemed to have been allowed before that time under subsection (22) or (23) as they read in their application to the taxpayer's last taxation year that began on or before October 31, 2011,

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 4(1), will amend the description of E in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsec. 13(21) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Subsection 13(21) contains a number of definitions, including the definition "undepreciated capital cost", that apply for purposes of section 13. The definition "undepreciated capital cost" in that subsection also applies for purposes of the Act by operation of subsection 248(1).

The undepreciated capital cost to a taxpayer of depreciable property of a prescribed class as of any time means the amount determined by the formula in that definition.

The description of E in the definition is amended consequential on the repeal of subsections 13(22) and (23). This amendment ensures that the amounts described in those repealed subsections (i.e., certain amounts deemed to have been allowed by insurers as deductions for depreciation for certain past taxation years) continue to be included in determining an insurer's undepreciated capital cost despite the repeal of those subsections.

For further information, see the commentary on subsections 13(22) to (23.1).

E.1 is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount by which the undepreciated capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property of that class is required (otherwise than because of a reduction in the capital cost to the taxpayer of depreciable property) to be reduced at or before that time because of subsection 80(5),

F is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount in respect of a disposition before that time of property (other than a timber resource property) of the taxpayer of the class, and is the lesser of

(a) the proceeds of disposition of the property minus any outlays and expenses to the extent that they were made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition, and

(b) the capital cost to the taxpayer of the property,

G is the total of all amounts each of which is the proceeds of disposition before that time of a timber resource property of the taxpayer of the class minus any outlays and expenses to the extent that they were made or incurred by the taxpayer for the purpose of making the disposition,

H is, where the property of the class was acquired by the taxpayer for the purpose of gaining or producing income from a mine and the taxpayer so elects in prescribed manner and within a prescribed time in respect of that property, the amount equal to that portion of the income derived from the operation of the mine that is, by virtue of the provisions of the Income Tax Application Rules relating to income from the operation of new mines, not included in computing income of the taxpayer or any other person,

I is the total of all amounts deducted under subsection 127(5) or (6), in respect of a depreciable property of the class of the taxpayer, in computing the taxpayers' tax payable for a taxation year ending before that time and subsequent to the disposition of that property by the taxpayer,

J is the total of all amounts of assistance that the taxpayer received or was entitled to receive before that time, in respect of or for the acquisition of a depreciable property of the class of the taxpayer subsequent to the disposition of that property by the taxpayer, that would have been included in an amount determined under paragraph (7.1)(f) had the assistance been received before the disposition, and

K is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount received by the taxpayer before that time in respect of a refund of an amount added to the undepreciated capital cost of depreciable property of the class because of the description of D.1;

Related Provisions: 12(1)(f) — Damage to depreciable property — insurance proceeds; 12(1)(t) — Investment tax credit; 13(1) — Recapture where E to J exceed A to D; 13(2) — Recaptured depreciation for vehicle; 13(4) — Exchanges of property; 13(5) — Transferred property; 13(5.2) — Where rent paid on property before its acquisition; 13(7) — Rule affecting capital cost; 13(21) — "timber resource property"; 13(22), (23) — Deductions deemed allowed to insurer for 1977 and 1978; 13(24) — Acquisition of control — limitation re calculation of UCC; 13(26) — Restriction on deduction before available for use; 13(33) — Consideration given for depreciable capital; 20(16) — Terminal loss; 70(13) — Capital cost of depreciable property on death; 87(2)(j.6) — Amalgamations — continuing corporation; 138(11.31)(b) — Change-in-use rule for insurance properties does not apply for purposes of UCC definition; 248(1)"undepreciated capital cost" — Definition applies to entire Act; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero; 261(7)(d) — Functional currency reporting. The description of E.1 added to the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsec. 13(21) and the corresponding formula amended by 1995, c. 21, subsec. 2(6), applicable to taxation years that end after February 21, 1994.

(21.1) Disposition of building — Notwithstanding subsection (7) and the definition "proceeds of disposition" in section 54, where at any particular time in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes of a building of a prescribed class and the proceeds of disposition of the building determined without reference to this subsection and subsection (21.2) are less than the lesser of the cost amount and the capital cost to the taxpayer of the building immediately before the disposition, for the purposes of paragraph (a) of the description of F in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) and subdivision c,

(21.2) Loss on certain transfers [within affiliated group] — Where

(a) a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") disposes at a particular time (otherwise than in a disposition described in any of paragraphs (c) to (g) of the definition "superficial loss" in section 54) of a depreciable property of a particular prescribed class of the transferor,

Proposed Amendment — 13(21.2)(a)

(a) a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") disposes at a particular time (otherwise than in a disposition described in any of paragraphs (c) to (g) of the definition "superficial loss" in section 54) of a depreciable property — other than, for the purposes of computing the exempt surplus or deficit and taxable surplus or deficit of a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer, in respect of the taxpayer, where the transferor is the affiliate or is a partnership of which the affiliate is a member, depreciable property that is, or would be, if the transferor were a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, excluded property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)) of the transferor — of a particular prescribed class of the transferor,

Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 1(1), will amend para. 13(21.2)(a) to read as above, applicable to dispositions that occur after August 19, 2011.

See also Application under s. 90 re extended reassessment deadline.

Technical Notes: Subsection 13(21.2) defers, in certain circumstances, the realization of a loss that would otherwise arise from the disposition, by a person or partnership (referred to in this commentary as the "transferor"), of a depreciable property. The subsection applies where the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor holds the disposed property, or has a right to acquire it, 30 days after the disposition. Until the earliest of certain so-called "release events" described in the subsection occurs, the transferor is treated as holding a notional depreciable property the capital cost of which is, in effect, the amount of the deferred loss.

The subsection is amended so that — for the purposes of computing a foreign affiliate's exempt surplus or deficit and taxable surplus or deficit [see 113(1) and Reg. 5907(1) — ed.] in respect of a taxpayer, where the transferor is the affiliate, or a partnership of which the affiliate is a member — the subsection does not apply to a disposition of depreciable property that is "excluded property" (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)) of the transferor. This amendment is intended to ensure that the rule in subsection 13(21.2) is not used for planning purposes to defer losses on excluded property and, thus, to increase exempt or taxable surplus amounts or reduce exempt or taxable deficit amounts.

Similar amendments are being made to carve-out excluded property dispositions from the loss denial rules in paragraphs 14(12)(a), 18(13)(a), 40(2)(e.1), (e.2) and (g), 40(3.3)(a) and subsections 40(3.6) and 93(4).

One of the release events in subsection 13(21.2) is the wind-up release event, i.e., where the transferor is a corporation, a wind-up of the transferor (other than a wind-up under subsection 88(1)). Wind-ups under subsection 88(1) do not qualify as a release event because transfers of assets on such wind-ups take place on a rollover basis. Subsection 13(21.2) is also amended so that the wording of the wind-up release event in the subsection takes into account a transferor that is a foreign affiliate of a taxpayer and, in the foreign affiliate context, qualifying liquidations and dissolutions (or QLADs) and designated liquidations and dissolutions (or DLADs) within the meaning of the new definitions in subsections 88(3.1) and 95(1), respectively, which are wind-ups that take place on a rollover basis. This amendment ensures that, where the transferor is a foreign affiliate of the taxpayer, or a partnership of which such an affiliate is a member, for the purposes of computing the transferor's foreign accrual property income and consequential surplus balances, a wind-up release event in subsection 13(21.2) occurs when the liquidation and dissolution of the transferor begins, unless the liquidation and dissolution is a QLAD or DLAD of the transferor.

Similar QLAD and DLAD provisions are being added to paragraph 14(12)(g) and subparagraphs 18(15)(b)(iv) and 40(3.4)(b)(v).

(b) the lesser of

(i) the capital cost to the transferor of the transferred property, and

(A) the fair market value of the transferred property at that time

is of

(B) the fair market value of all property of the particular class immediately before that time

(c) on the 30th day after the particular time, a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "subsequent owner") who is the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor owns or has a right to acquire the transferred property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, hypothec, agreement for sale or similar obligation), the following rules apply:

(d) sections 85 and 97 do not apply to the disposition,

(e) for the purposes of applying this section and section 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) to the transferor for taxation years that end after the particular time,

(i) the transferor is deemed to have disposed of the transferred property for proceeds equal to the lesser of the amounts determined under subparagraphs (b)(i) and (ii) with respect to the transferred property,

(ii) where two or more properties of a prescribed class of the transferor are disposed of at the same time, subparagraph (i) applies as if each property so disposed of had been separately disposed of in the order designated by the transferor or, if the transferor does not designate an order, in the order designated by the Minister,

(iii) the transferor is deemed to own a property that was acquired before the beginning of the taxation year that includes the particular time at a capital cost equal to the amount of the excess described in paragraph (b), and that is property of the particular class, until the time that is immediately before the first time, after the particular time,

(A) at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the transferor nor a person affiliated with the transferor owns or has a right to acquire the transferred property (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, hypothec, agreement for sale or similar obligation),

(B) at which the transferred property is not used by the transferor or a person affiliated with the transferor for the purpose of earning income and is used for another purpose,

(C) at which the transferred property would, if it were owned by the transferor, be deemed by section 128.1 or subsection 149(10) to have been disposed of by the transferor,

(D) that is immediately before control of the transferor is acquired by a person or group of persons, where the transferor is a corporation, or

1. a qualifying liquidation and dissolution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 88(3.1)) of the transferor, or

2. a designated liquidation and dissolution (within the meaning assigned by subsection 95(1)) of the transferor, and

(II) for any other purposes, at which the winding-up (other than a winding-up to which subsection 88(1) applies) of the transferor begins, and

Application: The August 19, 2011 draft legislation (foreign affiliates), subsec. 1(2), will amend cl. 13(21.2)(e)(iii)(E) to read as above, applicable to windings-up and liquidations and dissolutions that begin after August 19, 2011.

(iv) the property described in subparagraph (iii) is considered to have become available for use by the transferor at the time at which the transferred property is considered to have become available for use by the subsequent owner,

(f) for the purposes of subparagraphs (e)(iii) and (iv), where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after the particular time, the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist, and each person who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this paragraph, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership, until the time that is immediately after the first time described in clauses (e)(iii)(A) to (E), and

(g) for the purposes of applying this section and section 20 and any regulations made for the purpose of paragraph 20(1)(a) to the subsequent owner,

(i) the subsequent owner's capital cost of the transferred property is deemed to be the amount that was the transferor's capital cost of the transferred property, and

(ii) the amount by which the transferor's capital cost of the transferred property exceeds its fair market value at the particular time is deemed to have been deducted under paragraph 20(1)(a) by the subsequent owner in respect of property of that class in computing income for taxation years that ended before the particular time.

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 4(2), will repeal subsec. 13(22), applicable to taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Subsections 13(22) and (23) deem certain amounts to have been allowed as a deduction to an insurer for its last taxation year before its 1977 and 1978 taxation years in respect of depreciable property. Subsection 13(22) deems an insurer who has made a branch accounting election for the 1975 taxation year, and has had a 1975 branch accounting election deficiency, to have claimed capital cost allowance for taxation years prior to 1977 in excess of what it claimed on its tax return.

Subsection 13(23) is a part of the transitional rules for purposes of changing to the method of taxing life insurers that commenced in the 1978 taxation year and deems an insurer to have been allowed a certain deduction for depreciation for property of a prescribed class under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing its income for taxation years before its 1978 taxation year.

These subsections are being repealed, although a consequential amendment to the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21) ensures that amounts determined under subsections 13(22) and (23) continue to be included in determining an insurer's undepreciated capital cost.

Related Provisions: 13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"E — Depreciation allowed under 13(22) before its repeal.

(23) Deduction for life insurer — For the purposes of E in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21), a life insurer shall be deemed to have been allowed a deduction for depreciation for property of a prescribed class under paragraph 20(1)(a) in computing income for taxation years before its 1978 taxation year equal to the total of

(a) the amount determined immediately after the end of its 1977 taxation year for E in that definition, with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer (determined without reference to this subsection), and

(b) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all maximum amounts the insurer was entitled to claim with respect to property of the particular prescribed class of the insurer in taxation years ending before 1978 and after 1968

exceeds

(ii) the amount determined under paragraph (a).

Proposed Repeal — 13(23)

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 4(2), will repeal subsec. 13(23), applicable to taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: See under 13(22).

Related Provisions: 13(21)"undepreciated capital cost"E — Depreciation allowed under 13(23) before its repeal.

(23.1) Application of subsec. 138(12) — The definitions in subsection 138(12) apply to this section.

Proposed Repeal — 13(23.1)

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 4(2), will repeal subsec. 13(23.1), applicable to taxation years that begin after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Subsection 13(23.1) provides that the definitions in subsection 138(12) apply to section 13. Specifically, certain expressions defined in subsection 138(12) are relevant to the application of subsection 13(22), including the definitions "1975-76 excess capital cost allowance" and "1975 branch accounting election deficiency". Subsection 13(23.1) is repealed consequential on the repeal of subsection 13(22).

(24) Acquisition of control — Where control of a corporation has been acquired at any time by a person or group of persons and, within the 12-month period that ended immediately before that time, the corporation or a partnership of which it was a majority interest partner acquired depreciable property (other than property that was owned by the corporation or partnership or by a person that would, if section 251.1 were read without reference to the definition "controlled" in subsection 251.1(2)[3], be affiliated with the corporation throughout the period that began immediately before the 12-month period began and ended at the time the property was acquired by the corporation or partnership) that was not used, or acquired for use, by the corporation or partnership in a business that was carried on by it immediately before the 12-month period began,

(a) for the purposes of the description of A in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) and of sections 127 and 127.1, the property is, subject to paragraph (b), deemed not to have been acquired by the corporation or partnership before that time and to have been acquired by it immediately after that time; and

(b) where the property was disposed of by it before that time and was not reacquired by it before that time, for the purpose of the description of A in that definition, the property is deemed to have been acquired by the corporation or partnership immediately before the property was disposed of.

History: Subsec. 13(24) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 73(5), applicable to acquisitions of control that occur after April 26, 1995. The subsec. formerly read:

(24) Where at any time control of a corporation has been acquired by a person or group of persons and, within the twelve month period ending immediately before that time, the corporation, or a partnership of which it was a majority interest partner (within the meaning assigned by subsection 97(3.1)), acquired depreciable property (other than property that was owned by the corporation or partnership or by a person or persons related to the corporation throughout the period commencing immediately before the twelve month period and ending at the time the property was acquired by the corporation or partnership) that was not used, or acquired for use, by the corporation or partnership in a business that was carried on by it immediately before that twelve month period, for the purposes of A in the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection (21) and of sections 127 and 127.1, the property shall be deemed not to have been acquired by the corporation or partnership before that time and shall be deemed to have been acquired by it immediately after that time, except that, where the property was disposed of by it before that time and not reacquired by it before that time, for the purposes of A in that definition, the property shall be deemed to have been acquired by the corporation or partnership immediately before the property was disposed of.

(a) for the purpose of subsection (5) other than the description of A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital", the proceeds of disposition of the property are deemed to be equal to the amount of that eligible capital expenditure;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed at that time of a capital property that had, immediately before that time, an adjusted cost base to the taxpayer equal to the amount of that eligible capital expenditure, for proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds; and

(c) if the eligible capital property is

(i) a qualified farm property (within the meaning assigned by subsection 110.6(1)) of the taxpayer at that time, the capital property deemed by paragraph (b) to have been disposed of by the taxpayer is deemed to be a qualified farm property of the taxpayer at that time, and

(1.01) A taxpayer may, in the taxpayer's return of income for a taxation year, elect that the following rules apply to a disposition made at any time in the taxation year of an eligible capital property (other than goodwill) in respect of a business, if the taxpayer's actual proceeds of the disposition exceed the taxpayer's cost of the property, that cost can be determined and, for taxpayers who are individuals, the taxpayer's exempt gains balance in respect of the business for the taxation year is nil:

(a) for the purposes of subsection (5), the proceeds of disposition of the property are deemed to be equal to that cost;

(a) for the purposes of subsection (5), the proceeds of disposition of the property are deemed to be equal to that cost;

(b) the taxpayer is deemed to have disposed at that time of a capital property that had at that time an adjusted cost base to the taxpayer equal to that cost, for proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds; and

(A) an eligible capital expenditure of the taxpayer in respect of the fishing business that was made or incurred in respect of a disposed property, or

B is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount deemed by this section to be a taxable capital gain of the taxpayer for a taxation year preceding the particular year from the disposition of qualified fishing property of the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 14(1.1) — Parallel rule for qualified farm property; 110.6(2.2) — Capital gains exemption for qualified fishing property; 257 — Formula cannot calculate to less than zero.

(2) Amount deemed payable — Where any amount is, by any provision of this Act, deemed to be a taxpayer's proceeds of disposition of any property disposed of by the taxpayer at any time, for the purposes of this section, that amount shall be deemed to have become payable to the taxpayer at that time.

Interpretation Bulletins: See list at end of s. 14.

(3) Acquisition of eligible capital property [not at arm's length] — Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, where at any particular time a person or partnership (in this subsection referred to as the "taxpayer") has, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, acquired an eligible capital property in respect of a business from a person or partnership with which the taxpayer did not deal at arm's length (in this subsection referred to as the "transferor") and the property was an eligible capital property of the transferor (other than property acquired by the taxpayer as a consequence of the death of the transferor), the eligible capital expenditure of the taxpayer in respect of the business is, in respect of that acquisition, deemed to be equal to 4/3 of the amount, if any, by which

(a) the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) in respect of the disposition of the property by the transferor

Proposed Amendment — 14(3)(a)

(a) the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) in respect of the disposition of the property by the transferor or, if the property is the subject of an election under subsection (1.01) or (1.02) by the transferor, ¾ of the actual proceeds referred to in that subsection,

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 8(1), will amend para. 14(3)(a) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000, except that the reference to "(1.02)" is applicable to taxation years that end after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 14(3) provides rules regarding non-arm's length transfers of eligible capital property. The provision prevents the deduction, under paragraph 20(1)(b), of the portion of the purchaser's cost that is reflected in a capital gains exemption claimed by the vendor under section 110.6. Absent any claim by the vendor of a capital gains exemption under subsection 110.6, the eligible capital expenditure to the purchaser generally equals the proceeds of disposition of the vendor. That is, the eligible capital expenditure of the purchaser equals 4/3 of the amount determined in respect of the vendor under the description of E in the formula in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5).

Paragraph 14(3)(a) is amended, for taxation years that end after February 27, 2000, to ensure that, if the eligible capital property is the subject of an election by the vendor under subsection 14(1.01) or (1.02), the eligible capital expenditure of the purchaser will, subject to the adjustments in subsection 14(3) for deductions under section 110.6, equal the actual proceeds of disposition to the vendor.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, June 6, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your facsimile transmission dated May 21, 2002 and further to your conversation with Ed Short of the Tax Legislation Division. In your facsimile you noted that the application of subsection 14(3) of the Income Tax Act ("the Act") may have unintended results in circumstances where a non-arm's length transfer of eligible capital property is the subject of an election by the vendor under subsection 14(1.01) of the Act.

Subsection 14(1.01) permits a vendor to elect to report a capital gain on the disposition of an eligible capital property, the cost of which the vendor can identify. Where the vendor so elects, the vendor is deemed to have disposed of a capital property with an adjusted cost base equal to that cost, for proceeds of disposition equal to the actual proceeds received for the eligible capital property. If the purchaser is not dealing at arm's length with the vendor, subsection 14(3) of the Act provides, in effect, that the purchaser's cost will be equal to the vendor's original cost rather than the actual proceeds of disposition. This could result in double taxation if the purchaser were to sell the property for an amount in excess of the purchaser's deemed cost.

We appreciate the nature of the unintended consequences of the interaction of subsections 14(1.01) and (3). Consequently, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance an amendment to paragraph 14(3)(a) of the Act to ensure that, if an eligible capital property is the subject of an election by a vendor under subsection 14(1.01) of the Act, the eligible capital expenditure of the non-arm's length purchaser will, subject to the existing adjustments in subsection 14(3) for deductions under section 110.6, be equal to the actual proceeds of disposition to the vendor. Further, it will be recommended that the amendment be effective for taxation years that end after February 27, 2000 which is the effective date of subsection 14(1.01).

Thank you for bringing this matter to my attention.

Yours sincerely,
Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Subsec. 14(3) formerly read:

(5) Definitions — In this section,

"adjustment time" of a taxpayer in respect of a business is

(a) in the case of a corporation formed as a result of an amalgamation occurring after June 30, 1988, the time immediately before the amalgamation,

(b) in the case of any other corporation, the time immediately after the commencement of its first taxation year commencing after June 30, 1988, and

(c) for any other taxpayer, the time immediately after the commencement of the taxpayer's first fiscal period commencing after 1987 in respect of the business.

Proposed Amendment — 14(5)"adjustment time"

"adjustment time", of a taxpayer in respect of a business, means

(a) for a corporation, the time immediately after the commencement of its first taxation year commencing after June 1988, and

(b) for any other taxpayer, the time immediately after the commencement of the taxpayer's first fiscal period commencing after 1987 in respect of the business;

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, s. 5, will amend the definition "adjustment time" in subsec. 14(5) to read as above, deemed to have come into force on November 1, 2011.

Technical Notes: Section 14 provides rules concerning the treatment of expenditures and receipts in respect of eligible capital property. Subsection 14(5) contains definitions that apply for the purposes of section 14.

Subsection 14(5) defines "adjustment time", which applies for the purpose of determining the time at which the three-quarters inclusion rate in respect of expenditures and receipts relating to eligible capital property applies to a taxpayer in calculating the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital.

In the case of a corporation, the adjustment time is generally the time immediately after the beginning of the corporation's first taxation year that begins after June 30, 1988. In the case of any other taxpayer, the adjustment time is the time immediately after the beginning of the taxpayer's first fiscal period that begins after 1987.

The definition "adjustment time" in subsection 14(5) is amended to repeal paragraph (a) of the definition. Existing paragraph (a) provides that the adjustment time in respect of a corporation formed as a result of an amalgamation occurring after June 30, 1988 is the time immediately before the amalgamation. Existing paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition are renumbered as paragraphs (a) and (b), respectively.

This amendment is consequential on the amendment of paragraph 87(2)(f) and the concurrent repeal of paragraph 87(2)(f.1) in 1994. Subsection 87(2) provides rules relating to the amalgamation of two or more corporations. Paragraph 87(2)(f) is intended to treat the cumulative eligible capital of a predecessor corporation in respect of a business as forming part of the cumulative eligible capital of the new corporation where the new corporation carries on the business. Paragraph 87(2)(f) provides that, for the purposes of determining the amount of the new corporation's cumulative eligible capital, the new corporation is deemed to be the same corporation as, and a continuation of, each predecessor corporation.

Prior to the enactment of the current paragraph 87(2)(f), former paragraphs 87(2)(f) and 87(2)(f.1) provided generally that the cumulative eligible capital of a new corporation was the sum of the cumulative eligible capital of the predecessor corporations. Paragraph 87(2)(f) was amended and paragraph 87(2)(f.1) was repealed, by S.C. 1994, c. 7, to ensure that the new corporation is placed in the same position as the predecessor corporations with regard to eligible capital property of a business carried on by a predecessor corporation before the amalgamation. As a result of the amendment to paragraph 87(2)(f) and the repeal of paragraph 87(2)(f.1), a new corporation formed by an amalgamation does not require a new adjustment time with respect to the cumulative eligible capital of the predecessor corporations.

Related Provisions: 248(1)"adjustment time" — Definition applies to entire Act.

"cumulative eligible capital" of a taxpayer at any time in respect of a business of the taxpayer means the amount determined by the formula

where

A is 3/4 of the total of all eligible capital expenditures in respect of the business made or incurred by the taxpayer before that time and after the taxpayer's adjustment time,

Proposed Amendment — 14(5)"cumulative eligible capital"A

A is the amount, if any, by which 3/4 of the total of all eligible capital expenditures in respect of the business made or incurred by the taxpayer after the taxpayer's adjustment time and before that time exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is determined by the formula

$$1/2 \times (A.1 - A.2) \times (A.3/A.4)$$

where

A.1 is the amount required, because of paragraph (1)(b) or 38(a), to be included in the income of a person or partnership (in this definition referred to as the "transferor") not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer in respect of the disposition after December 20, 2002 of a property that was an eligible capital property acquired by the taxpayer directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, from the transferor and not disposed of by the taxpayer before that time,

A.2 is the total of all amounts that can reasonably be considered to have been claimed as deductions under section 110.6 by the transferor in respect of that disposition,

A.3 is the transferor's proceeds from that disposition, and

A.4 is the transferor's total proceeds of disposition of eligible capital property in the taxation year of the transferor in which the property described in A.1 was disposed of,

Application The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 8(2), will amend the description of A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsec. 14(5) to read as above, applicable to taxation years that end after February 27, 2000, except that "disposition after December 20, 2002 of a property that was an eligible capital property" in the description of A.1 is to be read as "disposition after 2003 of a property that was an eligible capital property" if

(a) the taxpayer referred to in that description of A.1 acquired the property referred to in that description from the transferor referred to in that description,

(b) the property was so acquired under an agreement in writing made before December 21, 2002, between the transferor, or a particular person that controlled the transferor, and another person who dealt at an arm's length with the transferor and the particular person, and

(c) no clause in the agreement or any other arrangement allows an obligation of any party to the agreement to be changed, reduced or waived in the event of a change to, or an adverse assessment under, the Act.

Technical Notes (July 2010) The definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) provides for the calculation of a taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital property pool for the purpose of determining the taxpayer's allowable deduction in respect of eligible capital property (ECP) for the year.

Variable A in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" represents 3/4 of the eligible capital expenditures of a taxpayer as the result of the acquisition of an eligible capital property after the taxpayer's "adjustment time" (generally since 1987). Variable A is amended to ensure that the taxpayer's pool includes only the taxable portion of the gain realized by the non-arm's length transferor on the disposition after December 20, 2002 of eligible capital property.

Variable A is generally reduced by 1/2 of the gain of the transferor in respect of the property under paragraph 14(1)(b) or 38(a). (Where the transferor has claimed a capital gains exemption in respect of the transfer under subsection 110.6, subsection 14(5) reduces the taxpayer's eligible capital expenditure accordingly. The reduction in Variable A will therefore not include 1/2 of the amount of that claim.) Where the transferor has realized such a gain in a taxation year in respect of more than one property, the amount of the gain of the transferor for the purposes of this calculation is that proportion of the gain that the proceeds of disposition of the eligible capital property acquired by the taxpayer is of the total proceeds of disposition of all such property disposed of in the transferor's taxation year.

The reduction to Variable A does not apply where the eligible capital property has previously been disposed of by the taxpayer or was acquired on or before December 20, 2002.

Mr. X purchased a farm production quota several years ago for $300,000 and claimed no cumulative eligible capital amounts, such that his cumulative eligible capital at the end of his previous taxation year was $225,000. This year he sold the production quota to his sister, Mrs. Y, for its fair market value of $1,200,000. Mr. X reported income of $450,000 under paragraph 14(1)(b), and did not claim a capital gains exemption under section 110.6 of the Act. (Alternatively, Mr. X could have made an election under subsection 14(1.01) to report a taxable capital gain under paragraph 38(a).)

Because Mrs. Y purchased the production quota in a non-arm's length transaction, the amount included in Variable A of her cumulative eligible capital balance at the end of the year of acquisition would be $675,000 (i.e. 3/4 of $1,200,000, less 1/2 of the taxable gain of Mr. X of $450,000). This result may also be illustrated as the total of the taxable gain of Mr. X of $450,000 and 3/4 of his eligible capital expenditure of $300,000.

Assume the same facts as Example 1, except that Mr. X claimed a capital gains exemption of $250,000 in respect of his $450,000 taxable gain under paragraph 14(1)(b).

Mrs. Y's eligible capital expenditure under subsection 14(3) is deemed to be $700,000, calculated as 4/3 of the excess of

- 3/4 of the actual proceeds of disposition of $1,200,000 (i.e. $900,000)

- 3/2 of the $250,000 capital gains exemption claimed by Mr. X (i.e. $375,000)

The amount included in Variable A of Mrs. Y's cumulative eligible capital balance is calculated as follows:

• 3/4 of her deemed eligible capital expenditure of $700,000 less 1/2 of the amount by which		$525,000
• the taxable gain of Mr. X	$450,000
exceeds
• the capital gains exemption claimed by Mr. X	250,000
	200,000
Amount included in Variable A		$425,000

The calculation of "cumulative eligible capital" is designed so that the pool cannot be negative immediately after the end of the year. In this regard, variable F in the calculation generally reduces the pool by the total amount of ECP deductions claimed in prior years (generally, variable P), net of amounts included in income in prior years (variable R) under subsection 14(1) of the Act as recapture of ECP deductions or as deemed capital gains.

Variable R in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" is amended to ensure that amounts included in the income of a corporation under former paragraph 14(1)(b) (as it applied to taxation years that ended before February 28, 2000) continue to be included in the calculation of variable F.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 6, 2004:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letters of April 20 and April 27, 2004, sent on behalf of your client concerning certain amendments to the definition of "cumulative eligible capital" included in the draft technical amendments to the Income Tax Act released for consultation on December 20, 2002, and again on February 27, 2004. In particular, you request that certain agreements entered into before December 21, 2002 be grandfathered, for the purposes of the application of the proposed variable "A.1" in the definition of "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) of the Income Tax Act.

In 2002, a Canadian corporation ("Quebec") wanted to purchase the assets of an arm's length Canadian corporation ("Opco"), all the shares of which were owned by your client ("Vendor"). For administrative and legal reasons, the assets of Opco could not be sold. In mid-December of that year, Vendor and Quebec entered into a written agreement pursuant to which Quebec agreed to purchase all the shares of Opco and Opco agreed to transfer on a taxable basis all its assets, including a customer list, to a wholly-owned subsidiary. On December 27, 2002, Opco transferred its assets to the wholly-owned subsidiary. On December 31, 2002, Quebec acquired the first portion of shares of Opco.

We also understand that the agreements do not include any obligation to alter, to reduce, or to waive any term or condition of the agreements should there be any change to, or any adverse assessment under, the Income Tax Act. Based on our understanding of the facts as described above, we are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that written agreements such as these, entered into on or before December 21, 2002, be grandfathered.

If the above recommendation is accepted, we anticipate that the amendment would be included in a future technical bill. While I cannot offer any assurance that our recommendation will be accepted, I hope our statement of intent in this letter will be helpful in responding to your concern.

Thank you for bringing this matter to my attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(5.1) Restrictive covenant amount — The description of E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) does not apply to an amount that is received or receivable by a taxpayer in a taxation year if that amount is required to be included in the taxpayer's income because of subsection 56.4(2).

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 8(4), will add subsec. 14(5.1), applicable after October 7, 2003.

Technical Notes (July 2010): New subsection 14(5.1) provides that the description E of the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection 14(5) does not apply to an amount if the amount is required to be included in the taxpayer's income because of subsection 56.4(2). However, subsection 56.4(2) does not apply to an amount if paragraph 56.4(3)(b) applies to the amount, in which case the amount may be a cumulative eligible capital receipt for the purposes of applying section 14. As well, if new subparagraph 56.4(7)(d)(i) or (ii) applies, consideration that could reasonably be regarded as being for the restrictive covenant granted by a taxpayer for nil proceeds may be — depending on the circumstances — a goodwill amount (as defined by new subsection 56.4(1)) that is to be included in computing the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer, or the taxpayer's eligible corporation (as defined by new subsection 56.4(1)). New section 56.4 is more fully described below in the notes accompanying that provision.

New subsection 14(5.1) is consequential to the rules for restrictive covenant amounts as set out in new section 56.4, and applies after October 7, 2003.

Related Provisions: 56.4(7)(d) — Allocation of goodwill amount in restrictive covenant.

(6) Exchange of property — Where in a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "initial year") a taxpayer disposes of an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as the taxpayer's "former property") and the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income for the year in which the taxpayer acquires an eligible capital property that is a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property, such amount, not exceeding the amount that would otherwise be included in the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) (if the description of E in that definition were read without reference to "3/4 of") in respect of a business, as has been used by the taxpayer before the end of the first taxation year after the initial year to acquire the replacement property

Proposed Amendment — 14(6) opening words

(6) Exchange of property — If in a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "initial year") a taxpayer disposes of an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as the taxpayer's "former property") and the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income for the year in which the taxpayer acquires an eligible capital property that is a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property, the amount, not exceeding the amount that would otherwise be included in the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) (if the description of E in that definition were read without reference to "¾ of") in respect of a business, that has been used by the taxpayer to acquire the replacement property before the later of the end of the first taxation year after the initial year and 12 months after the end of the initial year

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 8(5), will amend the opening words of subsec. 14(6) to read as above, applicable in respect of dispositions that occur in taxation years that end after December 19, 2001.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Where a taxpayer has disposed of an eligible capital property in a taxation year and has acquired a replacement eligible capital property before the end of the subsequent taxation year, subsection 14(6) allows the taxpayer to elect to defer the inclusion of an amount in income under subsection 14(1) that would normally result from a negative balance in the taxpayer's cumulative eligible capital account at the end of the year of disposition.

Subsection 14(6) is amended to accommodate taxation years that are shorter than 12 months, by providing that the period for acquiring a replacement property ends at the later of the end of the subsequent taxation year and the time that is 12 months after the end of the taxation year in which the property was disposed of.

(a) shall, subject to paragraph (b), not be included in the amount determined for E in that definition for the purpose of determining the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business; and

(b) shall, to the extent of ¾ thereof, be included in the amount determined for E in that definition for the purpose of determining the cumulative eligible capital of the taxpayer in respect of the business at a time that is the later of

(i) the time the replacement property was acquired by the taxpayer, and

(ii) the time the former property was disposed of by the taxpayer.

Related Provisions: 13(4.2), (4.3) — Exchange of franchise, concession or licence with fixed term; 14(7) — Meaning of a "replacement property"; 96(3) — Election by members of partnership; 220(3.2), Reg. 600(b) — Late filing or revocation of election.

History: The opening words of subsec. 14(6) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 74(3), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year. The opening words formerly read:

(6) Where in a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "initial year") a taxpayer has disposed of an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as the taxpayer's "former property"), if the taxpayer so elects under this subsection in the taxpayer's return of income under this Part for the year in which the taxpayer acquires, as a replacement property for the taxpayer's former property, an eligible capital property (in this section referred to as a "replacement property"), such amount not exceeding the amount that would otherwise be included in the amount determined for E in the definition "cumulative eligible capital" in subsection (5) (if the description of E in that definition were read without reference to "3/4 of") in respect of a business as has been used by the taxpayer before the end of the first taxation year following the initial year to acquire the replacement property

(a.1) it was acquired by the taxpayer for a use that is the same as or similar to the use to which the taxpayer put the former property;

(c) where the former property was used by the taxpayer in a business carried on in Canada, the particular property was acquired for use by the taxpayer in a business carried on by the taxpayer in Canada.

History: Para. 14(7)(a) amended and para. (a.1) added by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 74(4), applicable to dispositions of former properties that occur after the 1993 taxation year. Para. (a) formerly read:

(a) it was acquired by the taxpayer for the same or a similar use as the use to which the taxpayer put the former property;

Para. 14(7)(c) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. II (1991, c. 49), subsec. 10(4), applicable to property acquired as a replacement for a former property disposed of after April 2, 1990, other than a former property disposed of

(a) under an agreement in writing entered into before April 3, 1990; or

(b) pursuant to a written notice of an intention to take the property under statutory authority given before April 3, 1990 or for the sale price of the property sold to a person by whom such a notice was given before April 3, 1990.

Para. 14(7)(c) formerly read:

(c) where the taxpayer was not resident in Canada at the time the taxpayer acquired the particular property, in addition to the requirements in paragraphs (a) and (b), the particular property was acquired for use by the taxpayer in a business carried on by the taxpayer in Canada.

(a) that eligible capital expenditure, determined without reference to this subsection, and

(b) such part, if any, of the assistance as the taxpayer repaid before

(i) the taxpayer ceased to carry on the business, and

(ii) that time

under a legal obligation to pay all or any part of the assistance

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 6(1), will amend subsec. 15(1) to read as above, applicable in respect of benefits conferred on or after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Subsection 15(1) requires a shareholder of a corporation to include in computing income for a taxation year the amount or value of a benefit conferred in the year by the corporation on the shareholder. The provision also applies to benefits conferred on a person in contemplation of the person becoming a shareholder of the corporation.

Subsection 15(1) is amended in conjunction with the introduction of new subsection 15(1.4), which provides three new rules for applying subsection 15(1). Subsection 15(1) is amended in a number of respects.

Firstly, the wording of subsection 15(1) is revised to remove the postambles currently found at the end of paragraph (c) and at the end of the subsection. Paragraph 15(1)(c) is reworded and, in the case of the postamble at the end of subsection 15(1), its substance is moved to the preamble of the revised subsection: (1) the requirement that the benefit be included in computing income of the shareholder for the year; and (2) the exception that applies to the extent a benefit is deemed by section 84 to be a dividend. No substantive change is made to the wording of paragraphs 15(1)(b) to (d).

Secondly, subsection 15(1) is clarified to apply to a benefit conferred by a corporation on a member of a partnership that is a shareholder.

The reference to "contemplated shareholder" in subsection 15(1) is clarified and expanded by new paragraph 15(1.4)(a). Further information is provided in commentary on that new paragraph.

The application of subsection 15(1) in the context of multiple tiers of partnerships is clarified by the rule in new paragraph 15(1.4)(b). Further information is provided in the commentary on that new paragraph.

The exception in current paragraph 15(1)(a) — that applies to reductions of a corporation's paid-up capital, the redemption, cancellation or acquisition of its shares or on the winding up, discontinuance or reorganization of its business, or otherwise by way of a transaction to which section 88 applies — is narrowed so that it applies only if the corporation is a resident of Canada. This amendment, along with the introduction of paragraph 15(1)(a.1), responds to the decision of the Tax Court of Canada in Morasse, 2004 D.T.C. 2435, [2004] 2 C.T.C. 3085, which indicated that current paragraph 15(1)(a) may apply where the corporation conferring the benefit in the course of a reorganization is a foreign corporation. As noted below under paragraph 15(1)(a.1), this exception is no longer available to a non-resident corporation.

Finally, new paragraph 15(1)(a.1) is added to provide an exception from subsection 15(1) where a corporation that is not resident in Canada confers a benefit on a shareholder of the corporation in any of the following ways:

- By way of a distribution to which subsection 86.1(1) applies — in general, to a distribution in which a foreign corporation distributes (spins-off) shares of another foreign corporation in circumstances where the spin-off distribution is an "eligible distribution" under section 86.1.
- By a reduction of paid-up capital of the corporation to which subparagraph 53(2)(b)(ii) applies. This amendment, which is intended to take into account amendments to paragraph 53(2)(b) that were proposed in a previous release dealing with foreign affiliates, ensures that the exception only applies to reductions of paid-up capital made by non-resident corporations that are not foreign affiliates.
- By the redemption, acquisition or cancellation by the corporation of shares of its capital stock.
- On the winding-up, or liquidation and dissolution, of the corporation.

(1.4) [Repealed]

Proposed Addition — 15(1.4)

(1.4) Interpretation — subsec. (1) ["contemplated shareholder"] — For the purposes of subsection (1) and this subsection,

(a) a contemplated shareholder of a corporation is

(i) a person or partnership on whom a benefit is conferred by the corporation in contemplation of the person or partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation, or

(ii) a member of a partnership on whom a benefit is conferred by the corporation in contemplation of the partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation;

(b) a person or partnership that is (or is deemed by this paragraph to be) a member of a particular partnership that is a member of another partnership is deemed to be a member of the other partnership; and

(c) a benefit conferred by a corporation on an individual — other than a trust in which no individual (other than a trust) is beneficially interested — who does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, a shareholder of the corporation, a member of a partnership that is a shareholder of the corporation, or a contemplated shareholder of the corporation, is deemed to be a benefit conferred on the shareholder, the member, or the contemplated shareholder, as the case may be, except to the extent that subsection (1) or subsection 105(1) would apply to the individual in respect of the benefit if this Act were read without reference to this paragraph.

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 6(2), will add subsec. 15(1.4), applicable in respect of benefits conferred on or after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: New subsection 15(1.4) provides rules of interpretation that apply for the purposes of applying the shareholder benefit income inclusion rule in subsection 15(1).

New paragraph 15(1.4)(a) clarifies that subsection 15(1) applies not only where a benefit is conferred by a corporation on a person in contemplation of the person becoming a shareholder, but also where the benefit is conferred on a partnership in contemplation of the partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation.

Further, a "contemplated shareholder" includes a member of a partnership on whom a benefit is conferred by the corporation in contemplation of the partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation. This clarifies that subsection 15(1) applies where the benefit is conferred on a member of a partnership in contemplation of the partnership becoming a shareholder of the corporation.

New paragraph 15(1.4)(b) provides that a "person or partnership" that is (or is treated by the paragraph as being) a member of a particular partnership that is a member of another partnership, is deemed to be a member of the other partnership. In general, this extension provides a partnership look-through rule when considering if a person or partnership is a member of a partnership that is a shareholder of a corporation or a partnership that is a contemplated shareholder of the corporation.

New paragraph 15(1.4)(c) provides a rule that applies, in general, if a benefit is conferred on an individual — other than a trust in respect of which no individual (other than a trust) is beneficially interested — who does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, a shareholder of the corporation, a member of a partnership that is a shareholder of the corporation or a contemplated shareholder of the corporation. In such cases, new paragraph 15(1.4)(c) provides that — for the purposes of subsection 15(1) — the benefit is conferred on the shareholder, the member of the partnership or the contemplated shareholder, as the case may be. This rule does not apply to the extent the benefit is conferred on an individual who is required to include the value of the benefit in computing the individual's own income under subsection 15(1) or subsection 105(1).

History: Subsec. 15(1.4) repealed by 1997, c. 10, subsec. 269(1), applicable to 1996 et seq. Subsec. (1.4) formerly read:

(1.4) Idem — Where the amount or value of a benefit (in this subsection referred to as the "benefit amount") (other than a benefit referred to in subsection (5)) would be required under subsection (1) to be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year in respect of a supply, other than a zero-rated supply or an exempt supply (within the meanings assigned by Part IX of the Excise Tax Act), of property or a service if no amount were paid to the corporation or to a person related to the corporation in respect of the amount that would be so required to be included, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined by the formula

A is the amount that would be so required under subsection (1) to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year; and

B is the amount, if any, included in the benefit amount that can reasonably be attributed to tax imposed under an Act of the legislature of a province that is a prescribed tax for the purposes of section 154 of the Excise Tax Act.

Subsec. 15(1.4) substituted by 1994, c. 7, Sch. VIII (1993, c. 24), subsec. 5(3), applicable to 1991 et seq., except that in its application to the 1991 taxation year the subsec. shall be read as follows:

(1.4) Where the amount or value (in this subsection referred to as the "benefit amount") of a benefit is required under subsection (1) to be included in computing a taxpayer's income for a taxation year in respect of a supply, other than a zero-rated supply or an exempt supply, (within the meanings assigned by Part IX of the Excise Tax Act) of property or a service, there shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year the total of all amounts each of which is an amount determined by the formula

where

A is an amount required under subsection (1) to be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year in respect of a supply (other than a zero-rated supply or an exempt supply, within the meanings assigned by Part IX of the Excise Tax Act) of property or a service; and

B is an amount, if any, included in the benefit amount that can reasonably be attributed to tax imposed under an Act of the legislature of a province that is a prescribed tax for the purposes of section 154 of the Excise Tax Act.

Subsec. 15(1.4) formerly read:

(1.4) Idem — Where the amount or value of a benefit is required under subsection (1) to be included in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year (in this subsection referred to as the "benefit amount") in respect of a supply, other than a zero-rated supply or an exempt supply (within the meanings assigned by Part IX of the Excise Tax Act), of property or a service in respect of which section 173 of that Act applies, an additional amount, equal to 7% of the amount by which the benefit amount exceeds the amount, if any, included in the benefit amount that may reasonably be attributed to tax imposed under an Act of the legislature of a province that is a prescribed tax for the purposes of section 154 of the Excise Tax Act, shall be included in computing the income of the taxpayer for the year.

(2) Shareholder debt — Where a person (other than a corporation resident in Canada) or a partnership (other than a partnership each member of which is a corporation resident in Canada) is

(a) a shareholder of a particular corporation,

(b) connected with a shareholder of a particular corporation, or

(c) a member of a partnership, or a beneficiary of a trust, that is a shareholder of a particular corporation and the person or partnership has in a taxation year received a loan from or has become indebted to the particular corporation, any other corporation related to the particular corporation or a partnership of which the particular corporation or a corporation related to the particular corporation is a member, the amount of the loan or indebtedness is included in computing the income for the year of the person or partnership.

History: Subsec. 15(2) amended by 1998, c. 19, subsec. 75(1), applicable to loans made and indebtedness arising in 1990 et seq. The subsec. formerly read:

(2) Where a person (other than a corporation resident in Canada) or a partnership (other than a partnership each member of which is a corporation resident in Canada) is a shareholder of a particular corporation, is connected with a shareholder of a particular corporation or is a member of a partnership, or a beneficiary of a trust, that is a shareholder of a particular corporation and the person or partnership has in a taxation year received a loan from or has become indebted to the particular corporation, to any other corporation related thereto or to a partnership of which the particular corporation or a corporation related thereto is a member, the amount of the loan or indebtedness shall be included in computing the income for the year of the person or partnership, unless

(a) the loan was made or the indebtedness arose

(i) in the ordinary course of the lender's or creditor's business and, in the case of a loan, the lending of money was part of its ordinary business,

(ii) in respect of an individual who is an employee of the lender or creditor or the spouse of an employee of the lender or creditor to enable or assist the individual to acquire a dwelling or a share of the capital stock of a cooperative housing corporation acquired for the sole purpose of acquiring the right to inhabit a dwelling owned by the corporation, where the dwelling is for the individual's habitation,

(iii) where the lender or creditor is a corporation, in respect of an employee of the corporation, or of another corporation that is related to the corporation, to enable or assist the employee to acquire from the corporation, or a corporation related thereto, previously unissued fully paid shares of the capital stock of the corporation or the related corporation,

(iv) in respect of an employee of the lender or creditor to enable or assist the employee to acquire an automobile to be used by the employee in the performance of the duties of the employee's office or employment, and bona fide arrangements were made, at the time the loan was made or the indebtedness arose, for repayment thereof within a reasonable time; or

(b) the loan or indebtedness was repaid within one year from the end of the taxation year of the lender or creditor in which it was made or incurred and it is established, by subsequent events or otherwise, that the repayment was not made as part of a series of loans or other transactions and repayments.

Proposed Amendment — 15(2.1) opening words

(2.1) Persons [or partnership] connected with a shareholder — For the purposes of subsection (2), a person or partnership is connected with a shareholder of a particular corporation if that person or partnership does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, the shareholder, unless that person or partnership is

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 6(3), will amend the opening words of subsec. 15(2.1) to read as above, applicable in respect of loans made and indebtedness arising after October 31, 2011.

Technical Notes: Subsection 15(2) generally requires that certain indebtedness be included in the income of the debtor in the year in which the indebtedness arose. This subsection is intended to prevent a person, that is directly or indirectly a shareholder of a particular corporation or that is connected with a shareholder of the particular corporation, from avoiding tax by receiving property from the corporation through an otherwise non-taxable loan, rather than as a dividend or other taxable amount. Paragraphs 15(2)(a) to (c) describe the debtors to which section 15(2) applies in terms of their relationships with the particular corporation. In this regard, paragraph 15(2)(b) provides that subsection 15(2) may apply to a debtor if the debtor is connected with a shareholder of the particular corporation.

Section 15(2.1) generally provides, for the purposes of subsection 15(2), that a person is connected with a shareholder of a particular corporation if the person does not deal at arm's length with the shareholder. Subsection 15(2.1) is amended to clarify that a partnership can be connected with a shareholder of a particular corporation if that partnership does not deal at arm's length with, or is affiliated with, the shareholder.

(a) a foreign affiliate of the particular corporation; or

(b) a foreign affiliate of a person resident in Canada with which the particular corporation does not deal at arm's length.

(c) where the lender or creditor is a particular corporation, in respect of an employee of the particular corporation or of another corporation that is related to the particular corporation, to enable or assist the employee to acquire from the particular corporation, or from another corporation related to the particular corporation, previously unissued fully paid shares of the capital stock of the particular corporation or the related corporation, as the case may be, to be held by the employee for the employee's own benefit, or

Proposed Amendment — 17(1)(b)(iii)

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Sept. 3, 2002:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in reply to your letter dated March 20, 2002 to Mr. Wally Conway in which you requested amendments to subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) and subsection 17(2) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act").

Subsection 17(l) of the Act generally applies where a non-resident owes an amount, to a corporation resident in Canada, at any time in a particular taxation year of the corporation, that amount owing to the corporation has been or remains outstanding for more than one year and the corporation does not include, in computing its income for the particular taxation year, interest, computed at a reasonable rate, on the amount owing to the corporation for the period in the particular taxation year during which the amount was owing. Where subsection 17(l) applies, the corporation is treated as having received interest, computed at a prescribed rate, on the amount owing for the period in the particular taxation year during which the amount was owing to the corporation.

Subsection 17(2) is an anti-avoidance rule that supports subsection 17(l) and is intended to prevent the use of indirect arrangements to circumvent subsection 17(1). Subsection 17(2) generally provides that, where a corporation resident in Canada (Canco) makes a loan, or transfers property, to an intermediary which in turn uses the loaned money or the transferred property to make a loan or transfer property to another non-resident person (the ultimate debtor), the ultimate debtor is treated as if it owes to Canco an amount equal to the amount owing by the ultimate debtor that arose because of the arrangement.

Subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) addresses cases where subsection 17(1) applies to a corporation resident in Canada (Canco) in respect of an amount equal to an amount owing to a controlled foreign affiliate (CFA) of Canco by a non-resident person because that amount is deemed under subsection 17(2) to be an amount owing to Canco by the non-resident person. In those cases, subparagraph 17(l)(b)(iii) was to provide for a reduction in the subsection 17(1) income inclusion of Canco in a particular taxation year of Canco. The reduction is intended to equal the amount of foreign accrual property income of CFA that is included in Canco's income for the particular year or a subsequent year under subsection 91 (1) of the Act that can reasonably be attributed to the interest income of CFA derived from the amount owing to CFA by the non-resident person for the period in the particular year of Canco during which that amount was so owing to CFA and during which an amount equal to that amount owing to CFA was deemed to be owing to Canco by the non-resident person. For example, subparagraph 17(l)(b)(iii) is intended to apply where Canco transfers property to CFA, CFA then uses the property to make an interest-bearing loan to another non-resident person (the ultimate debtor), CFA earns foreign accrual property income from the interest-bearing loan made to the ultimate debtor, Canco includes that foreign accrual property income of CFA in its income, the ultimate debtor is deemed under subsection 17(2) to owe an amount to Canco equal to the amount it owes to CFA and subsection 17(1) applies to Canco in respect of the amount deemed to be owed to it by the ultimate debtor.

In your letter you noted that, in cases where subsection 17(2) applies, the deemed amount owing to Canco by the non-resident person to which subsection 17(1) applies and to which subparagraph 17(l)(b)(iii) refers is not the actual amount owing to CFA by the non-resident person that gives rise to the foreign accrual property income of CFA. Therefore, you noted that, in those cases, subparagraph 17(1)(b)(iii) would not apply to reduce Canco's income inclusion under subsection 17(1). From a tax policy point of view, we agree with your conclusion that the non-application of subparagraph 17(10)(b)(iii) in those cases would be inappropriate. We also agree with your submission that, from a tax policy point of view, it would be appropriate to amend subsection 17(2) so that the amount deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owed to Canco by the non-resident borrower is the actual amount owed to CFA by the non-resident borrower, rather than merely an equivalent amount.

In your letter, you also gave an example involving the interaction of subsections 17(1), (2) and (11.2). In that example, a corporation resident in Canada (Canco) transfers property to a controlled foreign affiliate (CFA) of Canco, CFA uses the property to make an interest-bearing loan (Loan #1) to another non-resident person (Forcol) and then Forcol uses the funds to make a non interest-bearing loan (Loan #2) to another non-resident person (Forco2). Subsection 17(11.2) could apply to deem Loan #2 to have been made directly by CFA to Forco2. Thus, it is Loan #2 rather than Loan #1 that would be deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owing to Canco by CFA. From a tax policy point of view, we agree with your conclusion that, since it is the interest income earned by CFA on Loan #1 that would be included in computing CFA's foreign accrual property income, it would be appropriate in those cases to give reference to Loan #1 when applying subsection 17(2) in conjunction with subparagraph 17(l)(b)(iii) where Loan #1 can be linked to Loan #2.

We are prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subsection 17(2) of the Act be amended to provide that the amount that is deemed by that subsection to be owing to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person who is described in paragraph 17(2)(a) is the amount owing by that non-resident person to the particular person or partnership who is described in that paragraph under the same terms and conditions that apply to the amount owing by that non-resident person to the particular person or partnership, notwithstanding that the amount remains owing by that non-resident person to the particular person or partnership.

We are also prepared to recommend to the Minister of Finance that subparagraph 17(l)(b)(iii) of the Act be amended. The recommended amendments to that paragraph would provide for the inclusion of amounts in respect of a corporation resident in Canada that are amounts that, under subsection 91(1) of the Act, are included in computing the income of the corporation resident in Canada for the particular year or a subsequent year and that can reasonably be attributed to interest income of a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation resident in Canada derived from specified amounts in respect of the corporation resident in Canada that are owing to the controlled foreign affiliate when they qualified as such amounts. Amounts will, at a particular time, qualify as specified amounts in respect of a corporation resident in Canada that are owing to a controlled foreign affiliate of that corporation, if at that time,

- the amounts are owing to the controlled foreign affiliate by the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1), the amounts are deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owed to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person and the amounts are the amounts to which subsection 17(1) applies in respect of the corporation, or
- the amounts (not exceeding the actual amounts owing to which subsection 17(1) applies) are owing to the controlled foreign affiliate by a non-resident person and
  1. would be deemed by subsection 17(2), if section 17 were read without reference to subsection 17(11.2), to be owed to the corporation resident in Canada by that non-resident person,
  2. are loans made by the controlled foreign affiliate that are deemed, under paragraph 17(11.2)(b), not to have been made by the controlled foreign affiliate, and
  3. are loans made by the controlled foreign affiliate to persons other than the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1) that resulted in a loan being made to the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1) that
     - is deemed by paragraph 17(11.2)(a) to have been made by the controlled foreign affiliate to the non-resident person referred to in subsection 17(1) for the purposes of subsection 17(2), and
     - is deemed by subsection 17(2) to be owed to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person and is the amount owing to which subsection 17(1) applies.

We will recommend that the amendments apply to taxation years that begin after February 23, 1998.

Thank you for writing.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber
General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(i) the fair market value of the beneficiary's interest in the trust at that time

is of

(ii) the fair market value of all the beneficial interests in the trust at that time; and

(a) arose as a loan or advance of money to the affiliate that the affiliate has used, throughout the period that began when the loan or advance was made and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid,

(i) for the purpose of earning

(A) income from an active business, as defined in subsection 95(1), of the affiliate, or

(B) income that was included in computing the income from an active business of the affiliate under subsection 95(2), or

(ii) for the purpose of making a loan or advance to another controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation where, if interest became payable on the loan or advance at any time in the period and the affiliate was required to include the interest in computing its income for a taxation year, that interest would not be required to be included in computing the affiliate's foreign accrual property income for that year; or

(b) arose in the course of an active business, as defined in subsection 95(1), carried on by the affiliate throughout the period that began when the amount owing arose and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid.

(ii) the fair market value of all interests in the partnership at that time; and

(b) each beneficiary of a non-discretionary trust is deemed to own that proportion of the number of shares of a class of the capital stock of a corporation owned by the trust at that time that

(a) the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower is deemed to have been made by the initial lender to the intended borrower (to the extent of the lesser of the amount of the loan made by the initial lender to the intermediate lender and the amount of the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower) under the same terms and conditions and at the same time as it was made by the intermediate lender; and

(b) the loan made by the initial lender to the intermediate lender and the loan made by the intermediate lender to the intended borrower are deemed not to have been made to the extent of the amount of the loan deemed to have been made under paragraph (a).

(a) all of those persons would at that time be controlled foreign affiliates of the corporation resident in Canada; and

(b) because of subsection (8), subsection (1) would not apply to the corporation resident in Canada in respect of the amount that would, but for this subsection, have been deemed to have been owing at that time to the corporation resident in Canada by the non-resident person described in subparagraph (3)(b)(i).

(b) where any person or partnership acquires or disposes of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, either directly or indirectly, and it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the acquisition or disposition of the shares is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that subsection (1) would otherwise require any corporation to include in computing its income for any taxation year, those shares are deemed not to have been acquired or disposed of, as the case may be, and where the shares were unissued by the corporation immediately before the acquisition, those shares are deemed not to have been issued.

Proposed Amendment — Repeal of 18(1)(m) by S.C. 2003, c. 28

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 158, will amend the application of the repeal of para. 18(1)(m) by S.C. 2003, c. 28 to replace "applicable to taxation years that begin after 2006. For each taxation year that ends after 2002 and begins before 2007." with "applicable to taxation years that begin after 2007. For each taxation year that ends after 2002 and begins before 2008," in force on Royal Assent.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Section 2 of the Act to Amend the Income Tax Act (Natural Resources) S.C. 2003, c.28, repealed paragraph 18(1)(m) effective for taxation years that begin after 2006. Subsections 2(5) and (7) are being amended with the result that paragraph 18(1)(m) is now being repealed effective for taxation years that begin after 2007. This amendment is being made to accommodate a reimbursement made in a taxation year of the taxpayer that begins after 2006 and before 2008 in circumstances where the taxpayer's taxation year does not coincide with the taxation year or fiscal period of the recipient, as would normally be the case where the recipient of the reimbursement is a partnership of which the taxpayer is a member.

(2.2) Base level deduction — For the purposes of this section, a corporation's base level deduction for a taxation year is the amount that would be the amount of interest, computed at the prescribed rate, for the year in respect of a loan of $1,000,000 outstanding throughout the year, unless the corporation is associated in the year with one or more other corporations in which case, except as otherwise provided in this section, its base level deduction for the year is nil.

(2.3) Associated corporations — Notwithstanding subsection (2.2), if all of the corporations that are associated with each other in a taxation year have filed with the Minister in prescribed form an agreement whereby, for the purposes of this section, they allocate an amount to one or more of them for the taxation year and the amount so allocated or the total of the amounts so allocated, as the case may be, does not exceed $1,000,000, the base level deduction for the year for each of the corporations is the base level deduction that would be computed under subsection (2.2) in respect of the corporation if the reference in that subsection to $1,000,000 were read as a reference to the amount so allocated to it.

Interpretation Bulletins: IT-153R3: Land developers — subdivision and development costs and carrying charges on land.

(2.5) Special rules for base level deduction — Notwithstanding any other provision of this section,

(a) where a corporation, in this paragraph referred to as the "first corporation", has more than one taxation year ending in the same calendar year and is associated in two or more of those taxation years with another corporation that has a taxation year ending in that calendar year, the base level deduction of the first corporation for each taxation year in which it is associated with the other corporation ending in that calendar year is, subject to the application of paragraph (b), an amount equal to its base level deduction for the first such taxation year determined without reference to paragraph (b); and

(b) where a corporation has a taxation year that is less than 51 weeks, its base level deduction for the year is that proportion of its base level deduction for the year determined without reference to this paragraph that the number of days in the year is of 365.

(i) the interest is not deductible to the corporation because of the application of subsection 18(4) of the Act, or

(b) an amount in respect of interest, that would otherwise be required to be included in computing the income of a corporation resident in Canada because of the application of subparagraph (30)(b), shall not be included to the extent of any portion of the interest that is included in computing the income of the corporation in respect of the foreign accrual property income of a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation (net of any amount deductible in respect of that portion of the interest because of the application of subsection 91(4) of the Act).

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 29, 2012: Thin Capitalization Rules

The thin capitalization rules limit the deductibility of interest expense of a Canadian-resident corporation in circumstances where the amount of debt owing to certain non-residents exceeds a 2 to 1 debt-to equity ratio [18(4)(a) — ed.]. The thin capitalization rules protect the Canadian tax base from erosion through excessive interest deductions in respect of debt owing to these non-residents. These rules apply to debts owing to a specified shareholder (a person or group owning shares representing more than 25% of the votes or value of the corporation) that is not resident in Canada and any other non-resident who does not deal at arm's length with a specified shareholder.

The Advisory Panel on Canada's System of International Taxation (the Advisory Panel) [www.apcsit-gcrefi.ca; see Possible Future Amendments box under s. 90 — ed.] made a number of recommendations relating to the thin capitalization rules, including reducing the debt-to-equity ratio from 2-to-1 to 1.5-to-1 and extending the rules to partnerships, trusts and Canadian branches of non-resident corporations. The Advisory Panel also encouraged the Government to review the treatment of interest expense that is not deductible under Canada's thin capitalization rules (disallowed interest expense) in order to ensure that non resident investors are prevented from inappropriately reducing their Canadian withholding tax obligations.

Budget 2012 proposes to improve the integrity and fairness of the thin capitalization rules by:

- reducing the debt-to-equity ratio from 2-to-1 to 1.5-to-1;
- extending the scope of the thin capitalization rules to debts of partnerships of which a Canadian-resident corporation is a member;
- treating disallowed interest expense under the thin capitalization rules as dividends for Part XIII withholding tax purposes; and
- preventing double taxation in certain circumstances where a Canadian-resident corporation borrows money from its controlled foreign affiliate.

Debt-to-Equity Ratio

The intent of the thin capitalization rules generally, and the debt-to-equity ratio in particular, is to allow Canadian corporations to finance themselves using a reasonable amount of debt owing to certain non-residents, while protecting the tax base against excessive interest deductions in respect of such debt. A useful guidepost for setting the debt to equity ratio is the typical capital structure of Canadian corporations generally. The Advisory Panel concluded that the permitted 2-to-1 debt-to-equity ratio [18(4)(a) — ed.] is high compared to actual industry ratios in the Canadian economy, suggesting it allows inappropriately high levels of foreign related party debt. Analysis by the Government indicates that this conclusion continues to hold.

Canada's debt-to-equity ratio also appears high relative to world standards because the ratios in many other countries apply to broader measures of debt (which the Advisory Panel also noted). For example, some countries include in their ratios third-party debt which is guaranteed by a foreign parent corporation, while others take into account all debt owing to third parties.

In order to better protect the tax base, Budget 2012 proposes to reduce the debt-to-equity ratio in the thin capitalization rules from 2-to-1 to 1.5-to-1.

This measure will apply to corporate taxation years that begin after 2012.

Partnerships

Partnerships are not taxable under the Income Tax Act. A partnership calculates its income or loss as if it were a separate person resident in Canada and the income or loss is then allocated to its partners.

While Canada's thin capitalization rules restrict the deductibility of interest expense incurred by Canadian-resident corporations, the rules do not reference interest expense incurred by partnerships. The Advisory Panel recommended that the scope of the thin capitalization rules be extended to partnerships.

Budget 2012 proposes to extend the thin capitalization rules to debts owed by partnerships of which a Canadian-resident corporation is a member. In particular, for the purpose of determining the corporation's debt-to-equity ratio under the thin capitalization rules, debt obligations of the partnership will be allocated to its members based on their proportionate interest in the partnership.

In circumstances where a corporate partner's permitted debt-to-equity ratio is exceeded, the partnership's interest deduction will not be denied but an amount will be included in computing the income of the partner from a business or property, as appropriate. The source of this income inclusion will be determined by reference to the source against which the interest is deductible at the partnership level. This inclusion will equal the amount of the interest on the portion of the allocated partnership debt that exceeds the permitted debt-to-equity ratio.

Example

Canco 1 and Canco 2 are Canadian-resident corporations and are equal partners in a partnership that earns income from a business. Canco 1 is wholly owned by Forco, a non-resident corporation. The Canco 1 shares owned by Forco have paid-up capital of $4,000 but Canco 1 has no other capital for the purposes of the thin capitalization rules. Forco lends $3,000 to the partnership and lends $8,500 directly to Canco 1.

Canco 1 has a 50% interest in the partnership and will therefore be allocated 50% of the partnership loan ($1,500) for thin capitalization purposes. Canco 1 has capital of $4,000 and is considered to have outstanding debts to a specified non-resident (Forco) of $10,000 ($8,500 debt owed by Canco 1 to Forco plus $1,500 in debt allocated from the partnership).

With a permitted debt-to-equity ratio of 1.5-to-1, Canco 1 has $4,000 of total excess debt — that is, ($10,000 – 1.5 x $4,000)/10,000, or 2/5, of $10,000. This 2/5 ratio is applied to interest on the debt owed directly to Forco by Canco 1 as well as the debt allocated from the partnership to determine how much interest is denied, or added back to income, respectively. Accordingly, 2/5 of the interest deduction in respect of the $8,500 direct loan from Forco will be denied and an amount equal to 2/5 of the deductible interest expense in respect of the $1,500 debt allocated from the partnership will be required to be included in computing the income of Canco 1 from the partnership's business.

This measure will apply in respect of debts of a partnership that are outstanding during corporate taxation years that begin on or after March 29, 2012.

Disallowed Interest Treated as a Dividend

The Advisory Panel encouraged the Government to review the withholding tax treatment of interest that is disallowed under the thin capitalization rules. Interest expense of a corporation that is not deductible as a result of the application of the thin capitalization rules is, for income computation purposes under Part I of the Income Tax Act, treated the same as a non-deductible return on equity (i.e., a dividend). It is nevertheless treated as interest for withholding tax purposes under Part XIII of the Income Tax Act.

Consistent with the treatment of disallowed interest for income computation purposes, Budget 2012 proposes to recharacterize disallowed interest expense (including for this purpose any amount that is required to be included in computing the income of a corporation in respect of an amount deductible by a partnership of which the corporation is a member) as a dividend for non-resident withholding tax purposes.

The calculations required for compliance with the thin capitalization rules are required to be made after the end of a corporation's taxation year. Under this proposal, disallowed interest expense of a corporation for a taxation year will be allocated to specified non-residents in proportion to the corporation's debt owing in the taxation year to all specified non residents (taking into account debts owing by partnerships of which the corporation is a member). The corporation will be allowed to allocate the disallowed interest expense to the latest interest payments made to any particular specified non-resident in the taxation year. Where the disallowed interest expense has not been paid by the end of the taxation year of the corporation, the disallowed interest expense will be deemed to have been paid as a dividend by the corporation at the end of that taxation year.

The relevant withholding tax will be due at the time that it would have been due if the deemed dividend had been paid at the time the disallowed interest expense was paid or deemed to have been paid. In circumstances where the amount withheld exceeds the withholding tax payable, the non-resident creditor will be able to obtain a refund of the excess.

This measure will apply to taxation years that end on or after March 29, 2012. For taxation years that include March 29, 2012, the measure will apply to an amount of disallowed interest expense that is based on a pro-ration for the number of days in the taxation year that are on or after March 29, 2012.

Foreign Affiliate Loans

Under the existing definition of "outstanding debts to specified non-residents" in subsection 18(5) of the Income Tax Act, the thin capitalization rules can, in some circumstances, apply to loans made to a Canadian-resident corporation from a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation.

The Canadian tax system also contains rules that protect the tax base by preventing taxpayers from shifting passive income to low-tax jurisdictions. Under these rules, foreign accrual property income (FAPI), which includes certain interest income earned by controlled foreign affiliates of a taxpayer, is taxable in the hands of the taxpayer on an accrual basis.

The combination of these rules can result in double taxation where, for example, a particular Canadian-resident corporation that is owned by a widely held Canadian public company has borrowed money from its controlled foreign affiliate. In these circumstances the particular corporation may be prevented from deducting interest on the loan under the thin capitalization rules while at the same time the interest is taxable in its hands as FAPI.

Budget 2012 proposes to exclude interest expense of a Canadian-resident corporation from the application of the thin capitalization rules to the extent that a portion of that interest is taxable in the hands of the corporation in respect of the FAPI of a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation.

This measure will apply to taxation years, of Canadian-resident corporations, that end on or after March 29, 2012.

Proposed Amendment — Section 18 — Limitation on deductibility of provincial payroll and capital taxes

Dept. of Finance press release, March 2, 1993: Finance Minister Don Mazankowski today announced that the government would take action, on an interim basis, to effectively deny the deductibility of any increases in provincial payroll and capital taxes. This measure would take effect if provincial payroll and capital tax revenues were increased by way of a rate increase, base change, or the introduction of a new tax.

The 1991 federal Budget proposed a mechanism to limit the impact on federal revenue of the provinces' increasing reliance on such taxes. Discussions with the provinces and affected taxpayers have been held since that time to consider possible modifications of the federal proposal to limit deductibility. Those discussions are continuing, and it is anticipated that a comprehensive solution will be ready for implementation in 1994. Today's measure is intended to apply until that final proposal is brought forward.

Mr. Mazankowski said, "I remain concerned that any provincial actions to increase existing payroll and capital taxes or the introduction of new taxes would further erode federal revenues and put additional pressure on the fiscal framework."

If a province institutes or increases payroll or capital taxes in 1993, an income tax amendment would be sought to ensure that corporations and certain trusts operating in that province are allowed to deduct only a certain percentage of such taxes in computing their income for federal tax purposes. To compute its deductible amount, a taxpayer would simply multiply its total amount of those taxes paid to the province by a percentage prescribed under the Income Tax Act. That percentage, which would be determined after consultation with the province on expected revenues, would ensure that the total amount of payroll and capital taxes deducted by all businesses in the province remained the same. It would not, in contrast, ensure that the level of each taxpayer's deductible taxes remained the same. The restriction on deductibility would apply on a prorated basis from the date the provincial tax increase took effect.

The Minister noted that this measure would not restrict the tax policy options of any province. A province may continue to levy these taxes as it sees fit. "However, provinces that increase these taxes will no longer be able to pass part of the cost on to the federal government and taxpayers in other provinces," added Mr. Mazankowski.

The Minister stressed that this is an interim measure and that federal and provincial officials are continuing to work on a longer-term solution.

Dept. of Finance press release, Oct. 1, 1993: Extension of Interim Measure to Limit the Deductibility of Provincial Payroll and Capital Taxes

Finance Minister Gilles Loiselle today announced that proposed limits to the deductibility for federal tax purposes of provincial payroll and capital taxes will be delayed for another year, to allow time for additional consultations with provincial and business representatives. An interim measure announced earlier this year to limit the impact of any increases in these taxes will continue to apply until the revised proposal is in effect. The Minister indicated that federal and provincial officials will continue their discussions on a longer term solution.

The 1991 federal budget proposed to limit the impact of deductible provincial payroll and capital taxes on federal revenue without adding to the overall tax burden. Implementation of the proposal was to begin on January 1, 1992, but was postponed for two years, pending revisions. Today's announcement delays the implementation of the revised proposal until January 1, 1995.

Under the interim measure announced in March 1993, the government would deny the deductibility of any increases in provincial payroll and capital taxes, whether by way of rate increases, base changes, or the introduction of new taxes. "The problems associated with deductible provincial payroll and capital taxes still need to be addressed," Mr. Loiselle said. "Until the revised proposal is in effect, the interim measure protects the federal tax base from any further erosion resulting from provincial actions to increase these taxes."

Dept. of Finance press release 2004-080, Dec. 16, 2004: Extension of Interim Measure on Deductibility of Provincial Payroll and Capital Taxes

Minister of Finance Ralph Goodale announced today that the interim measure that limits the deductibility of increases in provincial payroll and capital taxes will continue to apply.

Under the interim measure, any existing provincial payroll and capital taxes will remain deductible for federal income tax purposes, but increases in these taxes by way of provincial actions to increase the rate, change the definition of the base or introduce new taxes generally would not be deductible.

The announcement of the extension of the interim measure ensures that all businesses and provinces are informed of the rules that apply to the deductibility of provincial payroll and capital taxes.

Federal Budget, Supplementary Information, March 19, 2007: Provincial Capital Taxes

Many provinces are in the process of reducing or phasing out their capital taxes. To help provinces eliminate their capital taxes as soon as possible, Budget 2007 proposes a temporary financial incentive for provincial governments to eliminate their capital taxes. To be eligible for the federal payment, a province must eliminate its currently existing general capital tax or capital tax on financial institutions, or restructure a currently existing capital tax on financial institutions into a minimum tax on financial institutions. The elimination or restructuring must take effect on or before January 1, 2011, and the enabling legislation must be enacted on or after March 19, 2007 and before 2011.

In order for a province to receive the new financial incentive for restructuring an existing capital tax on financial institutions into a minimum tax, the restructured tax must have both of the following characteristics:

- the level of revenues it raises is broadly commensurate with the corporate income tax; and
- the financial institution is able to reduce the tax by the amount of income tax it pays, if any.

The amount of the new financial incentive will correspond to the federal corporate income tax revenue gain from qualifying provincial capital tax reductions. The new financial incentive will be calculated as a specified rate times the estimated provincial revenue loss from capital tax reductions that meet the criteria for this financial incentive and that relate to the period from March 19, 2007 to January 1, 2011, inclusive. The specified rate will be equivalent to the estimated average effective federal corporate income tax rate applicable to these qualifying capital tax reductions.

The estimated provincial revenue loss from a qualifying capital tax reduction will be the difference between an estimate of the provincial capital tax revenue that would have been raised in a given fiscal year based on legislation in effect before March 19, 2007, and the actual provincial capital tax revenue raised in that fiscal year. In the case of a capital tax on financial institutions that is restructured into a minimum tax eligible for the financial incentive, the estimated revenue loss will be equal to the provincial capital tax revenue that would have been raised in a given fiscal year based on legislation in effect before March 19, 2007.

The incentive will be paid out annually, in respect of each full or partial fiscal year between March 19, 2007 and January 1, 2011, inclusive. An advance payment will be made on each March 31 beginning in 2008 and ending in 2011, if the province has enacted legislation before the payment date and provided sufficient information to estimate the provincial revenue loss of the qualifying capital tax reduction or restructuring prior to the preceding January 31. The final adjustment for a qualifying capital tax reduction in a given fiscal year will be made on the first March 31 following the release of the province's public accounts in respect of that fiscal year (except where those accounts are released less than 60 days before that date, in which case the final adjustment will be made on the next following March 31).

"matchable expenditure" of a taxpayer means the amount of an expenditure that is made by the taxpayer to

(a) acquire a right to receive production,

(b) fulfil a covenant or obligation arising in circumstances in which it is reasonable to conclude that a relationship exists between the covenant or obligation and a right to receive production, or

but does not include an amount for which a deduction is provided under section 20 in computing the taxpayer's income.

"right to receive production" means a right under which a taxpayer is entitled, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to receive an amount all or a portion of which is computed by reference to use of property, production, revenue, profit, cash flow, commodity price, cost or value of property or any other similar criterion or by reference to dividends paid or payable to shareholders of any class of shares where the amount is in respect of another taxpayer's activity, property or business but such a right does not include an income interest in a trust, a Canadian resource property or a foreign resource property.

"tax benefit" means a reduction, avoidance or deferral of tax or other amount payable under this Act or an increase in a refund of tax or other amount under this Act.

"tax shelter" means a property that would be a tax shelter (as defined in subsection 237.1(1)) if

(a) the cost of a right to receive production were the total of all amounts each of which is a matchable expenditure to which the right relates; and

(b) subsections (2) to (13) did not apply for the purpose of computing an amount, or in the case of a partnership a loss, represented to be deductible.

(2) Limitation on the deductibility of matchable expenditure — In computing a taxpayer's income from a business or property for a taxation year, no amount of a matchable expenditure may be deducted except as provided by subsection (3).

Related Provisions: 18.1(15) — No application to risks ceded between insurers; 18.1(16) — No application where not a tax shelter; 87(2)(j.2) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 88(1)(a)(i) — Treatment of right to receive production on windup of corporation.

I.T. Technical News: 10 (net profits interests and proposed section 18.1).

(3) Deduction of matchable expenditure — If a taxpayer's matchable expenditure would, but for subsection (2) and this subsection, be deductible in computing the taxpayer's income, there may be deducted in respect of the matchable expenditure in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year the amount that is determined under subsection (4) for the year in respect of the expenditure.

Related Provisions: 18.1(6) — Income inclusion; 18.1(10) — Amount of deduction if non-arm's length disposition; 18.1(14) — Where right to receive production is reasonably certain.

(4) Amount of deduction — For the purpose of subsection (3), the amount determined under this subsection for a taxation year in respect of a taxpayer's matchable expenditure is the amount, if any, that is the least of

(a) the total of

(i) the lesser of

(A) 1/5 of the matchable expenditure, and

(B) the amount determined by the formula

$$(A/B) \times C$$

where

A is the number of months that are in the year and after the day on which the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates is acquired,

B is the lesser of 240 and the number of months that are in the period that begins on the day on which the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates is acquired and that ends on the day the right is to terminate, and

C is the amount of the matchable expenditure, and

(ii) the amount, if any, by which the amount determined under this paragraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the matchable expenditure exceeds the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year,

(b) the total of

(i) all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of such amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates, and

(ii) the amount by which the amount determined under this paragraph for the preceding taxation year in respect of the matchable expenditure exceeds the amount of the matchable expenditure deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for that preceding year, and

(c) the amount, if any, by which

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of the matchable expenditure that would, but for this section, have been deductible in computing the taxpayer's income for the year or a preceding taxation year

exceeds

(ii) the total of all amounts each of which is an amount of the matchable expenditure deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income for a preceding taxation year.

(b) where a taxpayer has one or more rights to renew a particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates for one or more additional terms, after the term that includes the time at which the particular right was acquired, the particular right is deemed to terminate on the latest day on which the latest possible such term could terminate if all rights to renew the particular right were exercised;

(c) where a taxpayer has 2 or more rights to receive production that can reasonably be considered to be related to each other, the rights are deemed to be one right; and

(d) where the term of a taxpayer's right to receive production is for an indeterminate period, the right is deemed to terminate 240 months after it is acquired.

(6) Proceeds of disposition considered income — Where in a taxation year a taxpayer disposes of all or part of a right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates, the proceeds of the disposition shall be included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year.

Related Provisions: 87(2)(j.2) — Amalgamation — continuing corporation; 88(1)(a)(i) — Treatment of right to receive production on windup of corporation; 251.1 — Affiliated persons.

(8) Non-arm's length disposition — Subsection (10) applies where

(a) a taxpayer's particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to subsections (7) and (10), be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates has expired or the taxpayer has disposed of all of the right (otherwise than in a disposition to which subsection 87(1) or 88(1) applies);

(b) during the period that begins 30 days before and ends 30 days after the disposition or expiry, the taxpayer or a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer acquires a right to receive production (in this subsection and subsection (10) referred to as the "substituted property") that is, or is identical to, the particular right; and

(c) at the end of the period, the taxpayer or a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer owns the substituted property.

(9) Special case — Subsection (10) applies where

(a) a taxpayer's particular right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to subsections (7) and (10), be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates has expired or the taxpayer has disposed of all of the right (otherwise than in a disposition to which subsection 87(1) or 88(1) applies); and

(b) during the period that begins at the time of the disposition or expiry and ends 30 days after that time, a taxpayer that had an interest, directly or indirectly, in the right has another interest, directly or indirectly, in another right to receive production, which other interest is a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment (as defined by section 143.2).

Related Provisions: 18.1(12) — Identical properties.

(10) Amount of deduction if non-arm's length disposition — Where this subsection applies because of subsection (8) or (9) to a disposition or expiry in a taxation year or a preceding taxation year of a taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure relates,

(a) the amount deductible under subsection (3) in respect of the expenditure in computing the taxpayer's income for a taxation year that ends at or after the disposition or expiry of the right is the least of the amounts determined under subsection (4) for the year in respect of the expenditure; and

(b) the least of the amounts determined under subsection (4) in respect of the expenditure for a taxation year is deemed to be the amount, if any, determined under paragraph (4)(c) in respect of the expenditure for the year where the year includes the time that is immediately before the first time, after the disposition or expiry,

(i) at which the right would, if it were owned by the taxpayer, be deemed by section 128.1 or subsection 149(10) to have been disposed of by the taxpayer,

(ii) that is immediately before control of the taxpayer is acquired by a person or group of persons, if the taxpayer is a corporation,

(iii) at which winding-up of the taxpayer begins (other than a winding-up to which subsection 88(1) applies), if the taxpayer is a corporation,

(iv) if subsection (8) applies, at which a 30-day period begins throughout which neither the taxpayer nor a person affiliated, or who does not deal at arm's length, with the taxpayer owns

(A) the substituted property, or

(B) a property that is identical to the substituted property and that was acquired after the day that is 31 days before the period began, or

(v) if subsection (9) applies, at which a 30-day period begins throughout which no taxpayer who had an interest, directly or indirectly, in the right has an interest, directly or indirectly, in another right to receive production if one or more of those direct or indirect interests in the other right is a tax shelter or tax shelter investment (as defined by section 143.2).

(11) Partnerships — For the purpose of paragraph (10)(b), where a partnership otherwise ceases to exist at any time after a disposition or expiry referred to in subsection (10), the partnership is deemed not to have ceased to exist, and each taxpayer who was a member of the partnership immediately before the partnership would, but for this subsection, have ceased to exist is deemed to remain a member of the partnership until the time that is immediately after the first of the times described in subparagraphs (10)(b)(i) to (v).

(12) Identical property — For the purposes of subsections (8) and (10), a right to acquire a particular right to receive production (other than a right, as security only, derived from a mortgage, hypothec, agreement of sale or similar obligation) is deemed to be a right to receive production that is identical to the particular right.

(13) Application of section 143.2 — For the purpose of applying section 143.2 to an amount that would, if this section were read without reference to this subsection, be a matchable expenditure any portion of the cost of which is deductible under subsection (3), the expenditure is deemed to be a tax shelter investment and that section shall be read without reference to subparagraph 143.2(6)(b)(ii).

(14) Debt obligations — Where the rate of return on a taxpayer's right to receive production to which a matchable expenditure (other than an expenditure no portion of which would, if this section were read without reference to this subsection, be deductible under subsection (3) in computing the taxpayer's income) relates is reasonably certain at the time the taxpayer acquires the right,

(a) the right is, for the purposes of subsection 12(9) and Part LXX of the Income Tax Regulations, deemed to be a debt obligation in respect of which no interest is stipulated to be payable in respect of its principal amount and the obligation is deemed to be satisfied at the time the right terminates for an amount equal to the total of the return on the obligation and the amount that would otherwise be the matchable expenditure that is related to the right; and

(b) notwithstanding subsection (3), no amount may be deducted in computing the taxpayer's income in respect of any matchable expenditure that relates to the right.

(15) Non-applicability of section 18.1 — Subject to subsections (1) and (14), this section does not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer and

(i) the taxpayer's expenditure cannot reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or tax shelter investment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 143.2(1)) and none of the main purposes for making the expenditure is that the taxpayer, or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, obtain a tax benefit, or

(ii) before the end of the taxation year in which the expenditure is made, the total of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of such an amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates exceeds 80% of the expenditure; or

(b) the expenditure is in respect of commissions or other expenses related to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer (in this paragraph referred to as the "reinsurer) and both the reinsurer and the person to whom the expenditure is made or is to be made are insurers subject to the supervision of

(i) the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, in the case of an insurer that is required by law to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, or

(ii) in any other case, the Superintendent of Insurance or other similar officer or authority of the province under whose laws the insurer is incorporated.

Related Provisions [subsec. 18.1(15)]: 12(1)(s), 20(1)(jj) — Reinsurance commissions.

History: Subsec. 18.1(15) amended by 2001, c. 17, s. 10, applicable to expenditures made after November 17, 1996. The subsec. formerly read:

(15) Subject to subsections (1) and (14), this section does not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if no portion of the expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer and

(a) the taxpayer's expenditure cannot reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or tax shelter investment (as defined by section 143.2) and none of the main purposes for making the expenditure is that the taxpayer, or a person with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, obtain a tax benefit; or

(b) before the end of the taxation year in which the expenditure is made, the total of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of such an amount that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production to which the matchable expenditure relates exceeds 80% of the expenditure.

Proposed Amendment — 18.1(15)–(17)

(15) Non-application — risks ceded between insurers — Subsections (2) to (13) do not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) the expenditure is in respect of commissions, or other expenses, related to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer; and

(b) the taxpayer and the person to whom the expenditure is made, or is to be made, are both insurers who are subject to the supervision of

(i) the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, if the taxpayer or that person, as the case may be, is an insurer who is required by law to report to the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, or

(ii) the Superintendent of Insurance, or other similar officer or authority, of the province under whose laws the insurer is incorporated, in any other case.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Section 18.1 provides rules that restrict the deductibility of a taxpayer's cost of a "right to receive production", by prorating the deductibility of the amount of the investment over the economic life of the right. In the transactions that are subject to these rules, investors undertake to pay expenditures that would otherwise be expenses payable by the "vendor" (e.g., payroll, selling commissions) in exchange for a right to receive future income (a "right to receive production"), usually from the vendor's business operations. Such an expenditure by the taxpayer, referred to as a "matchable expenditure", is defined in subsection 18.1(1).

Subsection 18.1(15) provides two general exceptions to the application of the matchable expenditure rules. One such exception, in paragraph 18.1(15)(b), generally applies where the matchable expenditure relates to the issuance of an insurance policy for which all or a portion of a risk has been ceded to the taxpayer. This exception remains unchanged other than changes in numbering.

Paragraph 18.1(15)(a) provides the other exception to the matchable expenditure rules, applicable only if no part of the expenditure of the taxpayer can reasonably considered to have been paid to another person to acquire the right to receive production from that person. If this condition is met, the expenditures must meet one of two further criteria. Subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(i) allows the exception if the taxpayer's expenditure cannot reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter investment and none of the main purposes of making the expenditure is to obtain a tax benefit. Alternatively, subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(ii) allows the exception if, in the same year as the matchable expenditure is made, the total revenues of the taxpayer from the right to receive production exceed 80% of the expenditure. If this 80% revenue threshold is met, the portion of the expenditure that is deductible is limited only by general rules that apply to all business expenditures.

(16) Non-application — no rights, tax benefits or shelters — Subsections (2) to (13) do not apply to a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) no portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person or partnership with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer;

(b) no portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment (within the meaning assigned by subsection 143.2(1)); and

(c) none of the main purposes for making the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been to obtain a tax benefit for the taxpayer, a person or partnership with whom the taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, or a person or partnership that holds, directly or indirectly, an interest in the taxpayer.

(17) Revenue exception — Paragraph (4)(a) does not apply in determining the amount for a taxation year that may be deducted in respect of a taxpayer's matchable expenditure in respect of a right to receive production if

(a) before the end of the taxation year in which the matchable expenditure is made, the total of all amounts each of which is included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year (other than any portion of any of those amounts that is the subject of a reserve claimed by the taxpayer for the year under this Act) in respect of the right to receive production that relates to the matchable expenditure exceeds 80% of the matchable expenditure; and

(b) no portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to have been paid to another taxpayer, or to a person or partnership with whom the other taxpayer does not deal at arm's length, to acquire the right from the other taxpayer.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(i) is renumbered as new subsection 18.1(16) and remains unchanged. The alternative exception in subparagraph 18.1(15)(a)(ii) (the 80% revenue threshold) is renumbered as new subsection 18.1(17) and no longer provides a general exception to the application of the matchable expenditure rules. This amended rule provides that if any portion of the matchable expenditure can reasonably be considered to relate to a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment, subsection 18.1(4), which requires the amortization of the expenditure (subject to an income limit), will apply without reference to paragraph 18.1(4)(a). The result is that the cumulative amount deducted in respect of a matchable expenditure may not exceed the taxpayer's cumulative revenue from the associated right to receive production.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), s. 11, will replace subsec. 18.1(15) with subsecs. (15), (16) and (17), applicable in respect of expenditures made by a taxpayer on or after September 18, 2001 in respect of a right to receive production, except if

(i) required to be made under a written agreement made by the taxpayer before September 18, 2001,

(ii) made under, or described in, the terms of a prospectus, preliminary prospectus or registration statement that was, before September 18, 2001, filed with a public authority in Canada in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of a province and, if required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority before September 18, 2001, or

(iii) made under, or described in, the terms of an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities if

(A) the memorandum contains a complete, or substantially complete, description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

(B) the memorandum was distributed before September 18, 2001,

(C) solicitations in respect of a sale of the securities contemplated in the offering were made before September 18, 2001, and

(D) the sale of the securities contemplated in the offering was substantially in accordance with the memorandum;

(b) the expenditure was made before 2002;

(c) the expenditure was made in consideration for services that were rendered in Canada before 2002 in respect of an activity, or a business, all or substantially all of which was carried on in Canada;

(d) there is no agreement or other arrangement under which the obligation of any taxpayer in respect of the expenditure can, on or after September 18, 2001, be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to, or an adverse assessment under, the Act;

(e) if the right to receive production is, or is related to, a tax shelter investment, a tax shelter identification number in respect of the tax shelter was obtained before September 18, 2001; and

(f) if the expenditure was made under, or described in, the terms of a document that is a prospectus, a preliminary prospectus, a registration statement or an offering memorandum (and regardless of whether the expenditure was also made under a written agreement)

(i) all of the funds raised pursuant to the document that may reasonably be used to make a matchable expenditure were received by the taxpayer before 2002,

(ii) all or substantially all of the securities distributed pursuant to the document for the purpose of raising the funds described in subparagraph (i) were acquired before 2002 by a person who is not

(A) a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities, other than an agent of the promoter who acquired the security as principal and not for resale,

(B) a vendor of the right to receive production,

(C) a broker or dealer in securities, other than a person who acquired the security as principal and not for resale, or

(D) a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person to whom clause (A) or (B) applies, and

(iii) all or substantially all of the funds raised pursuant to the document before 2002 were used to make expenditures that were required to be made pursuant to agreements in writing made before September 18, 2001.

The amendment does not apply to an expenditure made by a taxpayer in respect of a right to receive production in respect of a particular film or video production if

(a) expenditures in respect of the particular film or video production

(i) were made before September 18, 2001 (as determined, for the purpose of this paragraph, without reference to subsec. 143.2(10)), except if a repaid amount for the purposes of that subsection is paid after 2002), or

(ii) were required to be made by the taxpayer under a written agreement made before September 18, 2001 by the taxpayer;

(b) principal photography of the particular film or video production

(i) began before 2002,

(ii) was primarily completed before April 2002, and

(iii) was conducted primarily in Canada,

(c) the expenditure

(i) was made before April 2002 in the course of the taxpayer's business of providing film production services in respect of the particular film or video production (as determined for the purpose of this subparagraph without reference to subsec. 143.2(10)), except to the extent that a repaid amount for the purposes of that subsection is paid after 2002),

(ii) was made under, or described in, the terms of

(A) a prospectus, preliminary prospectus or registration statement that was, before September 18, 2001, filed with a public authority in Canada in accordance with the securities legislation of Canada or of a province and, if required by law, accepted for filing by the public authority before September 18, 2001, or

(B) an offering memorandum distributed as part of an offering of securities if

(I) the memorandum contains a complete, or substantially complete, description of the securities contemplated in the offering as well as the terms and conditions of the offering,

(II) the memorandum was distributed before September 18, 2001,

(III) solicitations in respect of a sale of the securities contemplated in the offering have been made before September 18, 2001, and

(IV) the sale of the securities contemplated in the offering was substantially in accordance with the memorandum, and

(iii) was not an amount in respect of advertising, marketing, promotion or market research;

(d) except where the particular film or video production is a designated production of the taxpayer, at least 75% of the total of all expenditures, each of which is an expenditure made by the taxpayer in the course of the business referred to in subpara. (c)(i), is an expenditure described for the purpose of that subparagraph made in consideration for the supply of goods or services that are supplied or rendered in Canada before April 2002 by persons that are subject to tax on the expenditure under Part I or XIII of the Act;

(e) there is no agreement or other arrangement under which the obligation of any taxpayer to acquire a security distributed pursuant to the prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum can, after September 18, 2001, be changed, reduced or waived if there is a change to, or an adverse assessment under, the Act;

(f) if the right to receive production is, or is related to, a tax shelter investment, a tax shelter identification number in respect of the tax shelter was obtained before September 18, 2001;

(i) all or substantially all of the securities distributed pursuant to the prospectus, preliminary prospectus, registration statement or offering memorandum for the purpose of raising the funds described in para. (g) were acquired by a person who is not

(i) a promoter, or an agent of a promoter, of the securities, other than an agent of the promoter who acquired the security as principal and not for resale,

(ii) a vendor of the right to receive production,

(iii) a broker or dealer in securities, other than a person who acquired the security as principal and not for resale, or

(iv) a person who does not deal at arm's length with a person referred to in subparagraph (i) or (ii); and

(j) except where the particular film or video production is a designated production of the taxpayer, all or substantially all of the matchable expenditures made by the taxpayer that are wholly attributable to the principal photography of the particular film or video production are wholly attributable to principal photography conducted in Canada.

Dept. of Finance news release 2001-079, Sept. 18, 2001: Technical Legislative Proposals for Matchable Expenditure Rules

Finance Minister Paul Martin today tabled in the House of Commons a detailed Notice of Ways and Means Motion to amend the Income Tax Act in respect of matchable expenditures. These proposed changes would limit the ability of a taxpayer to obtain tax shelter benefits by financing the business expenses of another person in exchange for a right to receive future income relating to that business.

Measures announced in 1996, known as the matchable expenditure rules, require that the cost of these expenditures be allocated over the economic life of the related right to receive future income. These rules are not intended to affect ordinary business transactions, and generally apply only where the expenditures relate to a tax shelter or may reasonably be considered to have been made to obtain a tax benefit.

An exception to the matchable expenditure rules applies if, in the same year as the expenditure is made, the total revenues realized by the taxpayer in respect of the expenditure exceed 80% of its cost [18.1(4)(a) — ed.]. However, certain tax shelter arrangements [generally film shelters including Grosvenor Park — ed.] have been designed to exploit this exception.

Therefore, the technical amendments tabled today propose to amend the matchable expenditure rules to ensure that unintended tax shelter benefits cannot be achieved. Specifically, under the proposed rules [18.1(17) — ed.], the 80% threshold will be modified to match the deductible expenditure against the revenue received from the related right to future income.

Minister Martin indicated that this proposed exception to the matchable expenditure rules would generally apply to expenditures made on or after September 18, 2001. However, transitional relief will apply as indicated in the attached legislative proposals.

The Minister emphasized that this transitional relief should not be taken to indicate government approval of these tax shelters. All tax shelters utilizing the exception to the matchable expenditure rules are being closely monitored by the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency.

Minister Martin confirmed that the Government intends to introduce legislation to implement these tax changes in Parliament at the earliest opportunity.

Backgrounder

Tax-assisted arrangements for the financing of business expenditures are attractive to businesses because the financing is partially subsidized by government through the benefit of tax deferral. The matchable expenditure rules in the Income Tax Act [18.1(2) — ed.] constrain the tax assistance in such structures by matching the cost of an investor's investment to the periods during which the investment earns income. In the transactions that are subject to these rules, investors undertake to pay expenditures that would otherwise be expenses payable by the "vendor" (e.g., payroll, selling commissions) in exchange for a right to receive future income (a "right to receive production"), usually from the vendor's operation.

The matchable expenditure rules are designed to restrict the deductibility of a taxpayer's cost of a right to receive production by prorating the deductibility of the amount of the investment over the economic life of the right. This amortization of the expenditure effectively eliminates the tax deferral advantage of this type of financing.

An exception to the matchable expenditure rules [18.1(4) — ed.] applies in certain circumstances. This exception applies where, in the same year as the expenditure is made, the total revenues of the taxpayer from the right to receive production exceed 80 per cent of the expenditure. Under the rules announced in 1996, if this 80-per-cent revenue threshold is met, the portion of the expenditure that is deductible is limited only by general rules that apply to all business expenditures.

The proposed amendment to the matchable expenditure rules [new 18.1(17) — ed.] provides that, where the 80-per-cent revenue threshold is met, expenditures are deductible only to the extent of revenues received from the right to receive production. This restriction will apply where the matchable expenditure relates to a tax shelter or a tax shelter investment, or one of the main purposes of incurring the matchable expenditure is to obtain the reduction, avoidance or deferral of tax. Any portion of an otherwise deductible expenditure not yet deducted at the time of expiry of the right to receive production will be deductible at that time.

An existing exception to the matchable expenditure rules which applies where the expenditure is not related to a tax shelter, and cannot reasonably be considered to have been made to achieve a tax benefit, will remain unchanged. [Existing 18.1(15)(a), to be 18.1(16) — ed.]

Transitional relief for certain public offerings of tax shelter investments, as described in this release and in the attached proposed amendments to the Income Tax Act, should not be taken to indicate government approval of these tax shelters. Further, the existence of a tax shelter registration number in respect of a promotion should not be taken as government confirmation of the tax effects of the investment.

Tax shelter promotional documents are required to display a tax shelter identification number, and to prominently indicate that the identification number is for administrative proposes only and does not in any way confirm the entitlement of an investor to claim any tax benefits associated with the tax shelter. The Canada Customs and Revenue Agency (CCRA), under the direction of the Honourable Martin Cauchon, Minister of National Revenue, uses tax shelter identification numbers to identify those investors participating in a tax shelter arrangement.

For more information regarding the activities of the CCRA regarding tax shelters, refer to the August 14, 2001, CCRA "Tax Tip" entitled "Tax shelters - Advance income tax rulings do not guarantee deductions," available on the CCRA Web site at www.ccra-adrc.gc.ca.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 29, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing concerning the transitional rules in respect of amendments to the matchable expenditure rules in the Income Tax Act as proposed by the Minister of Finance on September 18, 2001. Representatives of various sectors of the film industry have asked for additional transitional relief in this regard.

We have considered these representations and are prepared to recommend additional transitional relief to the Minister of Finance. In general terms, this would provide relief for a film or video production that began before September 18 and that is to be produced in Canada, in respect of expenditures, other than expenditures in respect of advertising, marketing, promotion or market research, made before April 2002 (determined without reference to the Act's limited-recourse debt provisions in respect of debt repaid before 2003). Such relief would be provided where the production meets all of the following conditions:

1. some expenditures were made by the production services partnership in respect of the production before September 18, 2001. For the purpose of this test, the Act's limited-recourse debt provisions would not apply to deem the expenditure to be made when the debt is paid, unless the debt remains unpaid after 2002;

2. principal photography is commenced before 2002, is primarily completed before April 2002 and is conducted primarily in Canada;

3. all or substantially all of the expenditures of the production services partnership that are in respect of principal photography are in respect of principal photography that takes place in Canada (this requirement will not apply to certain investments already sold to tax shelter investors as of September 18, 2001, and certain productions that were all or substantially all completed before that date);

4. at least 75% of film production expenditures are for services in Canada (this requirement will not apply to certain investments already sold to tax shelter investors as of September 18, 2001, and certain productions that were all or substantially all completed before that date);

5. all tax shelter units are sold before 2002, and all investment funds are received before the end of 2002;

6. no investor has the right to withdraw from or unwind the investment; and

7. subparagraphs (a)(ii) or (iii) (requirement for a prospectus or offering memorandum to be issued before September 18, 2001), paragraph (e) (the requirement to have obtained a tax shelter registration number before September 18, 2001) and subparagraph (f)(ii) (the requirement to have the securities acquired before 2002 by the person who will claim the deduction, i.e. the prohibition against warehousing units) of the entry into force rules announced on September 18th are satisfied.

An additional change to the already proposed grandfathering rules would confirm that tax shelter units could be purchased by brokers, dealers and agents of promoters acting in their personal capacities as investors.

If our Minister approves, we anticipate that this additional transitional relief would be included in an upcoming Technical Bill.

Should you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call Ed Short of this Division at (613) 996-0599.

Yours sincerely,

Len Farber, General Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(2) Double-dip interest not deductible — [effective 2012] Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, in computing the income of a corporation for a taxation year, no amount may be deducted in respect of the corporation's specified financing expense in respect of an inter-affiliate loan for the taxation year, except to the extent that that specified financing expense exceeds the corporation's aggregate double-dip income for the taxation year in respect of that inter-affiliate loan.

(3) Specified financing expense — A particular corporation's specified financing expense in respect of an inter-affiliate loan for a taxation year, is the amount, if any, by which

(a) the total of all amounts of interest paid or payable in the taxation year by the particular corporation on, and other costs referred to in paragraph 20(1)(e) deductible in computing the particular corporation's income for the taxation year in respect of,

(4) Aggregate double-dip income — related parties — Subsection (5) applies to a corporation (referred to in this subsection and subsections (5) to (7) as the "debtor corporation") and another corporation in respect of a particular taxation year of the debtor corporation and an inter-affiliate loan if

(b) this subsection shall not apply to any other corporation in respect of the amount determined under paragraph (a); and

(c) for the purpose of determining the taxable earnings base adjustment of the other corporation, the amount determined under paragraph (a) is deemed to be

(7) Allocation by Minister — If a debtor corporation is entitled to make an allocation under subsection (6) but fails to do so, or does so in a manner that allows an excess to remain under subparagraph (4)(a) in respect of the debtor corporation and an excess to remain under subparagraph (4)(b) in respect of one or more other corporations, the Minister may allocate the excess double-dip incomes of the other corporations against the specified financing expense of the debtor corporation.

(8) Inter-affiliate loans — exceptions — A debt that would, at any time, otherwise be an inter-affiliate loan in respect of a corporation for a taxation year of a particular foreign affiliate is not an inter-affiliate loan at that time, if

(iii) the terms and conditions of the debt are substantially the same as the terms and conditions of similar debt entered into between persons dealing at arm's length.

(9) Partnership rules — If a partnership that holds, directly or indirectly, a share of the capital stock of a specified corporation in respect of the partnership has borrowed money or become liable for an amount payable (in this subsection referred to as the "partnership indebtedness") the interest in respect of which is deductible under paragraph 20(1)(c),

(a) there shall be added to the income of each corporation or partnership that is a member of the partnership, an amount equal to the member's specified proportion of the interest and other borrowing costs referred to in paragraph 20(1)(e) that are deductible in computing the partnership's income in respect of that member's specified proportion of the partnership indebtedness;

(b) for the purpose of this section and paragraphs 20(1)(c) and (e), an amount equal to the amount added to the member's income by paragraph (a) shall be deemed to be an amount of interest or other borrowing cost, as the case may be, that is deductible by the member; and

(c) the member shall be deemed to have incurred its specified proportion of the partnership indebtedness and to use the proceeds or property acquired in respect of that indebtedness in the same manner as the partnership.

(a) a specified corporation in respect of a partnership means a corporation that is, for the purpose of section 95,

(ii) a foreign affiliate of a person with whom the partnership does not deal at arm's length, or

(iii) a foreign affiliate of a person that does not deal at arm's length with a member of the partnership; and

Proposed Addition [on hold] — 20(1)(c)(v), (vi) [December 1991]

Application: The December 20, 1991 draft legislation (interest deductibility), subsec. 1(1), would add subparas. 20(1)(c)(v) and (vi), applicable to 1972 et seq. These amendments are not expected to be enacted.

Proposed Amendment — Overturning Ludco decision

Federal budget, Supplementary Information, Feb. 18, 2003: Deductibility of Interest and Other Expenses

Recent court decisions [Ludco Enterprises Ltd., [2002] 1 C.T.C. 95 (SCC), and Stewart, [2002] 3 C.T.C. 439 (SCC) — ed.] have raised uncertainties as to how taxpayers are to treat expenses, in particular interest, in computing income from a business or property for purposes of the Income Tax Act. Most notably, these decisions could lead to inappropriate tax results where a taxpayer derives a tax loss by deducting interest expenses, even if under any objective standard there is no reasonable expectation that the taxpayer would earn any income (as opposed to capital gains), or where the presence or the prospect of revenue (as opposed to income net of expenses) is enough to conclude that an expenditure was incurred "for the purpose of earning income".

Neither of these results is consistent with appropriate tax policy, nor would they have been generally expected under prior law and practice. Therefore legislative amendments to the Income Tax Act will be considered in order to provide continuity in this important area of the law. Before finalizing any proposals, however, the Department of Finance will release them for public consultation, with a general goal of ensuring that they restore continuity with the expected consequences before these recent court decisions.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 24, 2001:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter dated October 17, 2001 concerning the income tax treatment of a premium received by a taxpayer upon the re-opening of a bond issue where the bond's interest rate is higher than the market rate of interest for similar debt instruments at the time of such re-opening.

You have requested that we consider recommending a provision that would permit a taxpayer to claim a reserve in respect of such a premium with the intended effect that the income tax treatment would follow the accounting treatment. This would avoid having the premium included in income at the outset, only to be offset by increased interest expense over the remaining term of the debt.

We are sympathetic to your request. Consequently it will be recommended to the Minister of Finance that an amendment be introduced to the Act that will have the effect of matching the premium income and the enhanced interest expense that gives rise to the premium. Our recommendation regarding the timing of the effective date will likely depend on the exact nature of our recommendation, however, we would, at a minimum, recommend that a taxpayer be able to elect to have the amendment apply to debts issued after 2000.

While I can, as you know, offer no assurance that either the Minister or Parliament will accept our recommendation, I have no reason to believe that this would be controversial.

We trust that this letter addresses your concerns.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 20(1)(bb) — Payments to a partnership

(i) is paid by the taxpayer in the year to a person or partnership the principal business of which

(A) is advising others as to the advisability of purchasing or selling specific shares or securities, or

(ii) is paid for

(A) advice as to the advisability of purchasing or selling a specific share or security of the taxpayer, or

(B) services in respect of the administration or management of shares or securities of the taxpayer;

Application: The October 31, 2011 draft legislation, subsec. 7(1), will amend para. 20(1)(bb) to read as above, applicable to amounts paid after June 2005.

Technical Notes: Paragraph 20(1)(bb) generally allows a taxpayer to deduct fees, other than commissions, paid for advice on buying or selling a specific share or security of the taxpayer or for the administration or management of the shares or securities of the taxpayer. The fees must be paid to a person whose principal business is advising on the buying or selling of specific shares or securities or whose principal business includes the administration or management of shares or securities.

The definition "person" in subsection 248(1) does not include a partnership. Paragraph 20(1)(bb) is amended to allow for the deduction of fees paid to a person or partnership if the other conditions in paragraph 20(1)(bb) are met.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Dec. 21, 2005:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your June 30, 2005 letter to me requesting an amendment to paragraph 20(1)(bb) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"). In particular, you have requested that we extend the deduction for investment counsel and custodial fees paid to a person to also include such fees paid to a partnership.

In general, paragraph 20(l)(bb) allows a taxpayer to deduct fees, other than commissions, paid for advice on buying or selling a specific share or security by the taxpayer or for the administration or the management of the shares or securities of the taxpayer. The fees must be paid to a person whose principal business includes the administration or management of shares or securities. A person is defined in subsection 248(1) of the Act to include any corporation and any entity exempt, because of subsection 149(1), from tax under Part I on all or part of the entity's taxable income. A person, therefore, does not include a partnership. However, certain provisions of the Act specify that for specific purposes a person includes a partnership. This is not the case with paragraph 20(1)(bb).

In the situation you describe, [xxx] carries on an investment management business and is registered as investment counsel and portfolio manager under applicable securities legislation. [xxx] has received an offer to purchase its business. The proposed transaction involves transferring the business to a limited partnership in which the majority interest will indirectly be held by members of the public. The partnership has applied for registration as investment counsel and portfolio manager and its principal business will consist of providing advice regarding the buying and selling of securities to both tax-exempt and taxable clients. Because the paragraph 20(1)(bb) deduction does not apply to investment counsel fees paid to a partnership, there is a concern that the partnership may be at a competitive disadvantage with respect to providing advice to taxable clients. You acknowledge that this issue could be addressed by transferring the taxable client business to a wholly-owned subsidiary of the partnership, however, this would result in additional administrative costs and complexity. In addition, it is your understanding that the securities regulators have expressed reservations regarding the "dual registrant" alternative, and would prefer a single registrant.

Paragraph 20(1)(bb) of the Act is an exception to the general rule that expenses on capital account are not deductible. As an exception, the rule is intentionally narrowly drafted. The rule contains several restrictions including an ownership requirement, and the requirement that the payment must be to a person whose principal business is investment counsel, management or administration services in respect of shares or securities. However, we can discern no tax policy reason for excluding the deduction of investment counsel and custodial fees paid to a partnership. As such, we will recommend to the Minister of Finance that the Act be amended to allow the deduction of investment counsel and custodial fees paid to a partnership, assuming the other conditions in 20(l)(bb) are otherwise met. In addition, we will recommend that the amendment be effective after June 30, 2005, the day that you brought this issue to our attention.

We cannot offer any assurance that either the Minister of Finance or Parliament will agree with the recommendations that we intend to make in this regard. Nonetheless, we trust that this statement of our position is helpful.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

(8) No deduction in respect of [sale of] property in certain circumstances — Paragraph (1)(n) does not apply to allow a deduction in computing the income of a taxpayer for a taxation year from a business in respect of a property sold in the course of the business if

(a) the taxpayer, at the end of the year or at any time in the immediately following taxation year,

(i) was exempt from tax under any provision of this Part, or

(ii) was not resident in Canada and did not carry on the business in Canada; or

(b) the sale occurred more than 36 months before the end of the year.

Proposed Addition — 20(8)(c), (d)

(c) the purchaser of the property sold was a corporation that, immediately after the sale,

(i) was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by the taxpayer,

(ii) was controlled, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, by a person or group of persons that controlled the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever, or

(iii) controlled the taxpayer, directly or indirectly, in any manner whatever; or

(d) the purchaser of the property sold was a partnership in which the taxpayer was, immediately after the sale, a majority interest partner.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 12(1), will add paras. 20(8)(c) and (d), applicable in respect of property sold by a taxpayer after December 20, 2002. However, if a property so sold pursuant to an agreement in writing made before December 21, 2002 is transferred to the purchaser before 2004

(a) subsec. 20(8), as it read immediately before its amendment, applies in respect of the property; and

(b) for the purpose of applying para. 20(1)(n) to the taxpayer for a taxation year in respect of the property, a reasonable amount as a reserve in respect of an amount not due in respect of the sale may not exceed the amount that would be reasonable if the proceeds from any subsequent disposition of the property that the purchaser receives before the end of the taxation year were received by the taxpayer.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Paragraph 20(1)(n) allows a taxpayer to claim a reserve in respect of the taxpayer's profit from the sale of certain property, where all or part of the proceeds of the sale are not due until at least two years after the time of sale. However, subsection 20(8) provides that this reserve is limited to taxation years that end less than 36 months after the time of the sale. For example, where the taxation year is 12 months, the reserve is available in the taxation year in which the sale occurred and the two subsequent taxation years.

New paragraphs 20(8)(c) and (d) generally apply, in respect of dispositions of property that occur after December 20, 2002, to provide that the reserve under paragraph 20(1)(n) is not available to a taxpayer where the purchaser of the property is a corporation controlled by the taxpayer or is a partnership of which the taxpayer is a majority interest partner.

Letter from Dept. of Finance, Oct. 9, 2003:

Dear [xxx]:

I am writing in response to your letter of August 13, 2003, in which you requested that an amendment to subsection 20(8) of the Income Tax Act (the "Act"), proposed in the package of income tax technical amendments released on December 20, 2002, be modified to provide transitional relief in respect of agreements entered into on or before that date.

The proposed amendments provide that a reserve under paragraph 20(1)(n) of the Act in respect of a property is not available to a taxpayer where the purchaser of the property is a corporation controlled by the taxpayer or is a partnership of which the taxpayer is a majority interest partner. A similar amendment is proposed to subsection 44(7) of the Act in respect of the availability of a capital gains reserve to a partnership of which the transferor is a majority interest partner.

Grandfathering is generally not provided in respect of non-arm's length transactions, reflecting the ability of non-arm's length parties to either accept the proposed tax changes or unwind incomplete transactions. However, we recognize that in certain circumstances a taxpayer may have relied on such an agreement when contracting with arm's length third parties. As such, we will propose to the Minister of Finance that property transferred before 2004, pursuant to an agreement in writing made before December 21, 2002, not be subject to the proposed amendment. However, the amount that the transferor would be entitled to claim as a reserve for a taxation year under paragraph 20(1)(n) of the Act would be reduced if the transferee has received, before the end of the taxation year of the transferor, proceeds from a subsequent disposition of the property. In such a case, the reserve of the transferor in respect of a property would be limited to the amount that would be calculated as if the proceeds from the subsequent disposition of the property had been paid to the transferor as proceeds from the original transfer.

We will recommend similar grandfathering in respect of the proposed amendment to subsection 44(7) of the Act.

Thank you for bringing this matter to my attention.

Yours sincerely,

Brian Ernewein, Director, Tax Legislation Division, Tax Policy Branch

Proposed Amendment — 20(12)

(12) Foreign non-business income tax — In computing the income of a taxpayer who is resident in Canada at any time in a taxation year from a business or property for the year, there may be deducted any amount that the taxpayer claims that does not exceed the non-business income tax paid by the taxpayer for the year to the government of a country other than Canada (within the meaning assigned by subsection 126(7) read without reference to paragraphs (c) and (e) of the definition "non-business income tax" in that subsection) in respect of that income, other than any of those taxes paid that can, in whole or in part, reasonably be regarded as having been paid by a corporation in respect of income from a share of the capital stock of a foreign affiliate of the corporation.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 12(2), will amend subsec. 20(12) to read as above, applicable after December 20, 2002 in respect of taxes paid at any time.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 20(12) allows a taxpayer to deduct, in computing income for a taxation year from a business or property, non-business income taxes paid to a foreign government in respect of the income. The subsection is amended to make explicit the requirement that the taxpayer claiming the deduction be resident in Canada during all or part of the year for which the claim is made. This amendment is clarifying only, and applicable after December 20, 2002. (Accordingly, the amendment is effective for any application of the Act after that date.)

(a) the amount of foreign tax (within the meaning assigned by subsection 126(4.1)) that

This subsection is being amended to instead provide that, in computing the income for a taxation year of a taxpayer resident in Canada, there may be deducted such amounts as are provided by subdivision i. This amendment is being made to ensure that deductions provided for in that subdivision that are not tied to dividends, for example deductions under subsection 91(4) and new subsections 90(6) and (9), are included in section 20. (a) for the purposes of subsection (14) and section 12, the issue of the debt obligation shall be deemed to be an assignment of the debt obligation from the issuer, as transferor, to the person to whom the obligation was issued, as transferee, and an amount equal to the unearned interest amount shall be deemed to be interest that accrued on the obligation for a period commencing before the issue and ending at the time of issue; and Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 20(16) permits a taxpayer to deduct, in computing the taxpayer's income for a year, the terminal loss of the taxpayer in respect of a class of depreciable property at the end of the year. That subsection is amended to add a reference to the new descriptions of D.1 and K of the definition "undepreciated capital cost" in subsection 13(21). This amendment corrects a technical deficiency.

(16.1) Non-application of subsec. (16) — Subsection (16) does not apply

(a) in respect of a passenger vehicle of a taxpayer that has a cost to the taxpayer in excess of $20,000 or any other amount that is prescribed; and

(b) in respect of a taxation year in respect of a property that was a former property deemed by paragraph 13(4.3)(a) or (b) to be owned by the taxpayer, if

(i) within 24 months after the taxpayer last owned the former property, the taxpayer or a person not dealing at arm's length with the taxpayer acquires a similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property applied, and

(ii) at the end of the taxation year, the taxpayer or the person owns the similar property or another similar property in respect of the same fixed place to which the former property applied.

Application: The July 16, 2010 draft legislation (Part 1 — technical), subsec. 12(4), will amend subsec. 20(16.1) to read as above, applicable in respect of taxation years that end after December 20, 2002.

Technical Notes (July 2010): Subsection 20(16.1) provides that a terminal loss under subsection 20(16) in respect of a depreciable property that is a "passenger vehicle" costing more than a prescribed amount (currently set at $30,000) is not deductible in computing income. That rule is renumbered as paragraph 20(16.1)(a) and new paragraph 20(16.1)(b) is added, applicable to taxation years that end after December 20, 2002. These amendments are made concurrently with the addition of subsections 13(4.2) and (4.3) and with the amendment of the definition "former business property" in subsection 248(1).

New paragraph 20(16.1)(b) provides that a terminal loss is not available in respect of another person's former business property that was deemed under paragraph 13(4.3)(a) or (b) (as the result of a joint election under subsection 13(4.2) by the taxpayer and the other person) to be owned by the taxpayer. 20.01 (1) PHSP [private health services plan] premiums — Notwithstanding paragraphs 18(1)(a) and (h) and subject to subsection (2), there may be deducted in computing an individual's income for a taxation year from a business carried on by the individual and in which the individual is actively engaged on a regular and continuous basis, directly or as a member of a partnership, an amount payable by the individual or partnership in respect of the year as a premium, contribution or other consideration under a private health services plan in respect of the individual, the individual's spouse or common-law partner or any person who is a member of the individual's household if

(a) in the year or in the preceding taxation year

(i) the total of all amounts each of which is the individual's income from such a business for a fiscal period that ends in the year exceeds 50% of the individual's income for the year, or

(ii) the individual's income for the year does not exceed the total of $10,000 and the total referred to in subparagraph (i) in respect of the individual for the year, on the assumption that the individual's income from each business is computed without reference to this subsection and the individual's income is computed without reference to this subsection and subdivision e; and

(b) the amount is payable under a contract between the individual or partnership and

(i) a person licensed or otherwise authorized under the laws of Canada or a province to carry on in Canada an insurance business or the business of offering to the public its services as trustee,

(ii) a person or partnership engaged in the business of offering to the public its services as an administrator of private health services plans, or

(iii) a person the taxable income of which is exempt under section 149 and that is a business or professional organization of which the individual is a member or a trade union of which the individual or a majority of the individual's employees are members.

(2) Limit — For the purpose of calculating the amount deductible under subsection (1) in computing an individual's income for a taxation year from a particular business,

(a) no amount may be deducted to the extent that

(i) it is deducted under this section in computing another individual's income for any taxation year, or

(ii) it is included in calculating a deduction under section 118.2 in computing an individual's tax payable under this Part for any taxation year;

(b) where an amount payable under a private health services plan relates to a period in the year throughout which

(i) each of one or more persons

(A) is employed on a full-time basis (other than on a temporary or seasonal basis) in the particular business or in another business carried on by

(I) the individual (otherwise than as a member of a partnership),

(II) a partnership of which the individual is a majority interest partner, or

(III) a corporation affiliated with the individual, and

(B) has accumulated not less than three months of service in that employment since the person last became so employed, and

(ii) the total number of persons employed in a business described in clause (i)(A), with whom the individual deals at arm's length and to whom coverage is extended under the plan, is not less than 50% of the total number of persons each of whom is a person

(A) who carries on the particular business or is employed in a business described in clause (i)(A), and the amount so deductible in relation to the period shall not exceed the individual's cost of equivalent coverage under the plan in respect of each employed person who deals at arm's length with the individual and who is described in subparagraph (i) in relation to the period;

(c) subject to paragraph (d), where an amount payable under a private health services plan relates to a particular period in the year, other than a period described in paragraph (b), the amount so deductible in relation to the particular period shall not exceed the amount determined by the formula

where

A is the number of days in the year that are included in the particular period,

B is the product obtained when $1,500 is multiplied by the number of persons each of whom is covered under the plan, and

(i) is the individual or the individual's spouse or common-law partner, or

(ii) is a member of the individual's household and has attained the age of 18 years before the beginning of the particular period, and

C is the product obtained when $750 is multiplied by the number of members of the individual's household who, but for the fact that they have not attained the age of 18 years before the particular period began, would be included in computing the product under the description of B; and

(d) where an amount payable under a private health services plan relates to a particular period in the year (other than a period described in paragraph (b)) and one or more persons with whom the individual deals at arm's length are described in subparagraph (b)(i) in relation to the particular period, the amount so deductible in relation to the particular period shall not exceed the lesser of the amount determined under the formula set out in paragraph (c) and the individual's cost of equivalent coverage in respect of any such person in relation to the particular period.

(a) the amount that would be the individual's cost of coverage under the plan if the benefits and coverage in respect of the individual, the individual's spouse or common-law partner and the members of the individual's household were identical to the benefits and coverage made available in respect of the other person, the other person's spouse or common-law partner and the members of the other person's household is multiplied by

(b) the percentage of the cost of coverage under the plan in respect of the other person that is payable by the individual or a partnership of which the individual is a member.

Proposed Addition [on hold] — 20.1, 20.2 [December 1991 version]

Note: The overall effect of the Dec. 20, 1991 proposed 20.1 and 20.2 (unrelated to 20.1 and 20.2 enacted later) would be to allow deduction for interest on money borrowed by a corporation or partnership to distribute retained earnings or capital. They have not been formally withdrawn by the Dept. of Finance but have been overtaken by the case law. New proposals on interest deductibility are planned, in response to Ludco (SCC): see IT-533, proposed 3.1 and 20(1)(c) — ed.

20.2 (1) Interest — authorized foreign bank — interpretation — The following definitions apply in this section.

"branch financial statements" of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year means the unconsolidated statements of assets and liabilities and of income and expenses for the year, in respect of its Canadian banking business,

(a) that form part of the bank's annual report for the year filed with the Superintendent of Financial Institutions as required under section 601 of the Bank Act, and accepted by the Superintendent, and

(b) if no filing is so required for the taxation year, that are prepared in a manner consistent with the statements in the annual report or reports so filed and accepted for the period or periods in which the taxation year falls, except if the Minister demonstrates that the statements are not prepared in accordance with generally-accepted accounting principles in Canada as modified by any specifications applicable to the bank made by the Superintendent of Financial Institutions under subsection 308(4) of the Bank Act (in this definition referred to as "modified GAAP"), in which case it means the statements subject to such modifications as are required to make them comply with modified GAAP.

Related Provisions: 115(1)(a)(ii) — Foreign bank's Canadian income calculated using branch financial statements.

"calculation period" of an authorized foreign bank for a taxation year means any one of a series of regular periods into which the year is divided in a designation by the bank in its return of income for the year or, in the absence of such a designation, by the Minister,

(a) none of which is longer than 31 days;

(b) the first of which commences at the beginning of the year and the last of which ends at the end of the year; and

(c) that are, unless the Minister otherwise agrees in writing, consistent with the calculation periods designated for the bank's preceding taxation year.

(2) Formula elements — The following descriptions apply for the purposes of the formulae in subsection (3) for any calculation period in a taxation year of an authorized foreign bank:

A is the amount of the bank's assets at the end of the period;

BA is the amount of the bank's branch advances at the end of the period;

IBA is the total of all amounts each of which is a reasonable amount on account of notional interest for the period, in respect of a branch advance, that would be deductible in computing the bank's income for the year if it were interest payable by, and the advance were indebtedness of, the bank to another person and if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 18(1)(v) and this section;

IL is the total of all amounts each of which is an amount on account of interest for the period in respect of a liability of the bank to another person or partnership that would be deductible in computing the bank's income for the year if this Act were read without reference to paragraph 18(1)(v) and this section; and

L is the amount of the bank's liabilities to other persons and partnerships at the end of the period.

Related Provisions: 20.2(4) — Branch amounts; 20.2(5) — Notional interest for IBA.

(3) Interest deduction — In computing the income of an authorized foreign bank from its Canadian banking business for a taxation year, there may be deducted on account of interest for each calculation period of the bank for the year,

(a) where the total amount at the end of the period of its liabilities to other persons and partnerships and branch advances is 95% or more of the amount of its assets at that time, an amount not exceeding

(i) if the amount of liabilities to other persons and partnerships at that time is less than 95% of the amount of its assets at that time, the amount determined by the formula

and

(ii) if the amount of those liabilities at that time is greater than or equal to 95% of the amount of its assets at that time, the amount determined by the formula

$$IL \times (0.95 \times A) / L$$

and

(b) in any other case, the total of

(i) the amount determined by the formula

$$IL + IBA$$

and

(ii) the product of

(A) the amount claimed by the bank, in its return of income for the year, not exceeding the amount determined by the formula

$$(0.95 \times A) - (L + BA)$$

and

(B) the average, based on daily observations, of the Bank of Canada bank rate for the period.

Related Provisions: 18(1)(v) — No other interest deduction allowed; 20.2(2) — Formula element descriptions; 20.2(4) — Branch amounts; 218.2(2) — Part XIII.1 tax on taxable interest expense; 219 — Branch tax on Canadian branch; 257 — Formulas cannot calculate to less than zero.

(4) Branch amounts — Only amounts that are in respect of an authorized foreign bank's Canadian banking business, and that are recorded in the books of account of the business in a manner consistent with the manner in which they are required to be treated for the purposes of the branch financial statements, shall be used to determine

(a) the amounts in subsection (2); and

(b) the amounts in subsection (3) of an authorized foreign bank's assets, liabilities to other persons and partnerships, and branch advances.

(5) Notional interest — For the purposes of the description of IBA in subsection (2), a reasonable amount on account of notional interest for a calculation period in respect of a branch advance is the amount that would be payable on account of interest for the period by a notional borrower, having regard to the duration of the advance, the currency in which repayment is required and all other terms, as adjusted by paragraph (c), of the advance, if

(a) the borrower were a person that dealt at arm's length with the bank, that carried on the bank's Canadian banking business and that had the same credit-worthiness and borrowing capacity as the bank;

(b) the advance were a loan by the bank to the borrower; and

(c) any of the terms of the advance (excluding the rate of interest, but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating and the choice of any reference rate referred to) that are not terms that would be made between the bank as lender and the borrower, having regard to all the circumstances, including the nature of the Canadian banking business, the use of the advanced funds in the business and normal risk management practices for banks, were instead terms that would be agreed to by the bank and the borrower.

History [s. 20.2]: S. 20.2 added by 2001, c. 17, s. 14, applicable after June 27, 1999 except that in its application to amounts allocated or provided before August 22, 2000, the definition "branch advance" shall be read as follows:

(i) the borrowed money is denominated in a currency (in this section referred to as the "final currency") other than the weak currency, is used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and is not used to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency,

(ii) the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to acquire funds that are denominated in a currency (in this section referred to as the "final currency") other than the weak currency, that are used for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and that are not used to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency,

(iii) the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to settle an obligation that is denominated in a currency (in this section referred to as the "final currency") other than the weak currency, that is incurred or assumed for the purpose of earning income from a business or property and that is not incurred or assumed to acquire funds in a currency other than the final currency, or

(iv) the borrowed money or the acquired property is used, directly or indirectly, to settle another debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt in respect of which the final currency (which is deemed to be the final currency in respect of the particular debt) is a currency other than the currency of the particular debt;

(b) the amount of the particular debt (together with any other debt that would, but for this paragraph, be at any time a weak currency debt, and that can reasonably be regarded as having been incurred or assumed by the taxpayer as part of a series of transactions that includes the incurring or assumption of the particular debt) exceeds $500,000; and

(c) either of the following applies, namely,

(i) if the rate at which interest is payable at the particular time in the weak currency in respect of the particular debt is determined under a formula based on the value from time to time of a reference rate (other than a reference rate the value of which is established or materially influenced by the taxpayer), the interest rate at the commitment time, as determined under the formula as though interest were then payable, exceeds by more than two percentage points the rate at which interest would have been payable at the commitment time in the final currency if

(A) the taxpayer had, at the commitment time, instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt (excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating) with those modifications that the difference in currency requires, and

(B) interest on the equivalent amount of debt referred to in clause (A) was payable at the commitment time, or

(ii) in any other case, the rate at which interest is payable at the particular time in the weak currency in respect of the particular debt exceeds by more than two percentage points the rate at which interest would have been payable at the particular time in the final currency if at the commitment time the taxpayer had instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt in the final currency on the same terms as the particular debt (excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating), with those modifications that the difference in currency requires.

(a) no deduction on account of interest that accrues on the debt for any period that begins after the day that is the later of June 30, 2000 and the exchange date during which it is a weak currency debt shall exceed the amount of interest that would, if at the commitment time the taxpayer had instead incurred or assumed an equivalent amount of debt, the principal and interest in respect of which were denominated in the final currency, on the same terms as the particular debt (excluding the rate of interest but including the structure of the interest calculation, such as whether the rate is fixed or floating) have accrued on the equivalent debt during that period, with those modifications that the difference in currency requires;

(b) the amount, if any, of the taxpayer's gain or loss (in this section referred to as a "foreign exchange gain or loss") for a taxation year on the settlement or extinguishment of the debt that arises because of the fluctuation in the value of any currency shall be included or deducted, as the case may be, in computing the taxpayer's income for the year from the business or the property to which the debt relates; and

(c) the amount of any interest on the debt that was, because of this subsection, not deductible is deemed, for the purpose of computing the taxpayer's foreign exchange gain or loss on the settlement or extinguishment of the debt, to be an amount paid by the taxpayer to settle or extinguish the debt.

(3) Hedges — In applying subsection (2) in circumstances where a taxpayer has entered into a hedge in respect of a debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt, the amount paid or payable in the weak currency for a taxation year on account of interest on the debt, or paid in the weak currency in the year on account of the debt's principal, shall be decreased by the amount of any foreign exchange gain, or increased by the amount of any foreign exchange loss, on the hedge in respect of the amount so paid or payable.

(4) Repayment of principal — If the amount (expressed in the weak currency) outstanding on account of principal in respect of a debt of the taxpayer that is at any time a weak currency debt is reduced before maturity (whether by repayment or otherwise), the amount (expressed in the weak currency) of the reduction is deemed, except for the purposes of determining the rate of interest that would have been charged on an equivalent loan in the final currency and applying paragraph (b) of the definition "weak currency debt" in subsection (1), to have been a separate debt from the commitment time.

(a) such part of the property that would have been included in the inventory of the business or the part of the business if the income from the business had not been computed in accordance with the method authorized by subsection (1) as remained the property of the taxpayer at the time the taxpayer ceased to be a resident of Canada, and

(b) such part of amounts outstanding at the time the taxpayer ceased to be a resident of Canada as or on account of debts owing to the taxpayer that arose in the course of carrying on the business as would have been included in computing the taxpayer's income for the year if the amounts had been received by the taxpayer in the year at a time when the taxpayer was a resident of Canada,

(a) a taxpayer who carried on a business the income from which is computed in accordance with the cash method is non-resident, and

(c) for the year, if section 114 does not apply, or

(d) if section 114 applies, for the period or periods in the year referred to in paragraph 114(a).

(a) there shall be deducted in computing the taxpayer's basic herd of that class at the end of the year such number as is designated by the taxpayer in the taxpayer's election, not exceeding the least of

(i) the number of animals of that class so disposed of by the taxpayer in that year,

(ii) 1/10 of the taxpayer's basic herd of that class on December 31, 1971, and

(3) Interpretation — For the purposes of this section,

(a) a taxpayer's "basic herd" of any class of animals at a particular time means such number of the animals of that class that the taxpayer had on hand at the end of [the taxpayer's] 1971 taxation year as were, for the purpose of assessing the taxpayer's tax under this Part for that year, accepted by the Minister, as a consequence of an application made by the taxpayer, to be capital properties and not to be stock-in-trade, minus the numbers, if any, required by virtue of this section to be deducted in computing the taxpayer's basic herd of that class at the end of taxation years of the taxpayer ending before the particular time;

(b) "class of animals" means animals of a particular species, namely, cattle, horses, sheep or swine, that are

(i) purebred animals of that species for which a certificate of registration has been issued by a person recognized by breeders in Canada of purebred animals of that species to be the registrar of the breed to which such animals belong, or issued by the Canadian National Livestock Records Corporation, or

(ii) animals of that species other than purebred animals described in subparagraph (i),

each of which descriptions in subparagraphs (i) and (ii) shall be deemed to be of separate classes, except that where the number of the taxpayer's animals described in subparagraph (i) or (ii), as the case may be, of a particular species is not greater than 10% of the total number of the taxpayer's animals of that species that would otherwise be of two separate classes by virtue of this paragraph, the taxpayer's animals described in subparagraphs (i) and (ii) of that species shall be deemed to be of a single class; and

(c) in determining the number of animals of any class on hand at any time, an animal shall not be included if it was acquired for a feeder operation, and an animal shall be included only if its actual age is not less than,

(i) in the case of cattle, 2 years,

(ii) in the case of horses, 3 years, and,

(iii) in the case of sheep or swine, one year, except that 2 animals of a class under the age specified in subparagraph (i), (ii) or (iii), as the case may be, shall be counted as one animal of the age so specified.
